U.S. TO BUY GOLD ABOVE PRICE IN WORLD MARKET

Part of Roosevelt Inflation Plan.

Explanations and comments by leaders in finance and commerce on President Roosevelt's monetary policy are to be found in the financial section. (Pages 25 and 26.)

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—While treasury and reserve board officials whose counsels he had rejected were floundering in the mazes of his new monetary policy, President Roosevelt squared away to put it into effect at once.

After he had conferred with Jesse Jones, chairman, and Harvey Couch, director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, it was stated that this recovery organization would begin immediately the purchase of newly mined gold, which the President believes will cheapen the dollar and thereby raise commodity prices.

Buy Above World Price.

The initial price to be paid for gold will be above the world price, which today in London was $29.73 an ounce. The price of gold fixed by the statute of 1900, which is the price the treasury is authorized to pay for gold for coinage, is $20.67 an ounce.

By pushing the market price of gold up to $40 an ounce, the value of the dollar would be cheapened by half and commodity prices increased enormously, if not doubled, according to the theory of the President's plan.

For several months the treasury has been fixing the price of newly mined gold bought and sold in the open market for domestic consumption in industry and the arts and for export. The treasury fixed a price of $29.59 an ounce today, which was an advance of 58 cents over Saturday.

According to the views of the President and his new monetary advisers, the RFC operations in the gold market will serve to free the dollar somewhat from control by London and Paris banks and by European speculators.

Two Immediate Results Expected.

Two immediate results are expected: The cheapening of the dollar in terms of English pounds and French francs and an increase in the world price of gold because of the withholding from the world market of the 20,000 to 30,000 ounces of gold now being shipped from the United States every week.

After the President's desired commodity price level has been reached by this method it will be followed by devaluation of the dollar to an appropriate level and continued control of it through further gold purchases and sales.

Hundreds of unanswered questions still hung around this program today as treasury and federal reserve officials remained in their offices refusing to comment. Members of the gold standard camp in the administration such as Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean G. Acheson were particularly reticent.

Authority Is Questioned.

One of the major questions was under what authority the Reconstruction Finance corporation will proceed to buy gold. If no legal right can be found in the RFC act a government financed and controlled corporation will be set up to do the gold trading. Other questions unanswered were:

Whether other than industrial users of gold will be allowed to purchase it during periods when the RFC is selling it; present rules allow purchases only by industrial users.

Whether the government will confiscate a part of the federal reserve bank's gold holdings, amounting to 2 billion 821 million dollars, on the theory that devaluation of the dollar has increased the value of the gold stock and that the devaluation entitles the government to the amount of the increases.

Whether the President will recommend to congress a high tariff to protect the high price level he hopes to force in this country.

Woodin Stays in New York.

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin was at his New York home over the week-end and did not return today, a circumstance that some thought significant inasmuch as it is well known that he had advised a monetary course differing widely from that finally adopted by the President. Speculation was revived on the length of time Mr. Woodin may be expected to remain in the cabinet under the circumstances.

On every side treasury and reserve

DEPUTIES SPURN SALARY CUTS TO ADJUST BUDGET

Fear Franc May Be Forced Off Gold.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
(Picture on Back Page.)

PARIS, Oct. 24.—[Tuesday].—Unable to stand the bitter pill of economies and increased taxation contained in Premier Edouard Daladier's financial recovery bill, the chamber of deputies in an eruption of party hatreds at 2:45 o'clock this morning overthrew his government by a vote of 329 to 241.

The members of the cabinet immediately withdrew from the chamber and repaired to the Elysee palace, where they presented their resignations to President Lebrun at 3:55 a. m. The president was expected to begin consultations with political leaders later in the day in an effort to find a new premier.

See Franc in Peril.

Coming at a time when the franc is under a steady bombardment in all European and American exchanges, the chamber's action is seen here as opening a period of intense political confusion which may compromise the franc despite the determination of all responsible figures in French public life to keep the country on the gold standard.

On the face of it, the chamber's vote was a vote against sound finances and stable money. Daladier had based his whole fight on the necessity of eliminating the chronic deficit in the French budget—$320,000,000 this year—by any means whatever, and he had appealed to members of all parties to support his finance bill whether or not they approved the means by which the budgetary equilibrium was to be realized.

"Dog Fight" in Chamber.

No one effectively contradicted the truth of what Daladier said, but the partisan spirit triumphed over all other considerations when, after three days of debate with numerous vain adjournments in an effort to work out a compromise, the deputies got down to brass tacks in the early hours this morning and the flaring up of bitter personal enmities converted the whole show into a general dog fight.

While all this political trouble was bubbling, the excitable population of Paris was making itself heard from, as it always does in time of stress. The most imposing mobilization of police forces since the war was carried out yesterday afternoon to forestall a threatened demonstration of taxpayers, indignant over the government's projects to wring a few more centimes out of gasoline taxes, electric current, gas rates, and street car fares.

184 Arrested in Riot.

Taxi drivers went on the warpath and completely blockaded the Place de l'Opera with their hooting, screeching vehicles. A unique motorized riot took place in which 184 arrests were made by the police.

Hundreds of police guarded the streets leading to the chamber, as well as the Place de la Concorde, across the river. Observation posts were set up from which to direct maneuvers, and all traffic was diverted by barriers erected on the roadways, which were opened only at stated intervals.

What was considered more serious than this demonstration, however, was a threatened strike of civil servants, whose pay was to be cut as one of the drastic economy measures in Daladier's bill. All arrangements had been made to call a strike for today in case the bill had passed the chamber.

Premier Demands Showdown.

This was the dramatic background of last night's debate, which Daladier presented as the showdown between sacrifices and security for the franc on one hand and confusion leading to still greater sacrifices at the last minute or else ruination of France's currency.

Deputies of all parties listened breathlessly as Daladier and various other orators drove home to them the vital significance of the historic drama which they were enacting.

Then, at the last minute, when it looked almost as if Daladier had made himself a second Poincare by accomplishing the miracle of balancing the French budget, a purely factional row broke out, the chamber forgot all its patriotic sentiments of a few hours before and reverted to tradition.

Unions "Put On the Screws."

The Socialists were really having the screws put on them by the powerful unions of civil servants which virtually dictate the policies of the party.

Daladier had showed a willingness

78 MILE SPEED IS STREAMLINED TRAIN'S MARK

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A stainless steel, stream-lined, motor-driven train, believed to be the first built in the United States, was demonstrated today in a run from Philadelphia to Bridgeport, about 20 miles away.

The three-car train attained a speed of 78 miles an hour on the run from the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company plant, in Philadelphia, where it was built.

On the first car of the train is a 600 horse power internal combustion engine, burning a non-explosive fuel. Directly connected with the engine is an electric generator. The car also contains a 30-foot railway postoffice and a baggage room.

The second car is a coach seating 60 passengers, and the third another coach for 56 passengers, with a buffet to serve light meals. Officials said the entire train weighs as much as one ordinary Pullman coach and its operating cost would be one-third that for a steam train.

The train leaves tomorrow under its own power for Texas where it will be placed in service between Fort Worth and Texarkana.

BREWERY AGENT ASSASSINATED AT DOOR OF HOME

John Plynn, 38 years old, Calumet City agent for two breweries, was shot to death last night just outside his home at 904 Wentworth avenue, Calumet City.

He had left his home through a side entrance and was about to enter his automobile when an assassin crept upon him from the rear and fired a shot into the back of his head. Then, as Plynn lay on the ground, the killer sent four bullets into his body. Plynn's wife heard the shots and found him dead.

Plynn, police said, had engaged in beer activities for several years, and was considered influential in Calumet City politics.

JAPAN ORDERS ENVOY DEBUCHI TO RETURN HOME

TOKIO, Oct. 24.—[Tuesday]—(AP)—The foreign office announced today that Ambassador Debuchi has been instructed to return as soon as possible to consult Foreign Minister Hirota. A foreign office spokesman said, "whether Ambassador Debuchi will return to Washington depends upon Debuchi's own desire." Nevertheless, the Japanese newspapers are suggesting probable successors. A high foreign office authority admitted that Hirota was giving anxious thought to a prospective necessity of replacing Debuchi.

Anti-Kissing Order Defied; Police Watch

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The odd spectacle of a score or more of policemen on duty at the swanky Bronxville suburban station this morning to time the kissing of husbands and wives, in the interest of train catching and efficiency, brought sporadic scenes of revolt from Bronxville couples.

Commissioner P. W. Kniskern notified citizens last week that summonses would be issued to any one blocking traffic at the railroad plaza during the morning rush hours. He didn't specifically mention kissing as a cause of the morning traffic muddle, but that was the interpretation read into the order.

Has Element of Fun.

All in all, the new order introduced an element of fun into early morning train catching in a drizzly rain, with staid, elderly husbands and wives flying into defiant huddles and shrieking with laughter.

The 8:15 commuters were the kissingest of the whole morning schedule, averaging about three kisses to every five couples. The calculation, however, was of the kiss-and-run type.

"The missus and I practiced it all day yesterday," boasted one commuter.

"We got it down to three seconds for the whole operation, changing seats and all."

One officer, wet and gloomy in the morning drizzle, kept an eye on the kissers in the center of the plaza, a motorcycle patrolman, watched the kissers at the little bridge on the edge of the plaza, and another watched them at the other end. They noticed no lip contact that lasted more than three seconds.

"You can't issue a summons for a kiss that lasts only three seconds," said one officer. "It wouldn't stand up in court. It looks to me as if this new order is a break for the wives. I haven't seen so many kissed since I had this post. I notice lots of them getting kissed this morning who were never kissed before."

At one time the platform was crowded with commuters watching their neighbors' kissing technique. This forced many husbands to compromise on a feeble handshake.

"A lot of these fellows have no courage," said one middle aged commuter. "I saw a few of them kissing their wives on the main street, two blocks from the station. If I wanted to kiss my wife right here in the station Kniskern and his whole darned department wouldn't stop me."

But the defiant commuter had walked to the station. His wife wasn't around.

Author Slips By.

Charles Francis Coe, author, had done a bit of snorting over the order and a crowd waited to see him do his stuff when the 9:14 came in. He must have slipped by the photographers and his neighbors. No one saw him.

Commissioner Kniskern, who is a broker in New York, was pleased.

"I issued the order only to break the commuters of the habit of sitting around the plaza in their cars and gabbing," he explained. "That blocks traffic. I don't give a darn whether they kiss or what they do, as long as they keep moving."

WHALE UPSETS FISHING BOAT; YOUTH DROWNS

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A whale upset a fishing boat today off the precipitous coast of the north side of White bay and Elijah Cassell, 16, was drowned.

Elijah and his brother, Joseph, were in a 20 foot boat at anchor while they worked upon their lines. The whale suddenly came to the surface, lifting their craft on its back.

The boat was capsized and badly smashed as the whale, in sounding, dealt it a blow with its flukes. Both occupants were thrown into the water.

It is believed that Elijah was struck by the flukes, as he did not again appear. Joseph clung to the shattered craft and was rescued by a boat fishing several hundred yards away.

A similar case never has been known in fishing circles here.

NO LEGAL LIQUOR FOR CAPITAL WHEN REPEAL IS VOTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—There will be no legal liquor flowing in the nation's capital or any other territory for which congress legislates directly when repeal is completed on Dec. 5.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings tonight ruled that the Volstead act continues in force in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the Canal Zone even after the 18th amendment is off the books.

With the completion of repeal, states are free to do what they wish about liquor control or prohibition, the attorney general has decided, but in the national capital and all other regions directly under congressional legislation the national dry law stands until affirmatively removed by congress.

Small Dealer Exempted by Retailer Code

Excerpts from the text of the retailers' code are published on page 4.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A new move to placate the small tradesman faced with increased overhead, the consumer complaining of retail profiteering, and the farmer with his low commodity prices was contained in the NRA code signed by the President and announced today.

The retail employer with less than five persons on his pay roll is to be exempt from the code, which goes into effect a week from today.

Local tribunals are to be set up before which complaints of retail profiteering may be brought.

And in sharply limiting the fixed profit sections previously contained in the code, retailers of any food article and shopkeepers in communities of less than 2,500 population are to be exempted entirely from any mark-up requirements.

Johnson Is Conciliatory.

To accompany the code, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, issued a lengthy statement seeking in conciliatory terms quite different from his previous utterances to explain to the farmer how it has happened that the recovery program has worked faster for industry than for agriculture.

Retail druggists are included under the code, special provisions for this branch of trade being included in an appendix.

The document as finally approved by the President counts as a distinct though not complete victory for those—particularly in the agricultural adjustment administration and on the consumers' advisory boards of both the NRA and AAA—who held out vigorously against a required mark-up.

As it appeared following the public hearings, the general retail code required retailers to mark up goods at least 10 per cent above the wholesale delivery price. The drug code contained a similar provision and in addition a prohibition against selling standard brand goods at more than a 21 per cent discount.

Rule on Loss Sales.

The completed code permits sales without profit to the merchant, but directly prohibits sales at a loss except in cases of clearances, the sale of highly perishable goods, discontinued lines, liquidation sales, and under similar circumstances.

The merchant is admonished that "the selling price of articles to the consumer should include an allowance for actual wages of store labor, to be fixed and published from time to time by the trade authority hereinafter established."

A retailer may also sell at prices as low as those of a competitor in his trade area, provided the competitor is keeping within the code's requirements.

Directly attacked is the practice of "loss leaders" or articles sold below cost and usually widely advertised in order to attract customers. "Loss leaders"—most widely used by chain stores—are prohibited under the code

WEBER SAYS HE NEVER HAD DEAL WITH GANGSTER

25 Witnesses Heard; Result: Nothing.

A coroner's jury of business and professional men specially chosen to investigate the killing of Gus Winkler, north side gang chief, yesterday heard twenty-five witnesses and found at the end of the day that they had run into a blank wall in efforts to show [1] that Winkler was killed because of connections with protected gambling, and [2] that he and County Commissioner Charles H. Weber were business associates.

Principal among the witnesses, from the viewpoint of public interest, were Commissioner Weber, whose beer distributing agency at 1414 Roscoe street was the scene of the shooting of Winkler on Oct. 9, and William R. [Billy] Skidmore, reputedly for years the chief liaison agent and official fixer for the Chicago gambling industry.

Both Deny Knowing Winkler.

Both Weber and Skidmore denied any alliances with the slain Winkler or even knowing him. Both declared they never frequented gambling houses and had nothing to do with gambling. Commissioner Weber asserted that he did not know where a single gambling house could be found and Skidmore said that he had not been associated with gambling for twenty years.

The whole group of witnesses fell into five main classifications. The first, or politico-business, stratum was composed of the county commissioner, Skidmore, Ald. Edwin F. Meyer of the 45th ward, and Henry Runkel, one of the two partners of Weber in the beer business.

Five Policemen Testify.

Second was a group of members of the Chicago police force, the chief of detectives, three captains, and a patrolman, whose testimony tended to show that there was no gambling-political fight behind the killing. The third stratum was composed of ten employés of the Weber beer selling agency, who were unanimous in declarations they had never seen Winkler at the place until the day he was shot. They also asserted that they had never known him either under his own name or under an alias.

In the fourth group were five persons who had known Winkler. All averred they knew of no gambling house connections he may have had. Nor could any of them furnish any information to throw light on why he had been killed.

Reporter Is a Witness.

The fifth classification held only one witness, Charles E. Blake, a reporter for an afternoon newspaper. He testified that he had learned there was a connection between Winkler and the Weber beer agency, also that Winkler and Louis Alterie, another hoodlum, had been seen in Weber's real estate office.

Blake added that he had "unimpeachable authority" for the story that Winkler put $3,500 into the Weber beer business. His testimony was in direct conflict with that of the county commissioner and his partner, Runkel.

At 5 p. m. the inquest was continued to next Monday. One of the key men who has not yet been questioned by the coroner's jurors is Charles Conrad, third partner in the Roscoe street beer agency, who has frequently been mentioned as a friend of Winkler and an interested party in the conduct of gambling houses.

Coroner Conducts Hearing.

The hearing yesterday was conducted by Coroner Frank J. Walsh, assisted by Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel in a Municipal courtroom on the ninth floor of the city hall. Questioning of the witnesses was carried on by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty.

Members of the inquest jury are Prof. Ernest W. Burgess and Prof. Ernst W. Puttkammer of the University of Chicago; Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, and three business men, Bertram J. Cahn, William Schlossman and Charles W. Bergquist.

Police officials who have been engaged in the investigation since the killing said last night that the inquest had tended to confirm strongly their original theory that Winkler was slain because he had made overtures to government agents with the possible object of giving information about the loop mail robbery of Dec. 6, 1932, in which $250,000 of bonds were taken.

More than twenty persons have been arrested for alleged complicity in disposing of the loot and some of them have been indicted. One of these, Edgar B. Lebensberger, with whom Winkler was associated in the management of the 225 club, a cabaret at 225 East Superior street, was found shot to death on Oct. 6 in his Lake Shore drive home. It is uncertain whether Lebensberger was a suicide or was killed.

WEBER TAKES THE STAND

County Commissioner Weber, when he took the stand at the inquest, was informed of his constitutional rights by Deputy Coroner Schewel. He need not testify unless he wished to, the deputy said. The commissioner waived his right and first read a formal statement, as follows:

"As you know, I am a county commissioner and in public life in this community. In view of the conflicting statements that have been made and misquotations appearing in the public press, I desire at this time to state to you that I know nothing whatever of the killing of Winkler, which occurred Oct. 9 in this city.

"I, at that time, was in Miami Beach, Fla. I desire to state further that I never knew Winkler, never had any association of any kind or character with him, directly or indirectly. I know of no reason why he should have been in the vicinity of my place of business, nor do I know of any motive for the homicide which you are investigating. I will gladly answer any questions which you or the jury may wish to ask me."

Tells of His Business.

Questioned, Commissioner Weber said he was in the real estate business at 2922 Southport avenue and that his partners in the beer business on Roscoe street were Runkel and Conrad. He was shown a picture of Winkler and was asked if he knew him. An emphatic denial was the answer. The questioning then proceeded:

Q.—When did you leave for Miami? A.—On Saturday night [Oct. 7].

Q.—Who went with you? A.—Charles Conrad and Arthur Schroeder.

Q.—Did Winkler have any money invested in your distributing company? A.—No.

Q.—Prior to Oct. 9, do you know of any occasion when Winkler visited 1414 Roscoe street? A.—No.

Q.—Where was the first place you went after arriving in Miami? A.—To my home there.

Q.—Did you receive any telephone calls? A.—Yes, a dozen or so. My father called me. The Streets of Paris called me and I talked to several newspaper reporters. [Weber has the beer concession in the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair.]

A Series of Denials.

Q.—Can you tell what brought Winkler to your place of business? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know Louis Alterie? A.—I know of him by reputation.

Q.—Did you ever meet him with Winkler? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you know whether Conrad was interested in any gambling places in Chicago? A.—No.

Q.—Did Conrad and Schroeder ever have an office at 755 Waveland avenue? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Have you any interest or did you have in a place at 3069 Lincoln avenue? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you know who operates that place? A.—No, sir. I might if you tell me the name.

Q.—Do you know where the White Horse tavern is located? A.—Yes, sir. [The tavern is at 614 Dewey place.]

Q.—Ever see Winkler there? A.—No.

Q.—The concession for selling beer at the Streets of Paris is owned by a corporation? A.—Yes; I own most of it.

Q.—Winkler have any interest in it? A.—No.

Says He Never Knew Winkler.

Q.—Had he telephoned you? A.—I never knew or talked to him.

Q.—Do you know anything about his gambling connections on the north side? A.—Only what I read in the papers.

Q.—How long have you known Conrad and Schroeder? A.—I have known Conrad eight or ten years and we have been in business together since beer came back. I have known Schroeder several years.

Q.—Do you know about gambling at 614 Dewey place? A.—I never was in a gambling house in my life and I don't know where there is any.

Q.—Did Conrad have any interest in Vanity Fair, a night club? A.—Yes, he did.

Q.—Did he have an interest in the club Sonny, another night life place? A.—I don't know. Ask him; he'll be here.

SKIDMORE IS QUESTIONED

Skidmore's testimony began with the statement that he resided at 3500 Sheridan road and that he was engaged in the scrap iron and metal business. The questioning proceeded:

Q.—Do you know Charles Conrad? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long is it since you saw him? A.—About six months.

Q.—What was your business with him then? A.—He wanted to buy a truck. I thought he was in the beer business.

After the witness explained that the truck deal was not completed, Prosecutor Dougherty showed him a picture of Winkler. Skidmore said he had never seen the man and the questioning was renewed.

Q.—Did you ever get any information, or know, whether there is any gambling in the city, particularly on the north or near north sides? A.—I am not interested.

"Not for Twenty Years."

Q.—Have you ever been associated with any one who was in the gambling business? A.—Not for twenty years.

Q.—Do you know any gamblers? A.—My business is the scrap iron business. I don't know any gamblers and never was interested in gambling.

Q.—Did you know any persons who were friends or associates of Winkler? A.—The only one I know that the papers say is a friend of Winkler is John J. McLaughlin [indicted in the mail robbery case].

Q.—Did you ever talk about Winkler? A.—No.

Q.—Did you know Lebensberger? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What was his business? A.—The wholesale liquor business when I knew him.

Q.—Did you know he operated the 225 club? A.—I never heard of it. I don't know where it is, except from the newspapers.

Ald. Meyer Is Examined.

When Ald. Meyer was called to the stand he testified that he had known Weber, who is Democratic committeeman of his ward, for many years. He had never seen Winkler, he added. He admitted that beer licenses for his ward were submitted to him for approval, and said that this was a customary procedure. When he was asked if Weber ever discussed the issuance of licenses with him he retorted tartly that he didn't need any advice about his own business.

Runkel, called to the stand, said that his address was 1529 North Wells street. He related that he, Weber, and Conrad had each put $5,000 in the beer business, and that it was a "gentleman's agreement" between them; that no contracts had been signed. Questions and answers of Runkel, in part, follow:

Q.—Did you know Gus Winkler? A.—I did not. I never saw him.

Q.—Did he have any connection with the beer business? A.—No, sir.

Q.—How often were you at the distributing plant? A.—I visited there two, three or four times a week.

Q.—Did you ever see Conrad in company with Winkler? A.—I did not.

Q.—Have you ever held any public office? A.—I was committeeman in the 43d ward.

TESTIMONY OF POLICE

The 225 club and Lebensberger—and by implication, at least, the mail robbery—constantly cropped up in the examination of the police witnesses. The first of these was Capt. James Fleming of the Town Hall station.

Capt. Fleming said that he knew of no gambling places operating in his district, the one in which the murder occurred, and that he had never discussed beer licenses with Weber or with Ald. Meyer. Whenever he had investigated complaints of gambling houses, the captain said, he had found them without foundation.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker testified that he had investigated the Winkler murder, and that he had learned little. Winkler, he said, had never been connected with the gambling business or the beer business, so far as he knew. The only place he knew of, in which Winkler had an interest, was the 225 club, he added. It was Chief Schoemaker's opinion that the slayers were hired to do the job.

225 Club Investigated.

Capt. Charles E. McGurn of the Chicago avenue district testified that some months ago he investigated a report that there was gambling at the 225 club. On investigation no evidence was discovered, he said.

The testimony of Capt. Martin Mullen, head of the division in charge of gambling and vice suppression, was similar to that of the other officers. He said no large raids on north side gambling houses had been made, and that he did not know that Winkler had any interests of this kind, although he had heard rumors to that effect.

The last police witness was Patrolman Roy Coutre, who arrived at the murder scene shortly after Winkler was shot and helped take him to a hospital. Winkler had no gambling connections in the Town Hall district, to his knowledge, Coutre said.

WEBER'S AIDS QUIZZED

The ten employés of the Weber beer agency were unanimous in their assertions that they had never seen Winkler in the distributing plant on Roscoe street. Edward Leick Sr., plant manager, said he knew of the financial arrangements of the partners and was positive that no one else, and certainly not Winkler, was interested.

Some of the jurors were interested in learning why, of the half dozen employés who were in the place when the shooting occurred only one, Edward Conrad, went outside to investigate. The others insisted that they had not been given orders to stay inside and simply hadn't cared to get mixed up in the investigation. All heard the shots that killed Winkler.

Conrad, a brother of Commissioner Weber's partner, said that he knew Winkler only by sight, having met him several times in a barber shop.

Three beer salesmen, Edwin C. Davis, Milo Hoppe and George M. Kendall, were asked about certain places where the Weber beer was sold. Was gambling indulged in at these places, they were asked? To all such queries they replied by saying that they knew of no gambling. The White Horse tavern was one of the places named. The 225 club, it was stated, was not a Weber beer customer.

WINKLER FRIENDS CALLED

Principal of the Winkler friends called to the stand was David [Benny] Goldblatt, 410 South Hamlin avenue, reputedly a bodyguard for the slain gangster. At first Goldblatt declined to testify because his picture was being taken by news photographers. Later he relented and took the stand.

He had met Winkler, he said, fourteen months ago through Ted Newberry, gangster, who some months ago paid the penalty of death for his activities. But, Goldblatt declared he did not know Winkler's business and had never worked for him.

At 11 a. m. on Oct. 9, the day of the killing, Winkler telephoned him at his home, according to the witness, and asked him to come to 2738 Pine Grove avenue, the Lincoln Park Arms hotel. Going there, Goldblatt lent his friend his automobile. It was this car that Winkler used in his fatal journey to the beer plant.

Trip Downtown Planned.

"He told me he was going down town and would be back in three-quarters of an hour," Goldblatt asserted. "He said it had something to do with the federal government; that he wanted to get a clean bill of health from the government agents."

Goldblatt waited, he said, in the restaurant of the hotel until he had a message from an anonymous caller informing him that Winkler had been shot. He declared that he had given Winkler the keys to his car. Failure to find these keys has created a mystery and a belief that Winkler may have been accompanied to the death spot by another person.

As to why Winkler went to the Weber plant, Goldblatt said he had no opinion. He declared that Winkler was not interested in gambling, however.

Mrs. Fred Burke, whose husband, "Killer" Burke, is now in a Michigan prison serving a life sentence for the murder of a policeman, was called after Goldblatt completed his testimony. Most of her story had to do with her friendship with Winkler and his wife.

Burke and Winkler were good friends, and after the former was seized Winkler went to visit her at his request in Kansas City, she said. Later she came here.

"I am a beautician," said Mrs. Burke, who calls herself Bonnie White, "and I used to manicure Gus' nails once a week. But I never knew about his business, and I don't know why he was killed. The last time I saw him was on Sept. 30."

She had played golf with Mrs. Winkler and with Goldblatt, Mrs. Burke admitted. Mrs. Winkler, she added, had suggested since the killing that perhaps the motive of the slayers was "jealousy." Mrs. Burke was pressed to tell what kind of jealousy, and on whose part, but she parried the questions by saying she didn't know any more than she had told.

Attorney William F. Waugh testified that Winkler had telephoned to him on the morning of the killing and had said he would be in the Waugh office at 2 p. m. The killing took place about 1:30 p. m. Waugh's statement was partly denied by Goldblatt, who said he had called the attorney for Winkler.

Howard Mason, colored butler for Winkler in the gangster's apartment at 3300 Lake Shore drive, and Frederick Clare, manager of the Lincoln Park Arms hotel, testified briefly, but their evidence was not important.

THE REPORTER'S STORY

Reporter Blake's testimony came near the end of the session. In part, the questions and answers follow:

Q.—Do you know what Winkler's business was? A.—I learned from some pretty good authority that he was in the beer business.

Q.—Did you investigate a possible connection between Winkler and the Weber distributing company? A.—Yes, sir, I did.

Q.—What did you learn? A.—I learned from a government man that Winkler was financially interested in the establishment.

Ald. Frank Corr, attorney for the coroner, interrupted to say he did not believe that the witness should disclose the government's secrets. Blake then explained that he did not intend to tell the name of the agent.

Links Alterie and Winkler.

Blake said that Alterie, Winkler and Goldblatt had all been seen at 755 Waveland avenue, which he called "Mr. Weber's so-called real estate office." He learned, he said, that on the second floor at this address was the headquarters of a slot machine syndicate. He added that this place, he understood, was closed the day after former Mayor Cermak died. Further questions and answers were:

Q.—Did you know that Winkler was in the habit of visiting the Weber Distributing company? A.—I had every reason to believe that, and I have affidavits to prove that he had been frequently seen at Weber's real estate office. I also had from unimpeachable authority the fact that Winkler put up $3,500 to start the distributing plant.

Blake was then excused from the stand and soon afterward the hearing was adjourned.

WINKLER'S WIDOW RECOVERING FROM SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Mrs. Georgette Winkler, widow of the slain Gus Winkler, was reported recovering last night from her attempt to commit suicide with gas Sunday evening in her luxurious apartment at 3300 Lake Shore drive. Two policemen were guarding her. As soon as she has fully recovered, it was learned, Mrs. Winkler will vacate the apartment in accordance with a promise given the management by her husband three weeks ago, shortly before he was killed.

Mrs. Bonnie Burke, wife of Fred [Killer] Burke, whose visit to the Winkler apartment Sunday night led to the discovery of Mrs. Winkler's attempted suicide, remained with the widow yesterday except for the time she spent testifying at the resumed Winkler inquest. Mrs. Winkler was under care of two physicians, Dr. Oscar Cliff and Dr. David Herstein. A Catholic clergyman was also summoned to minister religious consolation during the day.

From the management of the building it was learned that the Winklers had occupied a flat on the fifteenth floor with a maid, colored butler, and a dog for a year under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Michaels before Winkler's true identity was revealed to the management through his arrest a month ago. Thereupon, it was learned, the management demanded that the couple move and Winkler agreed to go.

Last night Mrs. Winkler said she would testify next Monday when the inquest into her husband's death is again resumed.

Eight Men Hold Up Indiana Bank and Flee with $70,000

Greencastle, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Eight heavily armed men, believed to be escaped convicts from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City and the county jail at Lima, O., raided the Central National bank and Trust company today and escaped with cash and negotiable bonds amounting to more than $70,000.

The daring robbery upset the calm of this town, home of De Pauw university. The crime was linked up with other recent outbreaks attributed to the escaped convicts. The terrorists, it is certain, have formed a marauding band of guerrillas, willing and powerful enough to inflict their outlaw enterprises wherever they go.

General Alarm Sounded.

Within a few minutes after the bank robbery a general alarm was sounded and the countryside and neighboring counties were aroused. All roads were guarded; all towns mobilized vigilantes, and at Bloomington, 50 miles south, a trap was laid for the criminals.

The bandits, some of whom carried submachine guns, entered Greencastle in two cars and drove around an hour until it was almost time for the bank to close. Then the gunmen drove to the bank. Almost with the precision of military squads they alighted, entered the bank and revealed their guns. It was noted that they kept overcoat collars buttoned high to mask their faces.

Twelve customers and a number of employés were in the bank at the time. Harry Wells, cashier, became the principal object of the bandits. The customers and a few other employés were waved to one side and herded into a group.

"Just open the vault, brother, and do it fast," said one of the bandits.

Wells obeyed. He was a little nervous, however, with two or three guns pointed at him as he worked. The vault doors opened. One of the robbers scooped up papers and money.

For some reason the invaders ignored piles of silver and paper currency lying on counters within easy reach. It was not, obviously, because they were nervous. On the contrary, they were calm, methodical. Only one divergence from their one purpose—the vault money—occurred.

Postmaster Is Robbed.

That was when the two gunmen guarding the door halted two customers and robbed them. They were E. R. Bartley, postmaster, and High Hammond. Bartley lost $285 in government money; Hammond, $300 of his own.

Then, the robbery completed, the bandits departed, with words of warning to their victims not to follow. The leaders entered a Buick car and the others a Studebaker.

Several citizens obtained good views of the men and the descriptions they gave fitted those of some of the escaped Indiana and Ohio convicts.

JUDGE WILKERSON ORDERS INQUIRY ON LEBENSBERGER

Aroused by Publicity of Mail Plot Charge.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday ordered an investigation to determine how a supposedly secret mail robbery indictment became public knowledge and apparently resulted in the death of Edgar Lebensberger, owner of the 225 club, a night life center at 225 East Superior street.

Lebensberger was found shot to death in his home at 1258 Lake Shore drive, apparently a suicide, five hours before the indictment was returned on Oct. 6. The indictment charged Lebensberger, his credit manager, Joseph Sans, and John J. [Boss] McLaughlin, gambler and politician, with conspiracy to possess and sell $28,000 in bonds stolen in the $250,000 loop mail robbery of last Dec. 6.

Judge Questions Lawyer.

The investigation was ordered when Judge Wilkerson learned that Attorney William Waugh had offered to surrender Lebensberger on the indictment the day before it was returned. Attorney Waugh was summoned to the courtroom. He informed the judge that Lebensberger had told him "that a friend told him of the indictment."

"That's all I know about it," the attorney said, "except that Assistant United States Attorney Fisher refused to deny or affirm that Lebensberger was to be indicted."

Judge Wilkerson ordered the United States attorney's office to investigate with the remark that "that sort of thing must stop even if I have to send a dozen men to jail."

It was revealed in court that the case was presented to the grand jury on Oct. 4, a true bill was voted on Oct. 5, and the indictment was returned on Oct. 6. Lebensberger's offer to surrender came on Oct. 5, and he was found dead early on Oct. 6.

Bank Accounts Turned Over.

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday turned over to the public administrator two checking accounts in the National Builders' bank. The first, in the name of Lebensberger, contained $6,070, while the second, in the name of G. Lyons, had $6,600 in it. The probate judge had ruled that Lebensberger and Lyons were one and the same.

Jack Rubens, agent of the public administrator, opened a wall safe in the 225 club during the day and found two keys. One of the keys apparently is for a bank box, and the second is an automobile key, according to Rubens.

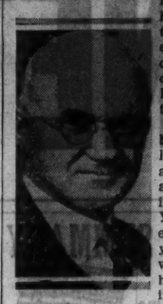
PURSUES AND SHOOTS SLAYER.

Walter Scott, colored, 37 years old, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday by Policeman William Bailey, colored, as he was fleeing from the Columbia hotel where he had shot and killed Fred Fisher, colored, 37 years old, in a quarrel.

FORESTRY CHIEF KILLED BY FALL FROM WINDOW

Maj. R. Y. Stuart Is Found Dead.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Maj. R. Y. Stuart, chief United States forester, fell to his death early today from a seventh floor window of the building containing the headquarters of that service.



MAJ. R. Y. STUART.

Stuart, 50, was born in Cumberland county, Pa., and was a graduate of both Dickinson college and Yale. With the exception of two years in France with the A. E. F. he spent his life in the forestry service. He was cited by Gen. Pershing for his war service.

Besides a widow, who was Miss Janet Wilson of Harrisburg, Pa., he is survived by two daughters, Janet Crichton and Helen.

Stuart was the first forestry expert to be called by President Roosevelt to consult on the work which could be done in the forests by the civilian conservation corps.

Long before the law setting up the corps was passed, Stuart had mapped out an extensive program and was active since then in picking camp sites. He had applications for camps from several governors at the time of his death.

C. M. Granger, Stuart's first assistant, is temporarily acting as chief forester.

Ask Reopening of Inquest Into Death in Police Cell

A formal request was made yesterday on Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county, by Attorney J. A. Miller of the Chicago Motor club, to reopen the inquest into the death of Alphonse Henderich, garage owner of Glenview, who died Oct. 11 in a police station cell in Highland Park. The coroner's jury verdict at the time was that he had died of heart dilation superinduced by over stimulation. Henderich's widow has questioned this finding. Coroner Taylor set the new inquest for Friday.

BURGLARS LOOT EVANSTON HOME.

George Moss, 2741 Asbury avenue, Evanston, a buyer for the Wieboldt department stores, reported to the police yesterday that burglars had entered his home on Sunday during his absence and escaped with clothing and jewelry valued at $130.

ALLEGAN NUDIST TRIAL OPENS TO CAPACITY HOUSE

Sheriff Tells of What He Saw.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Allegan, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A capacity throng of spectators, most of them men with gray or thinning hair, sat forward in the Circuit court room of Judge Fred T. Miles today to catch every word of a new revelation about what went on in Allegan county's late nudist colony.

Many of the men held hands cupped behind ears and the fewer than a dozen women, most of them bespectacled and elderly, nudged each other gently during Sheriff Fred Miller's embarrassed recital. Meanwhile the defendant, Fred Ring, watched the witness with an expression of hurt astonishment in the pale eyes behind the lenses of his horn rimmed spectacles. He is on trial before a jury on charges of obscene and indecent exposure.

Claims High Ideals.

Ring, a Kalamazoo, Mich., dancing master before his dancing pupils learned of the Labor day raid on the Sun Sports league camp near Allegan, has maintained since his arrest that he and wife, Ophelia, operated the nudist camp with the highest of ideals constantly in mind. Nudity was synonymous with purity of mind, the nudist leader has declared.

Witnesses for the state in the preliminary examination of Ring and his wife before Justice Fidus E. Fish, here last month, when they were held to the Circuit court, testified that after climbing a hill leading to the nudist camp they beheld men and women, altogether nude, engaged in such amusements as volley ball and sun baths. The list of names of the nudists obtained at the raid was read by officers and included mostly married couples.

Today for the first time it was brought out by a state witness that all the nudist followers did not adhere strictly to sun baths and such, but that at least one couple sought the shade and secrecy provided by a thick growth of shrubs and trees near by.

Used Field Glasses.

Sheriff Miller, questioned by Prosecuting Attorney Welborne S. Luna, told how he and Game Warden Harry Plotts trained field glasses on the nudists from a hill across a dividing stream and how later on the same day, Sept. 4, with Mr. Luna, himself, and others, they had surprised the nudists. The sheriff started out in his testimony with apparent cheerfulness.

"We seen nude people on the bank as we went up," he said.

"Mrs. Mary Angier, Mr. Gibson, Mr. Luna and myself got there about the same time. There was two nude people standing in a sort of shanty to one side; a bunch of 'em was playing ball. We walked up and asked for Mr. Ring. One of 'em went down the hill and got Mr. Ring. I walked over and seen Mr. Ring coming up with two others. They passed by another bunch of nude men and women. Then he picked up a rain coat and wrapped it around him," Sheriff Miller testified.

Sheriff Miller halted here and shifted uneasily, eyes on floor.

Prosecutor Pursues Subject.

Prosecutor Luna, a youngish man whose pink cheeks, possibly heightened in color by the necessity of urging the reluctant sheriff on, contrasted with his thinning hair and somber eyes, strode back and forth. His dry, nasal voice took on a rasping quality.

Prosecutor Luna—Now then, what did Mr. Ring tell you about his daughter and all this nakedness? [Pronouncing the first syllable as "neck."]

Attorney Clare E. Hoffman, who with his son, Carl, represents the Rings, objected to the prosecutor's "leading" questions. The sheriff was told to tell about his conversation with Ring.

Sheriff Miller—Ring said the female sex, particularly the younger members of the female sex, had a wonderful strong desire to see what the opposite sex looked like and that this was a wonderful opportunity for them and that after they had seen what they looked like they weren't even interested. He said his girl had no desire for knowing more about the opposite sex when she could see as much of them as she wanted to.

The sheriff stopped with an air of relief and gazed at the opposite wall of the courtroom, where plaster had been applied over a long crack in the wall.

Describes Actions of Couple.

But Prosecutor Luna, his hands behind his back, his shoulders stooped, strode both and forth. His nasal voice sank lower as he asked mournfully but slowly, with distinctness:

"Did you see any particular acts regarding a man and a woman?"

Attorney Hoffman—Object, your honor. The question is prejudicial and is not binding on the defendant.

Judge Miles—This charge relates to obscene and indecent exposure. He may answer.

Sheriff Miller [glumly]—I seen a male form come out of the bushes into the open runway leading down the hill from the top of their camp. That was while me and Harry Plotts watched from Mrs. Angier's land with our field glasses.

Prosecutor Luna—Yes. Well, what else did you see?

Sheriff Miller—I seen a lady—a nude lady—coming down the runway to where he was standing. Then they went into the bushes together.

Attorney Clare Hoffman—[on cross-examining Miller]—Now this couple that caused some trouble, about which you testified—you couldn't see them very well, could you, Fred? A.—No, not very.

Q.—Well, were they blondes or brunettes? A.—They were blondes, I think.

Q.—Fat or thin? A.—The woman wasn't exactly slim.

Took Farm Woman Along.

Asked by Attorney Hoffman why the officers took along Mrs. Angier, resident of a neighboring farmhouse, on the raid, the sheriff said it was to determine whether the Rings were trespassing on her property, "and I suppose to look at the nudists, too."

Howard Cross, citizen, who testified that he was fishing along Swan creek in the vicinity of the nudist colony and saw several persons in the nude, was asked on cross-examiniation if he had seen any acts of indecency or immorality.

"No," replied Fisherman Cross, "it was cold weather when I was there."

Sheriff Miller was recalled by the state to identify a subpoena issued for Edward J. Murray, Chicago witness who at the previous preliminary hearing testified he had joined the nudist colony to lower his high blood pressure.

After the noon recess, the jury was instructed by Judge Miles on the request of the defense counsel, which includes Attorney Kenneth Krippene of Chicago, that they would be taken to the scene of the nudist camp. A short time later they visited the camp, six miles from here.

IDENTIFY CIGAR STORE BANDIT.

BARCLAY ARRESTED; CHARGE FAILURE TO PAY $1,000 ALIMONY

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—McClelland Barclay, the illustrator, spent an hour and a half in the county jail today following his arrest on charges of failing to keep up his alimony payments.

He had spent most of the day at the sheriff's office while efforts were made to obtain $7,500 bail and when the sheriff closed his office for the day Barclay was taken to the jail. After an hour and a half, however, he obtained bail and was released.

Nan Barclay, his former wife, had charged him with failure to pay her September alimony of $1,000 and with neglecting to post security of $34,000 to guarantee past and future payments under a Chicago divorce decree.

URGES HIGHEST POSSIBLE PAY FOR PRINTERS

Better working conditions for printers than the NRA code provides for that trade were advocated yesterday by E. W. Libby, president of the International Trade Composition association, an organization comprised of typesetting plant owners, which opened a two day convention at the Palmer house.

"Although we are employers, it is our belief that in accordance with the President's wishes the wage scale should be raised rather than lowered," said Mr. Libby. "We also favor a working week of thirty-six hours, while the code provides for forty. It is our belief that every printing group should hold its wage scale up to the highest level possible."

Members of the association now have a contract with the printers' union for a higher wage scale than the code provides. The organization proposes to set up administrative districts for administration of the code, Mr. Libby said. Yearly conventions would be held in each district, under the plan.

The Employing Printers' Association of America will open a two day session at the Palmer house today. Other related groups that will meet during the week are the United Typothetæ of America, the Advertising Typographers, and the Employing Bookbinders of America.

INSULL HEARING RESUMES TODAY; SHOWDOWN NEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 23.—The critical stage of Samuel Insull's extradition hearing will be reached in the Greek Court of Appeals at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the court holds its third session to decide whether the aged fugitive from justice shall be sent back to Chicago to stand trial before the United States federal court on charges of fraudulent bankruptcy.

Insull conferred a long time today with his corps of lawyers. He refused to see newspaper men. Forrest Harness, United States assistant attorney general, worked all day preparing observations to give Prosecutor Anthony Reganakos for the latter's final rebuttal speech. Harness and the prosecutor were in a lengthy conference tonight.

The Insull hearing is causing no popular interest in Greece as did the hearing last year, when the state of Illinois failed to secure his extradition on charges of larceny and embezzlement. The newspapers are giving the case little attention. Insull tonight received a cable from his son in Chicago, Samuel Jr., who was also indicted on the same charge. The cable said "Good luck."

Tavern Owner Shoots Assailant to Death

John Boven, 38 years old, owner of a beer tavern at 1859 West Roosevelt road, last night shot and killed John Huise, 34 years old, who lived near 52nd avenue and 13th street, Cicero. Boven told Lieut. Edward Collopy of the Marquette station, that Huise had struck and kicked him after being ordered out of the tavern.

BANK OFFICER ACCUSES 3 IN MURDER TRIAL

Tells of Holdup Slaying in Niles Center.

Leonard Baumann, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Niles Center and son of the bank's president, took the witness stand yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers and told the details of the robbery of the bank last April 7 that resulted in the murder of Cashier Harry Mueller. Baumann was called by the state to testify against John Scheck, Carl Grundhoefer, and Frank Keglovitz, who are on trial charged with the murder of Mueller.

Scheck, already under sentence of death for the courtroom murder of Policeman John G. Sevick, sat handcuffed as he listened to Baumann.

Baumann's Story of Robbery.

"Sheck came into the bank first with a pistol," Baumann told the jury. "Grundhoefer and a third man followed him. Grundhoefer had a shotgun and he and the third man stood guard at the doors."

This third bandit was named in the murder indictment as Roman Piskorz. He is a fugitive. Keglovitz was not identified by Baumann because he never entered the bank. He was the chauffeur for the bandits.

Baumann said that he and Scheck entered the vault, where Scheck pocketed $2,420 and forced Baumann to carry out 50 pounds of nickels. Scheck then went to the cashier's cage, pocketed an additional $2,900, and started to put the nickels and other money in the cashier's cage in a suitcase.

Mueller Returns from Lunch.

"Then Mr. Mueller came back from lunch," Baumann testified. "Grundhoefer stuck his gun in Mr. Mueller's stomach and told him to 'stick 'em up.' Mr. Mueller said something I couldn't hear and then there was a shot and Mr. Mueller fell groaning to the floor."

Scheck gave up his efforts to get the money into the suitcase, Baumann said, and the bandits fled to their automobile.

Policeman John T. Kelly followed Baumann on the stand and told of the capture of the three defendants. Acting on "information," he said, his squad traced a new automobile to 5040 Wellington avenue. In it they found Scheck, Grundhoefer, and Keglovitz.

Tells of Bribe Offer.

"You guys haven't been paid for a long time," Kelly quoted Scheck as saying to the policemen. "I'll give every member of your squad $1,000 if we can do business."

Taken to the detective bureau, Policeman Kelly said, the prisoners were identified by a witness to the bank robbery. Grundhoefer made a voluntary confession, according to the policeman, and Scheck also confessed.

Later at the bureau Scheck suddenly seized the revolver of Policeman George Tucker, Kelly testified, and shot Tucker in the foot.

"I'm sorry I shot you," Scheck told Tucker, according to Kelly, "but you can't blame a fellow for trying to get away."

Victim's Widow Testifies.

Mrs. Clara Mueller, widow of the slain cashier, had preceded Baumann to the stand. She testified that her two children—Harry Jr., 13 years old, and Donald, 9 years old—had been left fatherless by the shooting.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan in his opening statement described the second break for freedom of Scheck, accompanied by Grundhoefer, which resulted in the fatal shooting of Policeman Sevick in the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Molthrop.

Attorney Emmett Byrne, representing Scheck, and Attorney James M. Burke, representing Keglovitz, were on their feet objecting as the prosecutor finished.

They termed the opening statement inflammatory and moved that a juror be withdrawn and a mistrial declared. The motion was overruled by Judge Brothers.

Former Preacher Sentenced.

Walter J. Bateman, 33 years old, former preacher and trombone player at the Trinity Gospel mission, 203 South Halsted street, was sentenced to one to five years in prison yesterday by Judge Francis B. Allegretti on a charge of bigamy. Bateman married Miss Esther Zoller in Bowling Green, O., in 1922, and then wed Miss Louise Stumpf, 3219 Craft street, in November, 1932, without bothering about a divorce.

This sentence and 13 others yesterday brought to 467 the number of criminals sent to prison since the opening of the war on crime. The others sentenced are:

RAY BYARS, 24 years old, sentenced to one year to life in prison by Judge Harry B. Miller for robbery of a Walgreen drug store at 800 Wilson avenue.

MIKE MARTINO, 45 years old, sentenced to 25 years by Judge Walter P. Steffen for the fatal stabbing of his landlord, James M. Hartsook, on Dec. 6.

CHARLES O'NEIL, 56 years old, sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge Steffen for confidence game.

OTTO A. RICHTER, 36 years old, sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge Steffen for confidence game.

CHARLES LAWRENCE, 25 years old, and LONNIE WILLIAMS, 22 years old, sentenced to 1 to 10 years for larceny; ROBERT LYNN, 25 years old, sentenced to 1 to 10 years for receiving stolen goods, and EDDIE BLUEITH, 38 years old, sentenced to one year to life for burglary. The defendants, all Negroes, were convicted of burglary of the home of Tyrone Williams, 338 East 42d street, and were sentenced by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

WILFRED MAY, 33 years old, colored, sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge Sullivan for the burglary of the home of Emmett Thomas, 4434 Calumet avenue.

ROBERT LEE, 21 years old, colored, sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge Sullivan for automobile theft.

JERRY WILLIAMS, 20 years old, sentenced to one year to life by Judge Sullivan for automobile theft.

WILLIAM MOORE, 30 years old, sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge Sullivan for confidence game.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 78; recovered, 42; stripped, 10 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Sunday].

SMALL DEALER IS EXEMPTED BY RETAILER CODE

New NRA Pact Is Signed by President.

"in order to prevent unfair competition against local merchants."

The prohibition carries to completion a long drawn campaign carried out through such proposed bills as the Capper-Kelly fair trade measure to protect the small retailer from the inroads made by the chains with their bulk purchases and coördinated administration.

Under a comprehensive plan for working hours and wages, stores may choose to operate in one of three groups, having a choice of remaining open for from 52 to 56 hours a week; from 56 to 63 hours a week; or for more than 63 hours a week. Employés in the first group will work not more than 40 hours a week; in the second group, 44 hours a week; in the third group, 48 hours a week.

Minimum wages range from $15 for a 48 hour week in cities of more than 500,000 population down to a requirement for a 20 per cent raise and minimum wage of $10 a week in places with less than 2,500 population.

In his statement Gen. Johnson explained the reasons for the presidential order exempting employers of fewer than five persons. He cited the reasons for and the gains accomplished by the general recovery program.

Johnson Makes Explanation.

"Of this broad program," he continued, "NRA is but a single part. It has nothing to do with farm prices or public works or the oil administration or the home and farm loan acts, or any other fiscal or banking matter. It is solely concerned with industrial organization for economic planning and control, and with reëmployment. It has made mistakes and it will make more mistakes. But it ought not to be blamed for things such as farm prices or public works with which it has nothing to do.

"It has been said by some that it has hurt the farmer by increasing the cost of the things he buys faster than farm prices have increased. The average figures do not bear this out. But there are others who insist that nothing at all should be done for the unemployed until all farm crops are restored to a pre-war price relationship. Surely no fair mind can support this proposal. In this crisis we must move to the aid of human misery—whenever there is any way to help—as quickly and as directly as we can.

Farm Solution "Harder."

"The very nature of the farm problem with its annual crops makes its solution slower and harder than the employment problem, and government is moving on both problems with all the vigor and power at its command. But there can be no turning back on the reëmployment program. It would be a tragic folly to turn millions of the reëmployed back on the streets on the argument that thus the cost of living could be reduced—no informed and fair minded farmer asks for that.

"But after four months of experience with NRA we find that there are some things we can do in aid of the farmer and the rural merchant. The President has, therefore, exempted local retail stores employing less than five persons, in towns of 2,500 or less, from the retail code and reëmployment agreements. Our experience shows that the amount of reëmployment and wage increase in these establishments is not enough to offset the hardship entailed. He is asking those who can do so to continue under the former rule. With all who do, the Blue Eagle remains. By all others, the Blue Eagle with the exemption chevron may be displayed. This should relieve the farmer of retail markups due to increased expense."

He promised to investigate and rectify cases of undue wholesale price increases.

Complaints of Profiteering.

"But most of the complaints received now," he said, "are of retail profiteering. What is needed here is local tribunals to which any person who feels injured in this way can complain and a fair hearing be held. The President has also directed that these local complaints boards be set up. A complete plan for this has been worked out and will be put into effect at once.

"By these means, we believe, we can protect the farmer against price increases which do not come as a direct result of the cost of reëmployment."

He discussed briefly the retail code, paying particular attention to the "loss leader" prohibition.

"This is frankly an experiment," said Gen. Johnson. "A distinguished committee is to be appointed at once to watch closely the operation of this code and to make recommendations on Feb. 1."

CHIEF FEATURES OF RETAIL CODE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Main points of the retail code's provisions, effective Oct. 30, follow:

In the wage differentiations, the term "south" means Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Texas, and the District of Columbia.

"Population" is determined by reference to the 1930 census.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

[a] Employés shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and shall be free from the interference, restraint, or coercion of employers of labor, or their agents, in the designation of such representatives or in self-organization or in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection.

[b] No employé and no one seeking employment shall be required as a condition of employment to join any company union or to refrain from joining, organizing or assisting a labor odganization of his own choosing.

[c] Employers shall comply with the maximum hours of labor, minimum rates of pay, and other conditions of employment, approved or prescribed by the President.

CHILD LABOR.

No person under the age of 16 years shall be employed, except that persons fourteen [14] and fifteen [15] years of age may be employed either,

[a] For a period not to exceed three [3] hours per day on six [6] days per week, or

[b] For one day per week, such day not to exceed eight [8] hours.

In either case, all such hours of work shall be between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m., and shall not conflict with the employé's hours of day school. It is provided, however, that no person under the age of sixteen [16] years shall be employed in the delivering of merchandise from motor vehicles.

BASIC STORE, WORKING HOURS.

Group A. Any establishment may elect to remain open for business less than 56 hours, but not less than 52 hours per week, unless its store hours were less than 52 hours prior to June 1, 1933, in which case such establishment shall not reduce its store hours; no employé of these establishments shall work more than 40 hours per week, nor more than 8 hours per day, nor more than six days per week.

Group B. Any establishment may elect to remain open for business 56 hours or more per week but less than 63 hours per week; no employé of such establishment shall work more than 44 hours per week, nor more than 9 hours per day, nor more than six days per week.

Group C. Any establishment may elect to remain open for business 63 hours or more per week; no employé of such establishment shall work more than 48 hours per week, nor more than 10 hours per day, nor more than 6 days per week.

No employé not included in the foregoing paragraphs shall work more than 40 hours per week, nor more than 8 hours per day, nor more than 6 days per week.

Any establishment may at any time increase its store hours, provided it maintains the basic employé work week of the group in which it originally elected to operate.

Shorter Time; Pay Same.

Any establishment may, for a period not to exceed three months during the summer, temporarily reduce its store hours, but the weekly wages of its employés shall not on that account be reduced.

The maximum periods of labor prescribed shall not apply to professional persons employed and working at their profession, or to outside salesmen, outside collectors, watchmen, guards, and store detectives.

The maximum periods of labor prescribed shall not apply to maintenance and outside service employés, but such employés shall not work more than six hours per week above the maximum hours per week otherwise prescribed unless they are paid at the rate of time and one-third for overtime.

Executives receiving $35 or more per week in cities of over 500,000 population, or receiving $30 or more per week in cities of 100,000 to 500,000 population, or receiving $27.50 or more per week in cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population, or receiving $25 or more per week in cities, towns, villages, and other places under 25,000 population may work in excess of the maximum periods of labor prescribed.

In the south executives paid not less than 10 per cent below the wages just specified may work in excess of such maximum periods.

PEAK PERIODS.

At Christmas, inventory, and other peak times, for a period not to exceed two weeks in the first six months of the calendar year and not to exceed three weeks in the second six months, an employé whose basic work week is 40 hours may work not more than 48 hours per week and nine hours per day; an employé whose basic work week is 44 hours may work not more than 52 hours per week and nine and one-half hours per day; an employé whose basic work week is 48 hours may work not more than 56 hours per week and ten hours per day. All such work may be without the payment of overtime.

HOURS TO BE CONSECUTIVE.

The hours worked by any employé during each day shall be consecutive, provided that an interval not longer than one hour may be allowed for each regular meal period, and such interval not counted as part of the employé's working time. Any rest period which may be given employés shall not be deducted from such employés' working time.

On one day each week employés may work one extra hour, but such hour is to be included within the maximum hours permitted each week.

Within cities of over 500,000 no employé shall be paid less than at the rate of $14 per week for a 40 hour work week, or less than the rate of $14.50 per week for a 44 hour week, or less than the rate of $15 per week for 48 hours.

Within cities of from 100,000 to 500,000 no employé shall be paid less than at the rate of $13 per week for a 40 hour work week, or less than the rate of $13.50 per week for 44 hours, or less than the rate of $14 per week for 48 hours.

Rates in Smaller Cities.

Within cities of from 25,000 to 100,000 no employé shall be paid less than at the rate of $12.00 per week for a 40 hour work week, or less than the rate of $12.50 per week for 44 hours, or less than the rate of $13 per week for 48 hours.

From 2,500 to 25,000: The wages of all employés shall be increased from the rates existing on June 1, 1933, by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require an increase in wages to more than the rate of $11.00 per week and provided further that no employé shall be paid less than at the rate of $10 per week.

Less than 2,500: The wages of all employés shall be increased from the rates existing on June 1, 1933, by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require an increase to more than the rate of $10 per week.

Junior and apprentice employés may be paid at the rate of $1.00 less per week than the minimum wage otherwise applicable.

SOUTHERN WAGE DIFFERENTIAL

In the south, within cities of over 25,000 population, the minimum wages prescribed in the foregoing sections may be at the rate of $1.00 less per week; within cities, towns, and villages of from 2,500 to 25,000 population the wages of all classes of employés shall be increased from the rates existing on June 1, 1933, by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require an increase in wages to more than the rate of $10 per week and provided further that no employé shall be paid less than at the rate of $9 per week; within cities, towns, villages, and other places under 2,500 population the wages of all classes of employés shall be increased from the rates existing on June 1, 1933, by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require an increase in wages to more than the rate of $9 per week.

PART TIME EMPLOYES.

Part time employés shall be paid not less than at an hourly rate proportionate to the rates prescribed.

The weekly wages of all classes of employés receiving more than the minimum wages prescribed in this article shall not be reduced from the rates existing upon July 15, 1933, notwithstanding any reduction in the working hours of such employés.

PRICE INCREASE LIMITATIONS.

No retailer shall increase the price of any merchandise sold after the effective date of this code over the price existing June 1, 1933, by more than is made necessary by the amount of increases in production, operating, replacement, and or invoice costs of merchandise, and or by taxes or other costs resulting from action taken pursuant to the national industrial recovery act and or the agricultural adjustment act since June 1, 1933, and in setting such price increases retailers shall give full weight to probable increases in sales volume.

PRIOR CONTRACTS.

Where costs of executing contracts entered into before June 16, 1933, by any retailer for the purchase of goods at fixed prices for delivery during the duration of this code are increased by the application of the provisions of the national industrial recovery act and or the agricultural adjustment act, it is deemed equitable that appropriate adjustments of such contracts to reflect such increased costs actually incurred be arrived at by mutual agreement or arbitral proceedings or otherwise, and the national retail trade council is constituted an agency to assist.

LOSS LIMITATION.

To prevent unfair competition against local merchants, the use of the so-called "loss leader" is hereby declared to be an unfair trade practice. These "loss leaders" are articles often sold below cost to the merchant for the purpose of attracting trade. This practice results, of course, either in efforts by the merchant to make up the loss by charging more than a reasonable profit for other articles, or else in driving the small merchant with little capital out of legitimate business. It works back against the producer of raw materials on farms and in industry and against the labor so employed.

This declaration against the use of "loss leaders" by the storekeeper does not prohibit him from selling an article without any profit to himself. But the selling price of articles to the consumer should include an allowance for actual wages of store labor, to be fixed and published from time to time by the trade authority hereinafter established.

Rule for Smaller Towns.

Such an allowance for labor need not be included in the selling price of any article of food, or be applied by storekeepers doing business only in communities of less than 2,500 population which are not part of a larger trade area.

Provided, however, that any retailer may sell any article of merchandise at a price as low as the price set by any competitor in his trade area on merchandise which is identical or essentially the same, if such competitor's price is set in conformity with the foregoing provision.

A retailer who thus reduces a price to meet a competitor's price as above defined shall not be deemed to have violated the provisions of this section if such retailer immediately notifies the nearest representative retail trade organization of such action and all facts pertinent thereto.

Fixes Advertising Policy.

All retailers shall comply with the following trade practices:

No retailer shall use advertising, whether printed, radio, or display, or of any other nature, which is inaccurate in any material particular or misrepresents merchandise [including its use, trade-mark, grade, quality, quantity, size, origin, material, content, preparation, or curative or therapeutic effect], or credit terms, values, policies or services; and no retailer shall use advertising and or selling methods which tend to deceive or mislead the customer.

No retailer shall use advertising which refers inaccurately in any material particular to any competitor or his merchandise, prices, values, credit terms, policies, or services.

No retailer shall use advertising which inaccurately lays claim to a policy or continuing practice of generally underselling competitors.

No retailer shall secretly give anything of value to the employé or agent of a customer for the purpose of influencing a sale, or in furtherance of a sale render a bill or statement of account to the employé, agent or customer which is inaccurate in any material particular.

No retailer shall place obstacles in the way of the purchase of a product which a consumer orders by brand name by urging upon the consumer a substitute product in a manner which disparages the product ordered.

No retailer shall purchase, sell or exchange any merchandise manufactured under a code of fair competition which requires such merchandise to bear an NRA label, unless said merchandise bears such label. Any retailer rightfully possessing the insigna of the NRA fho has in stock or purchases similar merchandise which has been manufactured before the effective date of the code of fair competition requiring such merchandise to bear an NRA label may attach thereto the NRA insignia.

PRISON MADE GOODS.

Pending the formulation of a compact or code between the several states of theUnited States to insure the manufacture and sale of prison made goods on a fair competitive basis with goods not so produced, the following provisions of this section will be stayed for 90 days or further at the discretion of the administrator:

[A] Where any penal, reformatory or correctional institution, either by subscribing to the code or compact hereinbefore referred to, or by a binding agreement of any other nature, satisfies the administrator that merchandise produced in such institution or by the inmates thereof will not be sold except upon a fair competitive basis with similar merchandise not so produced, the provisions of paragraph [B] hereof shall not apply to any merchandise produced in such manner in the institutions covered by such agreement.

[B] Except as provided in the foregoing paragraph, no retailer shall knowingly buy or contract to buy any merchandise produced in whole or in part in a penal, reformatory or correctional institution. After May 31, 1934, no retailer shall knowingly sell or offer for sale such merchandise. Nothing in this section, however, shall affect contracts which the retailer does not have the option to cancel, made with respect to such merchandise before the approval of this code by the President of the United States.

Retail Trade Authority.

The retail trade authority shall consist of the administrator or his deputy, and three members appointed by the President of the United States, who shall advise and assist the administrator or his deputy. Members of the retail trade authority shall be members, without vote, of the National Retail Trade council provided for hereinafter.

The National Retail Trade council shall consist of at least one, but not more than three, representatives from each major division of the retail trade presenting this code or hereafter subscribing to it, as the administrator shall designate.

NRA TEST SUIT IS DISMISSED BY FEDERAL JUDGE

Dyer Claims He Lost Job Because of Code.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A suit brought by Ralph Starring, 33 year old mill worker, to test the validity of the national recovery act and the code for the underwear and allied products manufacturing industry was dismissed by United States District Judge George Taylor today.

The suit was filed against the Southern Silk mills of Spring City, Tenn., and James B. Frazier Jr., United States district attorney for the eastern division of Tennessee, and sought to enjoin the mill from complying with the code and the district attorney from prosecuting the mill for alleged violation of the code.

Lost Job Through Code, He Says.

Starring, a dyer, claimed he lost his job because the code limited machine hours in the mill.

"I do not think it was intended by congress, in authorizing the limitation of the hours of use of machines, to deprive dyers of their employment or right to contract with respect thereto, any more than to interfere with the manufacturers of dyes to be used in the process, or furnishers of materials to be operated upon by the machines, or to manufacturers of boxes within which to pack for shipment the manufactured products," Judge Taylor said in a memorandum opinion.

Code Not Involved, Says Judge.

"Neither the act nor the code expressly or necessarily required the defendant silk mills to discharge complainant. The relationship of employer and employé was not the subject matter, or made an end in itself, nor does either necessarily prevent his being reëmployed."

The opinion added that "nothing in the act or in the code provision complained of expressly operates upon the right of the employer-defendant, Southern Silk Mills, to employ complainant or any other necessary or even unnecessary labor."

The suit was argued Saturday, first, on the government's motion to dismiss, and second, by agreement, on questions raised for a temporary injunction.

START PAYING $1,900,000 TO CITY EMPLOYES

City Controller Upham and City Treasurer Kearns yesterday started to pay city employés, including those of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, for the last half of July. The pay roll, approximately $1,900,000, was met through the sale of $600,000 worth of 1933 tax warrants to the telephone company and collections of delinquent taxes and city license fees.

President Clarifies NRA Labor Clause

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—In a letter today to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, President Roosevelt gave a clarification of section 7 [A] of the recovery act, concerning whose guarantees of protection to labor so many controversies have arisen.

Chief among its provisions, the section requires employers to recognize the right of workers to bargain collectively and to choose their own representatives. On the one hand, the section has been used by organized labor as an argument to attract new members and unionize hitherto non-union shops.

Employers have retaliated by fighting to put into their code a specific guarantee of an open shop. The automobile manufacturers have been the only ones apparently to succeed substantially.

To Gen. Johnson, the President wrote as follows:

"Following our recent discussion of various misunderstandings and misinterpretations of section 7 [A] of the national industrial recovery act, I wish to advise you of my position.

"Because it is evident that the insertion of any interpretation of section 7 [A] in a code of fair competition leads to only further controversy and confusion, no such interpretation should be incorporated in any code. While there is nothing in the provisions of section 7 [A] to interfere with the bona fide exercise of the right of an employer to select, retain or advance employés on the basis of individual merit, section 7 [A] does clearly prohibit the pretended exercise of this right by any employer simply as a device for compelling employés to refrain from exercising the rights of self-organization, designation of representatives and collective bargaining which are guaranteed to all employés in said section 7 [A]."

Commenting on the President's statement, Gen. Johnson denied that there was anything obscure about section 7 [A] itself.

"The obscurity arises," he declared, "out of unauthorized interpretations by some employers and some employés in an effort to read into the section something more or less than is written there. The President has made that interpretation in a single sentence so phrased that it is believed that nobody can separate it from its setting or otherwise cut it up to make it seem to say something different from what the words intend. Both industrial and labor leaders say that this will do much to quiet current disputes on this point."

YOUNG ATHLETE ENDS LIFE OVER A LOVE AFFAIR

Robert Norton, 27 years old, of Geneva, shot himself fatally in the head early yesterday because Miss Hazel Eckblade, 21 years old, with whom he had been keeping company for three years, had accepted a date with another man.

The shooting took place in Miss Eckblade's presence in front of her home at 11 North Jefferson street, Batavia. Norton died a few hours later in the Batavia Community hospital. He was an employé of a Chicago engineering company, had been a star javelin thrower in high school, and since that time had managed football and baseball teams in Geneva.

Sunday evening he went to Miss Eckblade's home and learned that she had gone out with John Captain, third baseman on the baseball team which he managed. Norton himself asked Miss Louise Davis to accompany him on a ride, and during the evening threatened to kill himself. She thought he was joking, she told police later.

Shortly after midnight he drew up before the Eckblade home. Miss Eckblade and Captain were sitting there in another automobile. Norton walked over to the other car and said to Miss Eckblade:

"What do you mean by going out with another man?"

"That's none of your business," she replied.

"He then drew the revolver and shot himself.

Wealthy Widow Leaps or Falls to Her Death

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Keren Warner, 84, widow of a wealthy manufacturer, fell or leaped to her death today from a fifth floor window of her apartment in East 57th street. She was said by her daughter, Mrs. William Gallowhur, to have been ailing.

U. OF C. TEACHER SHOT IN HOLDUP IDENTIFIES TWO

On Oct. 12, Frank Blackburn, 1326 East 57th street, a teacher of photography at the University of Chicago, was shot in the left forearm by one of two bandits whom he resisted near his home.

He reported that the man who shot him was left handed. Police got busy on the case. Yesterday Sergt. Ray Geisler of the detective bureau, acting on an anonymous letter, arrested two step-brothers, Joseph and Edward Wilson, each 21 years old, of 2633 Ward street.

At the detective bureau last night Blackburn identified Joseph as the man who had shot him and Edward as the man who had stood on the other side of the street at the time. Both denied the shooting and attempted robbery. Sergt. Geisler, remembering Blackburn's original report that the man who held the gun was left handed, asked Joseph to write his name. Joseph did so. He wrote with his left hand.

The safe, dependable, quiet heat

COSTS LESS

Coal heat is safe. It is quiet. It is dependable. Coal cannot get out of order. Then what advantage is there in changing to a more expensive fuel? Ease of firing? But coal heat can be self-regulated, too. Equipment for self-firing and self-regulating coal heat costs no more than burners for other fuels. And it saves you money instead of increasing your fuel bills. Stick to coal or coke and for honest measure and grading, buy from the merchant in your neighborhood who is a member of this Association.

Driver of Auto in "Red Light" Killing Fined $5

Raymond Chapman, 26 years old, 3436 North Seeley avenue, in whose automobile Harry Nielson, 26 years old, was killed Saturday night by a traffic policeman's bullet, was fined $5 yesterday by Municipal Judge Eugene Holland on charges of reckless driving, using a fictitious license, and driving with improper lights. Policeman Harry Vehlow, who shot Nielson, testified that Chapman drove through a red traffic light and that he fired two shots, one striking Nielson.

Three Gold Hoarding Cases Near Action by U. S. Here

Three cases of gold hoarding in the northern district of Illinois were said to be nearing prosecution by the government yesterday. The cases are said to include that of a banker who has retained $10,000 in gold, a teacher who has $1,000 in gold, and an attorney who has hoarded a like sum.

2 PROSECUTORS TELL U. S. HOW TO CURB RACKETS

Green and Keenan Heard by Senate Group.

Two federal prosecutors, each famous for his campaigns against gangsters, yesterday headed the parade of witnesses before a subcommittee of the United States senate which began a study of racketeering and kidnaping in the Chicago area.

Out of a mass of testimony given before the subcommittee at a hearing in the Palmer house, the evidence of these two United States attorneys was hailed as the most substantial contribution to the drive against crime.

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green of Chicago was one of these witnesses. He offered a concise summary of racketeering in this district and suggested means of checking such criminals.

Hear Keenan, Kidnaping Prosecutor.

Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to the attorney general of the United States, was the other. He has just completed the successful prosecution of George [Machine Gun] Kelly and several other members of a notorious kidnaping band and he presented his views on the methods of dealing with kidnapers.

Many suggestions came from the police executives, judges, college professors and lawyers who testified. Control of firearms manufacture, abolition of extraditing proceedings, elimination of legal technicalities—these were some of the suggestions fired at Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York and Senator Louis Murphy [Dem. Ia.] who presided at the hearing. Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg [Rep. Mich.] the third member, sent word he had been delayed.

Stresses Freedom from Politics.

"Why was the government able to capture 14 to 18 persons from Minnesota to Texas within ninety days?" Prosecutor Keenan began. "The main reasons were these:

"The department of justice is a small investigating group which has nothing to worry about politics. They won't lose their jobs for political reasons. They are well trained and they went about the job of trailing the Urschel kidnapers with a mind free of anything but the capture of the criminals.

"The criminals, after capture, were speedily indicted. This was because United States district attorneys could work divorced from any political impediments.

"Third, the federal judges, on the bench for life during good behavior, know their job and do it without thinking of politics."

Asks Wider U. S. Jurisdiction.

The testimony of Mr. Green furnished another high point of the session. He advocated sweeping amendments of federal statutes to give the United States courts jurisdiction in numerous fields of racketeering and other crimes in which they are now powerless.

Prosecutor Green urged that congress give federal courts and prosecutors jurisdiction in a wide variety of conspiracy cases, including those to extort money, exact blackmail, commit any injury to a person, interfere with trade and commerce, boycott or commit sabotage or to interfere with any business.

Other federal statutes which he proposed would make it a felony to pay kidnaping ransoms in any form of United States currency, and to send through the mails advertisements of any crooked gambling device.

Conclude Hearing Today.

Senator Copeland declared that regardless of the few witnesses heard, the sessions will be concluded today.

The hearing room was crowded yesterday. Hundreds of invitations to law-enforcing officials of five states had been mailed and accepted. The great majority were forced to sit and listen to the few who were heard. Scores more have signified their intention of coming to testify today.

Two Municipal court judges, three chiefs of police, a college professor and Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert, were also heard.

Goddard detailed his favorite theory: that the automobile is more dangerous than the gun in the hands of the criminal. Deprive a convicted criminal of the use of an automobile and you deprive him of probable escape from the scene of his crime, he declared. He admitted, smilingly, that there were practical objections to this system.

Most of the police witnesses were agreed as to the need for eliminating the submachine gun. The machine gun is not useful to police except in that it puts them on equal terms with machine gun armed criminals, they asserted. Prohibition of the manufacture of the machine gun, except for military purposes, will undoubtedly be recommended to congress by the subcommittee, Senator Copeland said.

Prof. W. W. Charters of Ohio State university said he considered the crime problem from the school angle. Instill law and order into the student and you will have a law abiding nation in a few years, he asserted.

Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green blamed much of Chicago's trouble with gangsters to the leniency of former Gov. Len Small for his wholesale granting of pardons of convicted felons. A particular case he mentioned was Small's refusal to grant extradition papers for James "Fur" Sammons, ruthless gang killer, to stand trial for a pay roll robbery in Baltimore.

Tells of Poultry Racket.

At an evening session of the subcommittee, scheduled for an investigation into the workings of the poultry racket, George R. Sweeney, traffic manager of the Poultry Shippers' association, was the principal witness.

He quoted statistics to show that while the total cost of shipping poultry by railroad from the middle west to New York was approximately $315 a carload, the cost of unloading and cartage from the railroad yards to the market in New York was $380. In the former instance four days were consumed for shipping, while the unloading and cartage occupied only four hours.

There was no direct testimony, however, concerning the cause for this disparity in shipping costs, although Senator Copeland hinted that the control of the New York trucking facilities was in the hands of racketeers.

Sweeney recommended that the poultry business be placed under the packers and stockyards act, thus giving shippers a legal weapon against the racketeers if they attempted interference, and the subcommittee took this suggestion under advisement.

Senator Copeland and a group of other persons visited the detective bureau last night "to see the works," as Col. E. S. Hutchinson, chief investigator for the subcommittee, said. They witnessed a showup of some 50 prisoners, conducted by Lieut. Charles Grattan. Senator Copeland made a brief speech to the detectives. Municipal Judge John H. Lyle was a member of the party.

Wants Heavy Penalties.

Offering sample laws, Mr. Green indicated he would provide penalties ranging from $10,000 fines and five year prison terms upward in accordance with the various crimes.

"The existing constitutional limitations," Mr. Green told the committee, "providing immunity against illegal search and seizure and self-incrimination, are a bulwark of protection to the racketeers."

"The deep shadows cast by criminals on American institutions are aided by the cunning and wily lawyer whose aid and comfort is paid for on a regular retaining basis," he said. "Occupying an exceptional position before the law does not excuse an attorney from the same rules that are commands to the citizen."

Police Chief on Stand.

Chief of Police Joseph Gerk of St. Louis, chairman of the Committee of International Police Chiefs, the next witness, was a typical police official, a stocky man with a clipped way of speaking.

"Give the criminal three strikes," was the way he put it. "If he misses on three chances to stay straight put him in jail for a term of 25 years to life."

Chief Gerk criticized the parole system. A gangster, especially, should serve every day of the sentence he is given, he asserted. This rule should be followed, he said, under the belief that the convicted man is guilty of a great many other crimes of which he has not been convicted.

"Why should a state line stop a police officer and not the criminal?" the witness demanded a moment later. "A thief from Missouri is a thief in Illinois and should be liable to arrest anywhere by an officer from the place where the crime was committed."

Allman Tells of Guns.

Commissioner of Police Allman of Chicago spoke briefly, outlining the methods used by the police department in fighting crime here. He, as well as all the other police officials who appeared before the committee, was asked about the manufacture of machine guns.

"There is no legitimate need for machine guns by the police," he answered. "Prevent them from reaching the hands of the hoodlums and we won't need them."

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker rendered the same opinion.

"Our men are equipped with them, but we have never yet fired one," he said.

Municipal Judge John H. Lyle was the last witness called at the morning session. He charged that members of the state Supreme court were releasing gangsters upon hair line technicalities.

"They let out Murray Humphries just last Saturday," he said. "He was arrested and a gun found in a shoulder holster. But because the police had no search warrant, he was freed by the Supreme court. There should be a change in viewpoint by the elderly gentlemen of the state high court."

SENATORS OPEN INQUIRY INTO RACKETEERING

'SPIKE' O'DONNELL TO TELL SENATORS 'HOW TO STOP CRIME'

Arrangements were made yesterday to have Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, the south side gangster, appear at 3 o'clock this afternoon before the United States senate subcommittee on racketeering and kidnaping. E. S. Hutchinson, chief investigator for the subcommittee, set the time for O'Donnell's appearance in making the arrangements with Attorney Jay J. McCarthy, O'Donnell's lawyer.

O'Donnell, later interviewed in the lawyer's office, said he would have "some constructive suggestions on how to stop racketeering in Chicago."

"I won't give them any bunk," he asserted. "If they let me get up there, they'll get the real inside on how to stop crime if they really want to. I'll be there and I'll talk plenty as long as they want me to."

Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the committee, said that if any gangster had any useful information to offer, his testimony would be welcome.

THE MORNING SESSION

Amidst the sometimes vague and inconclusive wanderings of certain of the witnesses the clear and comprehensive summary of rackets and racketeering rendered by United States District Attorney Green at the morning session appeared in refreshing contrast, according to comments of spectators.

Prosecutor Green, a trim, alert man, his black hair flecked with gray, related his views in a calm and even voice which demanded the attention of the committee and the crowd.

He stressed the inadequacies of the present federal laws in dealing with racketeers and made a number of suggestions leading to the remedying of these deficiencies.

"The racketeer," he said, "does not prey upon a single business firm, but injects himself into associations originally designed to promote the welfare of an entire industrial group. He hides behind the mantle of a beneficent promoter or director, and, disguised as a benefactor, proceeds to his diabolical purposes.

"There is an urgent necessity for congress to copy the state statutes prohibiting specific racketeering offenses. There is need for a federal conspiracy statute covering the following conspiracies: To extort money, to damage property, to injure a person, to commit malicious mischief, to blackmail, to interfere with trade or commerce, to boycott, to commit sabotage, to injure the public health, to cheat and defraud, to obtain money by false pretenses, to interfere with any business or calling, to damage a reputation."

REGISTRATION MAY BE DEMANDED OF ALL MACHINE GUNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt soon may be asked by the department of justice to aid the federal war against crime by demanding registration of all machine guns in this country.

The question of the President's power to make such a demand under existing laws is being studied. Registration would be followed by a move to confiscate weapons held by known criminals, it was said.

Such a drive, it was said, would be the third and final step in a campaign to disarm the underworld. Domestic manufacturers already have agreed to sell machine guns only to law enforcing officers. The President has the power under an NRA code to ban imports.

President Roosevelt may make a call for the registration of machine guns by patriotic appeal to law-abiding owners of weapons, such as banks and other corporations. By a process of elimination guns with other serial numbers could then be identified.

One more step after registration will be necessary to disarm gangsters, kidnapers and racketeers, officials admit. This would be confiscation of unregistered weapons whenever they are discovered in the hands of known public enemies.

Sanford Bates, head of the federal prisons, called on wardens of the various institutions today to recommend prisoners who should be transferred to the department's new Alcatraz prison island in San Francisco bay.

SEIZE FUGITIVE SERVANTS; FIND GLENCOE LOOT

Detective Paul Hansen of Glencoe, with the aid of Chicago police, yesterday arrested Jack Follman, 32 years old, and Mrs. Jeanette Llecker, 21, as the servants who disappeared on Oct. 16 with $1,000 in loot from the home of their employer, Leon A. Beach, 146 Beach road, Glencoe, a manufacturer. The two were hired two months ago. They posed as husband and wife. Hansen traced Mrs. Liecker through her mother and recovered part of the loot. Mrs. Liecker and Follman are being held on a charge of grand larceny. Follman is said to be an ex-convict from Lincoln, Neb.

30 Northwestern Freshmen Compete in Pajama Race

Thirty freshmen at Northwestern university braved the chilly air last night to compete in the annual pajama race. The course lay in Sheridan road between Lincoln and Haven streets, a distance of about half a mile. More than 500 spectators including co-eds looked on. The winning team represented Phi Delta Theta fraternity and included Robert Swisher of Peoria [who finished first], Elmer Blume, George Carroll, and Bill Mole.

KILLS SELF IN FATHER'S HOME.

Joseph Prohal Jr., 36 years old, shot and killed himself yesterday in the bedroom of his father's home at 1753 Hastings street. Police were told that Prohal had been despondent over ill health.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TALKS OF TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

Says All Women Should Be Interested.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt was solemn as she greeted the newspaper women in her study this morning, and said slowly:

"I don't know whether you'll be allowed to print what I am going to say."

Half a hundred pencils poised expectantly.

Was it to be the inside story of Russian recognition? Or a revelation about Washington society?

"I have just been over to the department of agriculture," she explained, "to visit the——"

"The 'chamber of horrors,' chorused the ladies with pencils.

Mrs. Roosevelt nodded.

"I think it's of enormous interest to women; but I know the opposition you'll meet from your papers on account of the advertising angle."

The half a hundred pencils scribbled along nevertheless, confident in their editors.

Truth in Advertising.

The "chamber of horrors" is a vivid exhibit of the evils that have come to gullible women who believed some of the advertisements about cold cream that would chase away all wrinkles, about lotions that would make the hair curl. It is the preliminary step in the coming congressional fight for an amended pure food and drug law which shall extend the present restrictions on truth telling labels to honest advertising.

Mrs. Roosevelt dug into a portfolio, brought out a picture, a horrible picture it was, of an Ohio clubwoman who was permanently blinded by one application of a beauty lotion to her lashes. She handed it around the circle. Some of the women looked at it; some turned it over quickly and passed it on.

"It is high time," Mrs. Roosevelt went on vigorously, "that this hoodwinking of women was stopped. Now, they have the protection of a label on the bottom of the box; but they have no protection against the ballyhoo of deceptive advertising."

It is because the bill is aimed at advertising, she pointed out, that it encounters such difficulty in getting publicity. "But it should have the support of every woman in the country."

Changes the Topic.

When the ghastly picture had been tucked away in the portfolio the talk turned to pleasanter topics.

For instance, Major, the police dog who bit Hattie Caraway, is at the vet's with a broken toe; but he's recovering.

Somebody sent a Great Dane puppy to the White House; it was given to young Jackie Greenway, son of the new congresswoman from Arizona, and he promptly named the pet "President."

Mrs. Roosevelt is going to be "lost" from Wednesday to Sunday, when she starts for Chicago. During this "lost" period she plans to visit several of her protégés about the country.

Hears from Miners' Wives.

She has recently received a round robin from the wives of nine miners in West Virginia, all hopeful that their families will be selected for the combination factory and farm experiment now being started at Reedsville, W. Va. These women, distraught with the privations they have been through, urge that these experimental homes about to be erected "be big enough so that every member of the family have a bed."

This eager interest on the part of the women "augurs well for the success of the project," Mrs. Roosevelt believes.

Then on to the old story—shopping. Mrs. Roosevelt wishes women would spread their spending more.

"It can't be done," objected a realistic member of the press, "because spending depends on the pay check."

Spread spending cannot be achieved with the unfortunate hand-to-mouth folks, Mrs. Roosevelt admits; but a more carefully planned budget and the coöperation of buyer, seller, and stylist will result, she believes, in a wider seasonal zone of employment.

Tells of Shopping Habits.

Here she revealed her own personal shopping habits. She doesn't "wander"; has no time to; but knows lots of people who do. This wandering, often the by-product of excessive leisure, leads not infrequently to the purchase of a lot of stuff the buyer knows she won't keep. That leads to the returned merchandise. That service to some steps up the price for all, and there you are.

A shopping revolution can't come in a day. It might be a good thing, however, if people would begin to think about certain changes in technique. That's her point.

SHAMROCKS IN FLOWER SHOW.

Shur, and 'twas from the auld sod they weer, too. Flower show officials at San Leandro, Cal., displayed their pleasure in brogue when President De Valera of the Irish Free State, dispatched a box of shamrock grown by him to compete at San Leandro.

AH! Pain Stops

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

MRS. ALLEN E. WHITMAN.

Miss Betty Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brown of 2450 Lake View avenue, eloped in New York yesterday with Allen Earle Whitman, grandson of the late Robert W. De Forest, former president of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Mrs. Brown learned of the elopement last night when she received a telephone call from New York. Her daughter was on the other end.

"I've just been married," she announced.

The announcement was a surprise, although Mr. and Mrs. Brown had known of young Whitman's attentions to their daughter. They said they were happy over the marriage.

The former Miss Brown is a member of the Junior league and chairman of the Juniors of the Alliance Francaise. She was elected chairman only a week ago, shortly after which she left for Bexley, O., her grandmother's home. It was from there she went to New York to become Whitman's wife.

Young Whitman is the son of Mrs. H. Roland Vermilye of Englewood, N. J., and the late Allen Earle Whitman. He studied at Princeton. He was married once before to Miss Denyse De Zerman Remington, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Remington of Oyster Bay, L. I.

ARCHITECT IS INDICTED BY U. S. AS EXTORTIONER

Is Accused of Demanding $5,000 of Woman.

A suppressed indictment charging Edmund R. Harris Jr. of Baltimore, a former Chicago architect, with sending an extortion letter through the mails was made public yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Harris is alleged to have demanded $5,000 from Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, defendant in a million dollar alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Howard L. Willett, wife of the teaming company executive.

Harris was seized by federal agents late Saturday at San Pedro, Cal., as he was traveling by steamship from New York to San Francisco. He was accompanied by his bride, the former Miss Louise Lowndes of Baltimore. Bond of $5,000 was set for Harris pending a removal hearing in California.

Questioned About Tour.

The name of Harris was brought into the alienation suit a week ago during the taking of depositions in a Waukegan law office by attorneys for Mrs. Hall. Dudley Craft Watson, art authority and art tour director, and Mrs. Bertha Baker Alling, member of the old William T. Baker family of Chicago, were questioned concerning a tour of Mexico early in 1932.

Mrs. Willett, Harris, and the two witnesses were members of the tour party. Both Watson and Mrs. Alling denied any knowledge of misbehavior between Mrs. Willett and Harris.

Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher said the indictment of Harris was based on an anonymous letter mailed to Mrs. Hall from Melrose Park on Feb. 14, three days after the alienation suit was filed. Examination by handwriting experts has established that the letter was written by Harris, according to Prosecutor Fisher. The letter said:

"Dear Mrs. Hall—For a consideration of $5,000 can guarantee to have suit against you dropped. Otherwise, certain information will be forwarded to Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett which will be both scandalous and very costly to you. Would strongly advise giving this careful consideration. If acceptable, place ad in personal column of Wednesday's or Thursday's Herald and Examiner. Just say 'Conditions favorable, Marall.' For your benefit, D."

Prosecutor Fisher said that the government also had traced to Harris a "poison pen" communication, written to Mrs. Hall's mother-in-law in New Orleans. The note, penciled on a newspaper picture of Mrs. Willett, said: "Poor David, but all Mrs. Willett says is the truth. I know them all. Mary Cave Hall is some 'vamp' and wants to marry this Howard Willett."

Writes to Mrs. Hall.

Another communication in the hands of the government was written by Harris, under his own name, to Mrs. Hall. The latter was mailed by Harris on Feb. 16 from the William Sloane house of the Y. M. C. A., 356 West 34th street, New York. City.

The letter said in part: "Having come into constant contact with Mrs. Willett she seemed to enjoy relating her affairs to me and I feel that I know enough to break down her case against you. I shall be glad to cooperate with you further should you care to get in touch with me.

"Sincerely,

"EDMUND R. HARRIS JR., Architect."

Prosecutor Fisher announced that the government "would spare no effort to halt the attempted blackmailing of society people."

Harris, who denied that he had written any extortion letters, charged yesterday that his arrest was "engineered" to force him to testify in Mrs. Willett's suit.

"Two attorneys for Mrs. Hall tried to obtain statements from me that would discredit Mrs. Willett, but I refused, telling them there was nothing to tell," he said. "They told me they would make it tough for me. They also said they would get me back to Chicago regardless of where I went."

GRAF ZEPPELIN LEAVES MIAMI, CHICAGO BOUND

German Air Liner Pauses for Day in Florida.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Delayed by rain squalls, the Graf Zeppelin left here tonight for Chicago after a 14 hour visit that followed upon a fast flight from Rio de Janeiro.

Departure of the giant dirigible was postponed for one hour and forty-five minutes past its scheduled leaving time of 3 p. m., as intermittent showers drenched its silvery bulk and gave the ground crew a good soaking.

Before leaving, Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran commander of the craft, made no announcement of the route he would take northward. Other officers aboard said, however, the probable course would lie up the Atlantic seaboard to Jacksonville, Charleston, and possibly Richmond before swinging inland for a refueling stop at Akron late tomorrow. Its speed is between 60 and 70 miles an hour.

Thousands Visit Field.

Arriving at the dirigible field in a drizzling rain, after a dinner given in his honor, Dr. Eckener immediately climbed up a rope ladder to the cabin and there spent more than an hour studying weather reports while waiting for the rain to cease. By departure time, the precipitation had stopped and the skies cleared. The Graf shortly was cut away from its mooring mast and started on its northward trip.

Throughout the day, many thousands visited the naval field to view the huge cigar shaped craft that numbers among numerous aerial argosies a world flight, made in 21 days, in the fall of 1929.

Utmost precautions were taken by authorities at the landing field to guard against any possible demonstration. Only those directly connected with the landing of the Zeppelin were permitted closer than a quarter of a mile from the craft and then not before being carefully searched.

The stringent protective measures were taken after Gov. Sholtz warned Sheriff D. C. Coleman and other authorities here to "take adequate precautionary measures" to protect the Zeppelin and its crew during their visit.

Leaving Rio de Janeiro Thursday, the Graf arrived over the city at 8 a. m. today after skirting thunderstorms over Santo Domingo.

CHICAGO RECEPTION THURSDAY.

In Chicago officials of A Century of Progress said plans had been completed for a formal reception Thursday for Dr. Eckener and Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador.

Original plans to have the airship passengers disembark at Chicago had to be abandoned because of the lack of a mooring mast. Instead, after the arrival of the ship at Akron, O., tomorrow, Dr. Eckener and members of his party will be taken to Chicago by airplane or train. A flight by the Graf over the Fair grounds some time before its departure Saturday for Germany is expected, but no attempt will be made to land.

Dr. Rolfe Jaeger, the German consul, yesterday made public details of the reception plans for Dr. Eckener and Dr. Luther. At 11 a. m. on Thursday they will be received officially at the Fair. At noon they will call upon Mayor Kelly and at 1 p. m. they will be guests at a luncheon given by the North German Lloyd at the Midland club.

Dr. Eckener and Dr. Luther will speak at a banquet at the Union League club at 6:30 p. m. Their talks will be broadcast to Germany. At 9 p. m. they will attend a reception given by the German-American societies in the Medinah temple. They will leave Chicago early the next morning.

DOCTOR EXPLAINS NEW SAFE WAY TO REDUCE

Announces New Discovery Over Station KYW

Science has made rapid strides in the past few months in locating the causes of excess fat, according to Dr. Frank S. Orland, authority on overweight, who spoke over Station KYW on this subject. Dr. Orland further explained that a famous research scientist, working at the Pasteur Institute in Paris and in leading American clinics, was directly connected with the discoveries that led to Vannay, the new weight-control method.

Dr. Orland further stated that Vannay is an absolutely harmless tablet that contains no iodine or laxative drugs of any kind. "Now it is absurd for anyone," he continued, "to take dangerous drugs or a daily dose of anything that rushes food through the body half digested and leads to chronic constipation. Vannay is the safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies.

"You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it."

This remarkable product is on sale at all Liggett Drug Stores. Any of our clerks will be glad to give you an interesting booklet, "How To Reduce With Absolute Safety." Avoid fattening foods.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for coughs or colds that hang on, for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.

LINDBERGHS LAND ON IRISH COAST; FISHERMEN CHEER

GALWAY, Irish Free State, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The air minded fisher folk of this district gave enthusiastic welcome to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today. The flying American couple made a perfect landing in the great harbor of Galway shortly after 5 p. m. after a 5¼ hour flight from Southampton, England. They will carry on again tomorrow, hopping off at 7 a. m. to view the winding Connemara coast to its northwest end.

The flight from Southampton gave the Lindberghs ample opportunity to continue their survey of prospective north Atlantic airports. They swooped down and made a close examination of Cork harbor and circled low again over Bantry bay, where the Gulf stream laps the southwest tip of Ireland.

The popular welcome to the Lindberghs was the more demonstrative because Galway hopes some day to become a great eastern terminus of trans-Atlantic air travel. The couple were entertained at a dinner in their honor tonight.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

Always Dead Tired?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? Chances are you're poisoned by clogged bowels and inactive liver. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients. They act easily upon the bowels, help free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

AL SMITH WARNS AGAINST EXCESS OF GOVERNMENT

Calls Fair a Monument to Individual Effort.

BY HAL FOUST.

The husky voice of Al Smith, before a shivering crowd of 5,000 warm admirers at A Century of Progress yesterday afternoon, lauded the World's Fair as a monument to the accomplishments of individual initiative and private enterprise and warned against too much bureaucratic control of business.

Tilting his black derby back from his ruddy face, the "Happy Warrior" urged that this Exposition remain open another year so that more millions might see this "monument to the progress of free men working without compulsion or even suggestion from government."

National Application Inferred.

Before mounting the stage in the court of the Hall of Science, the New Yorker had said that he would speak on none of the national or international questions puzzling the world today. However, among the civic and political leaders in his audience, his words were received as one of his first statements of his opinion of President Roosevelt's growing powers.

"We have here," he said, with a generous wave of hand that included a dirigible overhead and the miles of exhibits north and south, "examples of the progress private industry and free men have made in industry, invention, transportation, and art. It is notable that government as such has contributed a little to this progress, and, as a matter of fact, might be criticized for meddling with this progress through its many bureaus.

For Coöperation with Industry.

"Private initiative may sometimes need the curb and bit," drawing in the reins with both hands, "of government control, but the government is at its best when it supplements and coöperates with private industry.

"Let's not be too cynical in viewing the work of the industrial leaders whose exhibits are here on display. More often than not their motive has been the love of accomplishment for society at large as much as for personal profit.

"Regardless of motive, we have found that private initiative produces the desired results, and," he concluded, "when another hundred years has passed let us hope that another century of progress may be celebrated here, a century of progress by free men, men with freedom protected by the constitution."

Presented as Prophet of Repeal.

Mr. Smith was introduced by Gov. Horner as the warrior who five years ago initiated a fight for personal liberty, a fight that lost him another ambition, the presidency, but a fight that is now approaching victory in the repeal of the 18th amendment.

Mayor Kelly, in a hat that was brown but not a derby, and Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, also spoke words of welcome. Also on the stage was George F. Getz, new treasurer of the Republican national committee.

There was a roar of applause when he said that the Fair showed Chicago was "not afraid of the big bad wolf, depression," and that the Exposition represented a "triumph over Mrs. O'Leary's cow."

Mrs. Smith—Katie to Al's followers of five years ago—sat in the audience wrapped in an extra overcoat around her knees as if at a football game.

After the public address Gov. Horner took the party to the Illinois Host building for what was to have been a reception. The place was jammed, too jammed for introductions, and the meeting developed into a songfest with the crowd joining in "The Sidewalks of New York," "A Bicycle Built for Two," and "After the Ball Is Over."

Members of the party said they would remain at the Congress hotel today and depart for New York late in the afternoon.

During his tour of the Fair grounds after the reception, the former governor was made a chieftain of the Winnebago tribe in a ceremonial at the Indian village. His name, given by Chief Yellow Thunder, was Natch-De-Pee-Wah-Ke-Za-Ga, meaning "Chief Happy Warrior."

BALLOON FLIGHT TO STRATOSPHERE AGAIN POSTPONED

The possibility of high winds caused Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle, navy balloonist, and Maj. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps again to postpone their proposed flight into the stratosphere. The flight had been scheduled for 5 a. m. today from the World's Fair grounds. The decision to postpone it was made after Lieutenant Commander Settle arrived in the city ready for the flight and learned of the prospective weather conditions.

The high pressure area centering at Simpson, Canada, early yesterday, provided excellent conditions for the flight, Settle said, but a low pressure area forming over the Rocky mountains and certain to move east toward Chicago created the possibility of high and dangerous winds. Lieutenant Commander Settle said the flight would be postponed for at least several days. The balloon and metal gondola are in readiness.

PARIS AT FAIR CUTS ADMISSION TO DIME NOV. 1

Streets of Paris at A Century of Progress, which has attracted more than 2,400,000 of the Fair's 21,000,000 visitors, will reduce its admission price from 25 cents to 10 cents on Nov. 1 for the duration of the extended period of the Fair.

This was announced yesterday by A. N. Rebori, director, and Roy Hall, general manager of Paris, after a meeting of the board of directors at the Tavern club.

The outdoor floor shows will be discontinued, but the peep shows, bars, and cafés may continue if they desire, the Paris management announced. The cafés and bars, such as the Moulin Rouge, Harry's New York bar, the Lapin Agile, International bar, and Café de la Paix, have maintained entertainers of their own all season and are expected to continue.

CALLS FAIR BODY TO PREPARE WAY FOR 1934 OPENING

Corporation to Act Nov. 3 on Amendments.

Paid attendance figures for A Century of Progress Exposition and for corresponding periods at the 1893 Columbian Exposition follow:

Sunday, Oct. 22, 1933	258,872
Sunday, Oct. 22, 1893	138,011
Total, including Oct. 22, 1933 [149 days]	21,009,017
Total, including Oct. 22, 1893 [175 days]	19,688,320

The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

Trustees of A Century of Progress yesterday made their first official move toward setting up the machinery for continuing the Fair in 1934. D. H. Burnham, secretary of the Fair corporation, sent out a notice to all members calling a meeting on Nov. 3, to consider amendments to the articles of association which would allow the reopening of the Exposition next summer.

The move is not to be considered as a definite indication that the Fair actually will be continued, Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said.

"I want it definitely understood,' he said, "that the amending of the constitution's by-laws does not mean that the Fair will be held in 1934. We do not know yet whether the Fair will be held next year, but, if the public demand is great and we decide to continue the Exposition, we want to be in a position to do so."

The letter sent to all members of the Fair corporation requested all members who will be unable to attend the meeting in the Administration building on the Fair grounds to mail in proxies so that the full membership will be represented.

Only 20 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair

The first of the two amendments submitted would change section 2 of the articles of association to read:

Two Amendments Proposed.

The two amendments considered necessary are small in substance, but large in import. The first would change section 2 of the articles of association to read:

"The subjects for which it is formed are the holding of a World's Fair in Chicago in the year 1933 and also the holding of a World's Fair in Chicago in the year 1934." The last phrase had not been included in the first articles.

The second amendment changes another paragraph in the same section to give the executive committee of the corporation the power to use all funds left, after all bills have been paid, for scientific and educational purposes. The original paragraph had not mentioned the executive committee, although any profits were to be used in the same manner.

Honored by Indians

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, widow of the inventor, visited the Indian village yesterday and was present at the ceremony in which former Gov. Smith of New York was made a chief of the Winnebago tribe. A special ceremony will be held at the Indian village today honoring Mrs. Edison. She will be the second woman to be honored by the Indians at the Fair, Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond being the first.

BUSINESS WOMEN PLAN DINNER FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, who will be the guest of Chicago's women at A Century of Progress on Oct. 31, has agreed to remain in the city to attend a large dinner at the Palmer house, sponsored by the Illinois State Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. Miss Celia Howard, state president of the organization, announced yesterday that word had been received from the White House that Mrs. Roosevelt felt it imperative to leave Chicago at 9 o'clock that night, but would be glad to attend the dinner if it was sufficiently early.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

The millionth guest at the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino will be entertained by Buddy Rogers sometime this week, according to present indications. A bottle of champagne, to be delivered after repeal of the 18th amendment, will also be given to the millionth patron by Ernest Byfield of the Hotel Sherman management. If the laws of the state in which the winner resides do not permit the delivery of the champagne at his home, he is invited to come to the College Inn at the hotel to receive the gift.

Charles A. Hale of Mound City, Kan., yesterday was awarded a medal signifying first place in the national fiddlers' contest staged at The Fair Sunday night. Tommy Dondurand of Chicago won second prize, and Joseph Lebeau, Queb., Canada, was third. The contest was part of a program of American folk music.

A group of 1,200 crippled children from the Christopher and Spaulding schools will be guests of Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition, at the 2 o'clock performance of "Wings of a Century" this afternoon.

A list of 500 winners in the South Manchuria Railway company's contest conducted last week at the Fair was posted in the company's exhibit yesterday. It includes names from 34 states and from Alaska and Canada. Winners are being notified by mail and their prizes will be mailed to them.

Due to a typographical error, the ages of students playing in the Alvernia Conservatory orchestra was given as 11 to 12 in yesterday's TRIBUNE. They range in age from 11 to 20. The orchestra will play today at 7:30 p. m. in the court of the Hall of Science at The Fair.

Delegations of the United Typothetae from New England, New York, New Jersey, and points in the middle west will arrive in Chicago today over the New York Central lines for a visit to the Fair. An excursion party of 346 persons from Pikeville, Ky., will arrive Thursday. Six extra sections were used yesterday in bringing visitors to the Fair by the same road.

Today 104 veterans of pioneer railroading in the middle west will visit the Fair to celebrate the 85th anniversary of the first railroad journey outbound from Chicago. That journey was made on Oct. 24, 1848, when the locomotive Pioneer, the first engine to pass the Alleghenies, dragged a single passenger car for ten miles from the center of town to the Des Plaines river at a point now in Maywood.

That trip was made on the tracks of the Galena & Chicago Union railroad, the predecessor of the Chicago & North Western lines. The Pioneer is now on exhibit in the Travel and Transport building.

The veterans, whose ages vary between 70 and 85 years, will inspect the Fair after a formal greeting by Fair officials at the 14th street gate. One of the party will be John Reihansperger of West Chicago, now 80 years old, who is the only man alive who worked on the Pioneer, which was in use many years after its pioneer trip.

Yesterday's attendance totaled 91,965 at 11:30 p. m.

WE OWE HITLER NO APOLOGY! SAYS BRITISH Ppremier

MacDonald Administers a Rebuke to Germany.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Prime Minister MacDonald administered a stern rebuke to Germany, coupled with an appeal to European nations to get together to solve the disarmament deadlock, in a speech before a crowded meeting at Crawley, Sussex, tonight.

Expressing profound regret at the turn of events at Geneva, MacDonald reviewed Great Britain's contributions toward pacification of Europe, claiming that no one could say it has done nothing to fulfill its disarmament pledges.

"We are even blamed because we have gone too far," the prime minister declared, citing recent criticisms regarding the condition of the British navy and reductions in the army and air force.

"Owe Germany No Apology."

Britain repeatedly has been Germany's greatest friend in assisting to bring the reich up to a level of mutual equality, MacDonald asserted, but he warned that there could be no peace in Europe until every European nation can sit around the same table on terms of equality.

"We entered the Locarno pact because we thought it would make for the equality of Germany and the peace of Europe," he said. "This country can look Germany in the face without any blush or apology."

The nations of Europe must develop a spirit of neighborliness, he declared. He added that Germany would never have met great obstacles to the recognition of equality if she had been willing to do her part.

Appeals to Germany.

"I say it is a great misfortune and I appeal to Germany to do the right thing," the prime minister said. "Germany must make it possible for other nations to lie down alongside her without having fear aroused in their hearts and distrust reflected in their arms. Is Germany quite satisfied that she has done her part in making recognition of her equality possible?

"I accept the words of the German chancellor, 'in favor of peace,' but standing alone and leaving the rest of Europe to face its problems alone is not the way to bring peace to Europe. I hope that the very first opportunity that presents itself will be seized upon by Germany to show by actions that she is pursuing peace and is anxious to return to coöperation with the other nations of Europe, a coöperation that will not ask her to forfeit either her honor or self-respect."

The cabinet decided tonight that Capt. Anthony Eden, undersecretary of foreign affairs, will go to Geneva to attend Thursday's meeting of the disarmament conference. Sir John Simon will remain in London for the regular cabinet meeting Wednesday, which will discuss the program for the coming session of parliament opening Nov. 7.

Must Answer Charge

DOROTHY DEVORE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A Superior court ruling today directed Dorothy Devore, movie beauty, to defend suit brought by her ex-husband, A. W. Mather, demanding return of $20,500 cash and other property. Mather charges his wife obtained those things prior to their separation and by false representations. Mather's suit charged that he turned over a total of $100,000 when Don Jacobson, a friend of theirs urged such a settlement, but he later found out his wife and Jacobson had left together for China. Mather's law suit charged Miss Devore and Jacobson with "conspiring." Miss Devore filed a demurrer which was overruled today.

COURT DECIDES 5 TAX CASES BY TIE VOTES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Now and then the Supreme court decides a case by a tie vote. Today it decided five that way.

Decisions of lower federal courts were affirmed by the evenly divided court each time. The cases had to do with taxes and all resulted unfavorably to the government.

Justice Roberts was the ninth member of the court who failed to participate in four of the decisions. Chief Justice Hughes did not take part in the other. Presumably they had some previous connection which they felt barred them from acting.

The cases grew out of the government's efforts to collect taxes from the estate of James B. Duke of New Jersey, the Northern Coal company, and Sprague & Son Co. of Boston, the Oswego and Syracuse railroad of New York City, and the United States Refractories corporation of Mount Union, Pa. In the Duke case the government sought to collect $9,000,000 in taxes from the estate.

In the event of a tie the decision of a lower court stands. A majority is necessary to overturn it.

FRENCH CABINET OVERTHROWN ON ECONOMY ISSUE

Deputies Spurn Proposal to Cut Salaries.

to reach any compromise which would not wipe out all his economies, and in three days of back room negotiations the Radicals and Socialists had come close to working out a formula acceptable to the government and not too tough for the government's employés.

Had the Socialists wanted, they could have persuaded the unions to stomach the mild sacrifices proposed by the government, but a family quarrel broke up the negotiations. The Socialist party split on the question itself, the more moderate wing announcing it was going to support the government and the orthodox Marxists swearing they would not.

Split Kills Majority.

With the Socialist vote thus divided, Daladier's normal majority was gone and only the vote of the moderate center parties on the right of his Radicals could have saved him.

But the center parties, seeing the final breakup of the old majority and the formation of a new parliamentary lineup in which it would hold the balance of power with many fat ministerial jobs waiting to be plucked, decided to offer itself a new deal at once by the simplest method—overthrowing the existing government.

The end was already clear when a venomous word battle occurred on the floor of the chamber between Leon Blum, chieftain of the orthodox clan of Socialists, and Renaudel, leader of the governmental faction. Daladier, seeing the die cast, carried on a spirited duel himself with Blum, getting madder and madder as he realized he had made a lifelong enemy out of his former ally. The center sat silent, licking its chops, while the left majority tore itself to pieces.

Daladier Hurls Challenge.

Worn out by the interminable wrangling over every article of his bill, Daladier called for an immediate showdown on the vital article 37, the one which would cut the salaries of the functionaries. As a last compromise he offered to accept instead of the government's original text a formula worked out by a radical deputy which softened the cut to lower salaried officials and hit the big ones harder, but took some of the sting out by transforming the administrative cut into a special surtax applicable to all citizens enjoying stable incomes, whether government employés or not.

In a ringing voice the premier announced he was staking his ministerial life on this text and amid a general hubbub the vote was taken. After a 20-minute recess to count the vote, the deputies filed back into the hall and the defeat of the government was announced.

Tells of Danger to Franc.

The most important feature of the whole debate—outside the result—was Daladier's speech, in which he referred quite frankly to the danger the franc is already facing from bear raids which have drained many millions of dollars worth of gold from the coffers of the Bank of France in the last week.

"Our money is the most solid in the world," he said. "It will remain so if France is resolved to maintain it in its integrity. Do you want inflation? No! We have a horror of inflation, but our inertia, I believe, will render it necessary."

He admitted that devaluation would be a way of getting out of the financial hole, but he warned that it has not worked successfully in America or England.

"We have seen that countries which devaluated their currencies could not do without economies," he continued. "Take the examples of England and America. They reduced salaries severely as well as soldiers' pensions."

Speculate on Next Premier.

Daladier had been in power nine months, which is a long time for a government to be in power in France, and his is the second radical government to go down on the same point—balancing the budget. The first government to fall on this issue was that of Joseph Paul-Boncour. Now it is not clearly seen just what kind of a government can be formed.

Several of Daladier's present colleagues, notably Albert Sarraut, minister of colonies, and Camille Chautemps, minister of the interior, are ready to step into his shoes, but they are not of the caliber to accomplish the formidable job which has already licked Paul-Boncour and Daladier.

To make matters worse the regular budget—the measure on which Daladier fell, was the emergency finance bill, altogether separate from it—will have to be voted very soon, and all the issues fought out last night will have to be faced again.

CHEMIST TESTIFIES COMBUSTIBLE FLUID BEGAN REICHSTAG FIRE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Carrying a bottle of spontaneous combustion fluid in his pocket, Dr. Schatz, a chemical expert, testified at the reichstag fire trial today that the blaze was set by this liquid. The witness offered to demonstrate its effectiveness but the court declined.

Asked for the name of the liquid, Dr. Schatz declined to do so "for the sake of public safety." He said it was easily obtainable.

Only chemical experts could have started the fire, the chemist said. Marinus Van der Lubbe, Dutch defendant who has confessed he set fire to the building, was used only to detract attention from chemists, according to Dr. Schatz's theory. This belief was corroborated by other experts who said that in their opinion Van der Lubbe was able to start the fire within 12 to 14 minutes only because accomplices had set the stage for him. Dr. Schatz said he found traces of the liquid in Van der Lubbe's pocket.

That two groups of incendiarists may have been working simultaneously is the newest theory advanced in the reichstag mystery. The court expects the trial to last until after the reichstag election on Nov. 12.

WHEN YOUR FAVORITE LAXATIVE LETS DOWN

"Never increase the dose"
SAY MEDICAL MEN

If you've taken the same laxative too long, don't resort to taking double doses! You can always get action from just one Chocolate Cascaret. The system never gets "laxative stale" from cascara (a natural laxative from the bark of a tree).

NRA

You know strong cathartics are harmful. Any cathartic you have taken too long, nags at the bowels and is even worse. The system grows "laxative stale."

If the same dose you started with doesn't get the same result today, you are laxative stale and need a change.

Some people are laxative stale from even two months' use of the same laxative. Why not make a simple test that will cost you just ten cents? Take a Chocolate Cascaret; a real laxative, with a real chocolate taste. The finest chocolate candy you can buy has no finer flavor. But the important thing is the way cascara cleanses the system. Mild as it is, one Chocolate Cascaret is all you will ever need for a thorough, muscular movement of the bowels.

Cascarize the system every two or three days until the bowels are moving like clockwork of their own accord. Get the children's bowels working with the same regularity—youngsters need no coaxing to take a Chocolate Cascaret!

All druggists have plenty of the new Chocolate Cascarets now, for 10c, 25c and 50c. In the new brown box.

Make this simple light test

Then you'll know whether improper light in your home is tiring the eyes of your family

Better Light—Better Sight

Poor light tires eyes, increases nervous tension and induces body fatigue. Be sure your family has proper light in every reading place.

PROPER lighting is this simple. You must have enough illumination on your paper or magazine to keep your eyes from straining, from getting tired. The only trouble is that your eyes do not give warning in advance. They get tired before you know it. The best way to know is to have a lighting survey made in your home, by an expert. Then you'll know for sure whether your light is right.

It is especially important that school children have enough light when they read or study. In the formative years, straining and tiring the eyes can permanently affect eyesight. For their protection as well as your own ask for a lighting check-up of your home.

Lighting advice FREE for the asking

This service is absolutely free. Just write or telephone and we will send an expert who will make a complete survey of your home. She'll bring her little "sight-meter" and test the illumination in every reading or sewing location in your home. She may suggest a change in the size of lamp bulb. She may recommend a rearrangement of your lamps. Or your shades. They may be the wrong type or they may be improperly placed.

Write or telephone TODAY for free lighting test in your own home.

Better Light, Better Sight

You cherish your eyesight. It's the most precious thing you have. Then why tire it with wrong lighting methods? Let our expert advise you. Phone today. Or, if you wish, visit our Electric Shops to see the free demonstration of "right and wrong" lighting.

RELIEF BILLS RUN UP AGAINST A HONEYMOON

Absence of Adamowski Is Blow to Proponents.

BY PARKE BROWN.

One man's honeymoon loomed up yesterday as a serious element in the prospects for the Illinois general assembly, which today resumes consideration of the $30,000,000 winter relief program.

The honeymooner is Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, Chicago Democrat, who was counted upon to carry much of the brunt of the fight for the administration program. Although relatively young and only a second termer, he has risen to untitled leadership in the forefronts of both the Democratic majority and the Cook county contingent in the house.

Expected to Take Up Fight.

After three weeks of debating and maneuvering the regular program won its way through the senate last week, leaving the rest of the battle to the lower chamber. And everybody just took it for granted that Adamowski would handle the Graham bills over there. He hadn't appeared at Springfield during the special session. The house had been marking time waiting for the senate, but it was expected he would be on hand this week.

There had been rumors that some time in September he had taken a bride. It was assumed there would be a two or three weeks' honeymoon. There also were reports that Mr. and Mrs. Adamowski had gone to Europe. Well, this made it look like a month's leave of absence.

But yesterday, when it came time to begin a definite count of noses, inquiry developed the facts with more certainty. On Sept. 30 the young representative was married quietly to Miss Kathryn Kaiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Kaiser, 6337 North Sayre avenue. Yes, they did go to Europe. No, they didn't plan to return to Chicago until some time between Nov. 5 and Nov. 15. No, their exact address was not known. And, what's more, it wouldn't be given out if it were known.

Leadership and Vote Lost.

This was a shock to sponsors of the big relief program. Not only did his absence mean the loss of an effective battler from the floor, but it meant the loss of a vote in a fight where everyone counts, a battle to pile up the 102 constituting the two-thirds required for immediate effectiveness of a bill upon its enactment.

Pessimism already prevailed concerning any chance that the special session could wind up its work this week. Party lines, it is predicted, will be shattered in the house as badly as they were in the senate. Cook county, after some gestures by a few members, is expected to vote as a unit for the program, but Adamowski's absence even under such solidity cuts the Cook maximum vote to 55.

In other words, 47 votes would have to be obtained from downstate and there are some downstate Democrats as well as Republicans following the summons of the Illinois Agricultural association, the road builders and the cement people to oppose the plan.

AUSTRIA ARRESTS FARMER WHEN HIS RYE GOES NAZI

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Mother nature went Nazi in the countryside near here today by displaying on a hillside overlooking a highway two great green swastikas.

Armed police rushed to the scene and arrested a farmer who had planted his winter rye in the shape of the Hitler emblem.

Planted in the rectangular field, the swastikas did not appear until the grain sprouted.

Beauty Shop Is Bombed on Eve of Its Opening

A black powder bomb was exploded this morning at the front of the Orchid Beauty shop, 5605 Madison street, which was to have had its grand opening today. Witnesses told the bomb was tossed from a moving automobile. The blast caused $200 damage to the shop and aroused about forty residents in the building. Solomon Matis, 1240 South Avers avenue, the owner, told police a man who said he represented a plumbers' union called yesterday and ordered him to replace a plumber who was installing fixtures. Matis owns three shops. The one to be opened today had been at 5619 Madison street, a few doors away.

FIVE POLL JUDGES FOUND GUILTY OF ELECTION FRAUD

Five election judges were found guilty yesterday in the County court of making false election canvasses. Three of them were given jail sentences and the other two, who are women, were fined.

Judge J. G. Van Keuren of Pinckneyville, sitting in county court, sent Louis Greenzeit, 35 years old, 1333 South Central Park avenue, to the county jail for 60 days. Greenzeit was a judge in the 19th precinct of the 24th ward. Miss Rose Wattenberg, 3544 Douglas boulevard, and Mrs. Anna Broude, 3532 Douglas boulevard, also judges in that precinct, were fined $150 each. The false canvass was uncovered during a recount in connection with the contest by former Municipal Judge Samuel Heller of the election last November of Judge Erwin J. Hasten.

Judge Charles T. Allen of Woodstock, also sitting in County court, found Joseph De Guilio and Daniel Leopold, both of 913 South Racine avenue, guilty of a similar offense in the 1st precinct of the 26th ward in the election of November, 1930, and sent both to the county jail for four months. Their false canvass was uncovered in the contest by former Congressman Stanley Kunz of the election of Peter J. Granata.

GERMANS TOLD BAN ON LIQUOR IS HITLER'S WILL

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler's teetotalism was held up as an example to the nation tonight at a meeting marking the 50th anniversary of the German Anti-Alcohol society. Fritz Lenz, professor of eugenics in Munich, in a speech, said sterilization would be applied in the future in extreme cases of habitual inebriety.

"Trying to reform a drunkard by marriage is a crime," he declared, adding that personal liberty ends where the nation's welfare is at stake. From bans on drink and tobacco the speaker said he expected an enormously higher level of public health and efficiency.

"The leader wills it," he exclaimed.

Hitler permitted the circulation of his picture on a postcard, which was inscribed, "Chancellor Hitler neither drinks nor smokes and his capacity for work is enormous."

Lord Mayor Sahm and other prominent men spoke in favor of abstinence. Under the Nazi régime all temperance societies have been merged into one organization, headed by Minister of the Interior Frick.

Nazis to Admit Recruits to Storm Troops for 5 Days

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Capt. Ernst Roehm, commander of the Nazi storm troops, lifted the storm troops membership bar today for a five-day period. He announced recruits would be admitted to the organization from Nov. 1 to Nov. 5. The last official estimate put Chancellor Hitler's Nazi army at 800,000 brownshirts. This figure did not include the blackshirt protective guards, comprised of picked men, which has notably increased in size in the last few months.

Suicide Verdict Returned in Death of Yank in London

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A verdict of suicide was recorded today in the inquest into the death of an American, Severn Teackle Haviland, 36, of Minneapolis, who was found gassed in his London apartment Wednesday.

NAZI PRINCE MUM; AUSTRIA PUSHES PROBE OF "PLOT"

Letter to Goebbels Found "Rather Tame."

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The political police were running into snags tonight in investigating nation-wide angles of Prince Sachse Meiningen's Nazi activity. The names and addresses of his alleged confederates, found in his confiscated correspondence, were deemed to be insufficient evidence against them without corroborative information from the prince and he refused to talk. The prince has been in jail since last Saturday.

He answered questions regarding his associates with: "Do you take me for a traitor?"

A letter from him to Dr. Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda, on closer inspection turned out to be relatively tame, proving little beyond the fact that Goebbels and the prince corresponded.

Police Push Investigation.

However, it was emphatically pointed out that the investigation is being continued vigorously. The six weeks' summary jail term to which the prince was sentenced without a trial, as well as the interment without trial of his wife, the Princess Margot, was based on the recent concentration camps decree of the government providing for interment of Nazi agitators.

When six weeks have passed it will be up to a court to decide whether the prince and his princess are to be tried for conspiracy.

Princess Margot, held captive in her castle by order of Chancellor Dollfuss, was permitted to talk by telephone to the Associated Press.

Detectives stood at her elbow to see that the conversation remained within strictly nonpolitical bounds.

Princess Is Thrilled.

The princess, who is 21, is getting a thrill out of the sudden American interest in her plight. She was permitted to say:

"I've heard you have called the castle several times in the last few days and I thank you for your interest."

Meanwhile, widening differences between Chancellor Dollfuss and Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, a leading aide of the chancellor, were the subject of an earnest discussion in political circles and it was generally expected they would soon part company.

Whether this would mean a complete break between Dollfuss and profascist heimwehr led by the prince, or only the removal of Starhemberg as the vice-leader of the chancellor's patriotic front, was not apparent.

Believe Showdown Is Near.

A clear indication was given of an imminent showdown in the suppression of the text of a speech Prince Starhemberg gave yesterday in which he attacked the recent warning of a Czechoslovakian newspaper concerning what it described as extreme tendencies in Austria.

Newspapers, however, were permitted to attack him violently from all angles. The general tenor of these attacks was that the chancellor must drop his recently appointed lieutenant or else face a shipwreck.

Nazis, meanwhile, were blamed by police for an apparently incendiary fire which early today threatened to burn down the hangars at Salzburg where police planes for guarding the border are kept.

A customs guard discovered the blaze in time to extinguish it before any serious damage was done. Authorities pointed out the fire occurred about the same hour that Nazi swastika emblems were scattered throughout Vienna.

Wife Wins a Divorce from Goodwin Garst

Mrs. Lovena K. Garst, 437 Glencoe road, Highland Park, won a divorce yesterday from Goodwin Garst, former president of a farm implement manufacturing company bearing his name. The case was heard by Judge Ralph J. Dady in Waukegan. It was the third divorce action filed by her against Garst, but the first completed. The two other actions were withdrawn. Mrs. Garst charged cruelty. Judge Dady awarded her custody of her four children, Rosemary, 14 years old; Barbara, 11; Edward, 10, and Roger, 7. He also awarded her the home and lots where she is now living.

NAZIS THREATEN WORLD SECURITY, RABBI WISE SAYS

Tells of Jews Driven from Germany.

In a vigorous attack on Hitlerism, Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York, one of American Jewry's foremost leaders, declared last night that the Nazi boycott of the Jew in Germany is not primarily an anti-Semitic attack, but a deliberate attempt to ignore the consequences of the world war and to regain lost territory. He urged an American boycott of Germany rather than a boycott by Jews alone, and proposed an open door policy by the United States which would allow several thousand Jewish refugees to enter this country.

Rabbi Wise addressed 2,500 persons in a mass meeting in the Auditorium theater held in conjunction with the national convention of Hadassah, women's Zionist organization. Not all his remarks were addressed to Jews. He also warned Christians, asserting that Hitlerism is aiming to destroy Christianity. He described Hitlerism as "a resurrection of the paganism of old German mythology."

Tells Stories of Refugees.

The speaker, who was one of the founders of the world Jewish congress, told his experiences last summer among Jewish refugees in several European countries. He related stories of persecution as told by these refugees, and praised particularly the kindliness of France and England in their reception and care of Jews driven out of Germany. From 35,000 to 40,000 have entered France, he said, and many are living in military barracks in Paris.

"Fifteen months ago it seemed that some of Germany's objectives might have been accomplished through friendliness among nations," Rabbi Wise said. "France was making peace with Germany and America and Great Britain were becoming more friendly. You know what happened. Nazism came to Germany. A year ago the world was friendly to Germany. Now it regards Germany with suspicion. Today, after seven months of Hitlerism, Germany has lost everything and the world is against Germany."

Rabbi Wise characterized Hitlerism and Nazism as a threat to world security.

"Nothing the Jews have said or done has had the slightest influence on Germany's decision to withdraw from a company of civilized nations," he continued. "What Hitler has done is to make the Jew lead France and England to believe that Germany can't be trusted, and that the world isn't safe if Germany is permitted to arm again.

Sees Peril To Christianity.

"Christians think for the most part that only Jews are being hurt. Hitlerism will not be satisfied until it has sought to destroy Christianity."

Quoting statistics, Rabbi Wise said there are only 630 German refugees in the United States, whereas there are thousands in other countries.

"I do not think America can afford to keep her doors shut any longer," Rabbi Wise concluded. "I am not asking America to open its doors to 530,000 Jews, but is it too much to ask that the doors be opened to 5,000 or 10,000 refugees? They would be taken care of by their fellow Jews."

JUSTIFY KILLING OF PROWLER.

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday at the inquest into the death of James Hussey, 61 years old, 2131 West Roosevelt road, who was shot by J. M. Davis, a watchman, as Hussey tried to break into the Campbell Coal co. office at 442 North Campbell avenue.

WORD 'CHISELER' NO LONGER SLANG; ROOSEVELT USES IT

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Because President Roosevelt used it in an address last night the word "chiseler," applied to one who cheats, is no longer slang, Frank H. Vizetelly, lexicographer, declared today.

Several times in the course of two paragraphs the President spoke of "chiselers," meaning those who shirked in the government's recovery drive.

"President Roosevelt's use of the word automatically elevates it from the status of slang to colloquialism," said Mr. Vizetelly. "It is to be expected that consequently 'chiseler' will find its way into good English.

"When a man of such station as the President of the United States employs a slang phrase he clothes it with dignity."

What will these toys do for your Children?

Your children's toys are a vital influence in determining what kind of persons your children will become. Modern education recognizes that toys are more than merely things to amuse. Toys educate, train, develop personalities. And the kind of training your children get from their play depends largely upon the kind of toys you give them.

Marshall Field & Company . . . with a Toy Section known the world over for completeness and fine quality . . . recognizes a definite responsibility to parents. We recognize that modern education is constantly studying the problem of creating the right play-environment. We recognize that conscientious parents in growing numbers are giving thoughtful attention to selecting the right toys.

With genuine pride of achievement, with a sense of making a vital contribution to educational progress, we ask you to see

An Exhibit Presenting
THE EDUCATIONAL VALUE OF TOYS
ON THE FOURTH FLOOR, WABASH—THROUGH NOVEMBER FOURTH

This exhibit, the first of its kind, was arranged with the co-operation of The University of Chicago, under the direction of Professor Frank N. Freeman, of the Department of Education.

You will find toys classified in nine groups; not according to ages, as has always been conventional practice, but according to vital functions in child development. These groups are: very simple toys for infants; toys for developing strength and skill; for constructive and creative play; for dramatic, imitative and imaginative play; for social development; for artistic development, arts and crafts; to stimulate knowledge and aid in school activities; leading to an interest in science and mechanics; for hobbies and special interests.

In connection with this exhibit there is a series of scientific and helpfully practical lectures by

MISS ETHEL KAWIN

Miss Kawin is a research psychologist of the Illinois Institute for Juvenile Research, and a nationally recognized authority on child psychology. She is engaged for the term of the exhibit, as lecturer and adviser to parents.

You who take your parenthood seriously, who are eager to provide your children with the proper tools for wholesome, constructive play, cannot afford to miss this remarkable exhibit.

In the selection of toys, Marshall Field & Company has been guided by these educational authorities. Many toys have been barred from exhibit as unsuited to the educational principles endorsed. In other instances, toy manufacturers have been asked to change their products to conform to these principles; and have done so.

Most important, Marshall Field & Company has adopted as permanent the principles and practices represented in the exhibit: to make the Toy Section a constructive force for educational good; to give parents intelligent counsel in selection of toys their children ought to have.

You are cordially invited to see this fascinating exhibit; and to enjoy Miss Kawin's interesting talks.

U. S. TO BUY GOLD ABOVE PRICE IN WORLD MARKET

First Step in Roosevelt's Inflation Plan.

board officials were dodging newspaper reporters, and, when cornered, referring their questioners to the White House for explanation of the detailed operation of the plan projected by Mr. Roosevelt in his radio speech. One or two confided "off the record" their doubts that the gold purchase will result in any material advance of commodity prices.

Professors Frame Plan.

About the first thing the treasury and reserve board officials learned this morning was that they had been supplanted at the White House in the formulation of the monetary policy by Professors George F. Warren of Cornell and James Harvey Rogers of Yale. Mr. Roosevelt telegraphed them to be at the White House yesterday morning. They spent the day helping the President prepare his monetary pronouncement and left Washington last night.

One of the first indorsements of the Roosevelt policy emanated from the Committee for the Nation, for which Prof. Warren is economist. This organization has been advocating devaluation of the dollar. The President's outline of his policy and what he hopes it will accomplish parallels closely proposals put out last Friday by the committee, which were drafted by Prof. Warren.

The committee declared the latest break in commodity prices to be "the forerunner of another major crisis." It accused the treasury of being dominated by "deflationary banking interests."

Proposal by Committee.

"The Committee for the Nation," said its pronouncement, "has renewed its recommendation to the President that he immediately assert his own command over the dollar; that he reduce the present abnormal purchasing power of the dollar by having the treasury buy gold on a rising scale, beginning at $34 per ounce, until the dollar is brought back to the average purchasing power it possessed in 1926.

"As an alternative, the committee recommended an immediate price of $41.34 an ounce, equivalent to cutting the gold content of the dollar by the 50 per cent maximum authorized in the Thomas amendment. The committee's investigations show that one ounce of gold now buys the world over as much of basic commodities as two ounces did in 1926. Hence a doubling of the dollar price of gold would be followed by a sharp rise of price levels and almost immediate restoration of the dollar price for wheat, cotton, and other agricultural products.

"Coupled with this cut of gold content of the dollar, the committee recommends that the President announce that when the 1926 price level is reached, it will be stabilized by continuing control over the price of gold.

"Delay has cost us billions. How much longer must the producers of this country suffer from a senseless deflation senselessly prolonged!"

Roosevelt Money Policy Evokes Variety of Opinions

Newspapers throughout the United States are comemnting upon President Roosevelt's gold program. Some of the excerpts follow:

Atlanta, Ga., Constitution [Dem.]—The plain inference from the President's address is that he contemplates the revaluation of the dollar. The President wishes to establish the price level first, so as to ascertain just what the permanent value of the dollar should be.

This may mean an early revaluation of the dollar or an indefinite delay in fixing its measure. The element of uncertainty on this point is one of the main causes of the halt in business for the past two months.

Baltimore Sun—The American people must eat something of Mr. Roosevelt's latest pudding before they will be able to speak definitely of its value. Artificial governors of prices have in practice, repeatedly failed to produce promised results. The abundance of credit that Mr. Hoover provided did not stop the fall of prices, and the abundance of credit under Mr. Roosevelt, far from yielding a sustained rise in price, has been accompanied by violent fluctuations in some commodity prices.

Boston Herald [Rep.]—Whether the plan will work out in practice remains to be seen. At least it may be said that the President is adopting a course which, in its essential features, is believed by many leading economists and business leaders to be the best possible under present conditions.

Cleveland Plain Dealer [Ind.]—The currency policy to which the President commits the nation is essentially the policy which, though undefined, it has pursued from March 4. It is a policy that, while looking definitely in the direction of inflation, employs none of the inflationary weapons which the Thomas rider places at the President's disposal. At the same time it is a policy which at least does lip service to the sound money and preservation of the public credit.

Dallas, Tex., News [Ind.-Dem.]—With nearly all of the country's gold in the treasury and a gold market established, the so-called devaluation has arrived. All that remains to be done is the announcement and the stabilization that the President in due time will make.

Des Moines, Ia., Register [Ind.]—Apparently the "managed dollar" program is intended as another ace up the President's sleeve. Whether the promise of a fluctuating currency, rather than a currency definitely valued as to gold will reassure business and bring the hoped for increases in commodity prices remains to be seen.

Kansas City Star [Ind.]—The real test of the commodity dollar toward which the country now is heading will come with the methods applied in its use. The task is to reconcile a reiterated policy of sound money with the inflationary program now announced.

Philadelphia Inquirer [Rep.]—While his "managed dollar" scheme leaves a good many persons confused as to his exact meaning, there is not a single sentence in what the President had to say that can be twisted into advocacy of currency inflation.

Portland [Ore.] Oregonian [Ind.]—The President's announcement that establishment of a gold market is the first step toward the compensated dollar as a permanent monetary policy assumes an assured leadership on his part not likely to be borne out in this particular if the experiment fails to rescue prices from below cost of production in those industries, such as agriculture, that represent great vote blocks.

St. Paul Minn. Pioneer Press [Ind.]—The price of gold henceforth will be particularly the same as though there were a free market as in London. An increased price of gold cheapens money, because gold represents more dollars. Cheaper money theoretically means higher prices for all commodities. In view of the strong sentiment for currency inflation among the farmers, no new departure in the field of money reform could be more calculated to support the President's appeal for further patience and confidence.

New York Herald-Tribune [Rep.]—Normally such an undertaking would be embarked upon only after long and careful study and debate, and the taking of much expert testimony. the voters and their legislators would have a chance to pass upon it. Mr. Roosevelt not only scorned these normal processes; he did not even think it worth while to dignify his proposed departure from established monetary principles by a special message to the American people. Instead, he dismissed the whole plan in a few ambiguous catch-phrases at the very end of a general discussion of the recovery effort.

New York Times [Ind.]—Mr. Roosevelt's concluding remark, in his radio broadcast of Sunday, taken as a declaration of policy in the plain meaning of the language, was undoubtedly reassuring. His promise that "government credit will be maintained" and that "a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level" is a clear repudiation of the fiat-money agitation and, more particularly, of the demand of Senator Norris and his fellow-inflationists that maturing government obligations be paid off in paper money printed for the purpose.

PLAN MARDI GRAS OF BEAUTY TO BE HELD ON DEC. 13

Plans for a "beautyland mardi gras" to be held Dec. 13 were formulated last night by 40 officers and directors of the Beauty Culture Code association, who met at the Palmer house to view various styles of hairdress exhibited by several of the 350 models expected to participate in the beauty show.

Mrs. Maybelle Long wore the "Windy City bob," while another model, Miss Catherine Finger, daughter of Joseph Finger, treasurer of the association, showed a new style of curls which is to be known as the "ringlet of a century bob."

Members of the association, which is composed of owners of 350 beauty shops in Chicago and suburbs, also discussed plans for the establishment of minimum prices and uniform hours for their shops. Henry Wilhelm, vice president of the association, said they were endeavoring to have rules governing those conditions incorporated in the code which applies to their industry.

HULL ASSERTS U. S. AIMS OPEN WAY TO UNITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull tonight assured the nations of the world that the Roosevelt recovery moves were not incompatible with "permanent international economic program." The statement by the secretary of state was considered particularly significant here because of the effect some experts believe the President's new monetary plans will have on the French fight to maintain the gold standard and on British trade.

Secretary Hull also endeavored to quiet any fears business may have over a highly national economic policy by saying that the knowledge that the administration contemplated "a broader course" would create confidence.

"There is not and in no circumstances should be," Secretary Hull said, "any ultimate material conflict between an emergency domestic economic program for depression relief, such as that of the Roosevelt administration, and a permanent international economic program. The former should be prosecuted to the utmost as the chief immediate factor in business recovery, while as a nation thus emerges from the depression the base of our economic structure can be gradually broadened by the addition of the mutually beneficial methods of international economic coöperation. The adoption of this latter program can only be brought about by degrees over a period of years."

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST
Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate . . .
What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

A Discovery that's Bringing Fast Relief to Millions

Now comes quick, amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia. Relief often in a few minutes . . . the fastest, safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. Hence starts "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headaches, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And Safe Relief—GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN does not harm the heart.

When you buy, though, see that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always to say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

GOLD BLOC SEES U. S. MONEY DEAL WITH THE BRITISH

French "Pleased" with Roosevelt Statement.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A more stable American dollar was foreseen and welcomed today by French monetary and economic authorities as a result of President Roosevelt's speech last night, but some criticized as "inadequate" his gold buying and industrial value monetary program.

Spokesmen for the gold bloc nations, who fought for stabilized currencies during the world economic conference last summer, said they were greatly pleased with the American President's announcement that a government market for gold would be established.

These spokesmen said the gold bloc had been seeking to end dollar fluctuations and hoped President Roosevelt would succeed in his plans. They added, however, that they were not familiar with all details of the project.

See Understanding with Britain.

One representative expressed the gold bloc's belief that there is already some understanding concerning the British equalization fund, and pointed out that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross of the British treasury is now in Washington.

Others pointed out that the six gold bloc currencies [of France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Holland] had strengthened since their agreement to stay on gold, and that the American action was expected to reënforce them.

Dr. Robert Eisler, a noted Austrian monetary expert, who will sail for the United States Wednesday to study the situation, said that "Mr. Roosevelt's gold plan is exactly what is needed to give the farmer dollar wheat in due time."

The dollar closed today at 17.86 francs [5.59 cents to the franc], after opening at 17.90 francs [5.58 cents] and touching, at one point, 17.65 francs [5.66 cents] in a rush of short selling.

British Express Satisfaction.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—That the real test of President Roosevelt's new monetary program will lie in the steps he takes to put it into effect was the consensus of opinion tonight of the British financial and economic world.

The President's plan, they believed, combines the commodity dollar with variations of a managed currency project and, according to financiers and economists who interpreted the program in the light of their own theories, can be received with great satisfaction.

Financial circles received news of the scheme calmly and, although the American dollar depreciated from $4.53 in relation to the pound to an unofficial close at $4.64, saw in the President's statement no reason for a violent reaction.

The opinion was expressed that a relatively free gold market will be created with the gold price for American paper money and that an American equalization fund will be set up. Reaction to the project was, pending further information, cautious but generally sympathetic.

Berlin Reaction Mixed.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Financial writers for Berlin newspapers predicted a variety of results today from President Roosevelt's new monetary plan.

Probably, said the Deutsche Zeitung, the President will not adopt an extreme course, but will act as necessity dictates.

The paper added that banks might not be enthusiastic and that the American executive already had seen the wisdom of not promising quick benefits.

The Boersen Courier said that, while many points remained obscure, such as the implications of a managed currency, dollar movements could not be predicted and Mr. Roosevelt had left the inflation question open.

Likened to British Fund.

How governmental control of the gold market will work out time alone will show, the Courier held. It added that probably such a move would function like the Bank of England's exchange equalization fund.

The Tageblatt, on the other hand, did not think the United States would resort to an open gold market as did England, but believed a recent rise in the dollar caused by the European disarmament crisis was considered very inconvenient by Mr. Roosevelt, who therefore sought new means to counteract like courses in the future.

Reichsbank officials said they had no comment to make because they wanted to study the project more thoroughly. Other official sources, too, were reticent about expressing opinions.

Seen as Move to Stabilization.

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's gold pronouncements generally were viewed in the league of nations circles today as a gradual move toward a stabilized currency.

League experts hesitated to interpret Mr. Roosevelt's speech on the basis of the abstracts received here, but they believed the United States was swinging to the gold policy hitherto observed by Great Britain.

These experts thought the President's move means that if there is a speculative or a bear raid against the dollar, the Reconstruction Finance corporation will step in to break it. If, however, the dollar shows a tendency to depreciate because of a rise in prices, these quarters believe that tendency would not be resisted.

BANKS ARE SUED BY COUNTY FOR $750,000 TAXES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $562,017, making a total of $80,561,414 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act became effective on April 28. The day's collection of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Oct. 23	$ 22,361	$ 53,813
Uncollected	16,890,428	44,976,032
	1930.	1931.
Oct. 23	$ 117,334	$ 368,509
Uncollected	71,487,544	73,710,228

The day's collection of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $1,701.

Assistant State's Attorney Manuel Cowen filed suits yesterday in the Circuit court to collect delinquent personal property taxes totaling about $750,000 from 41 banks and trust companies in Cook county. Many of the banks sued are closed or inactive at present. The largest claim, for $273,426, is against the Central Trust Company of Illinois, whose banking business has been taken over by the City National Bank and Trust company.

County Treasurer McDonough began his twenty-sixth week of procedure under the Kerner-Skarda act by filing 15 more tax receivership petitions in the County court. The properties named in the suits owe $17,975 taxes.

BOY FROM SOUTH BREAKS WINDOW TO GET WARM!

John Seymour, 20 years old, of Birmingham, Ala., where the breezes are not as cold as up north, had a grand idea last night as he stood outside a store window in Wabash avenue near Madison street. He threw a piece of pipe through the window. Then he waited to be arrested by Traffic Policeman Syhan J. Downes. "Lock me up, officer," he said, explaining that he had broken the window, "and please lock me up in a nice warm cell. Birmingham was never as cold as this."

TWO HELD AS ROBBERY SUSPECTS.

Alfred Urbcouski, 19 years old, 2059 West 22d street, and Frank Jaeger, 21 years old, 2041 West 23d street, were arrested yesterday as suspects in the $45 robbery of Joseph Ruzga, 3310 Auburn avenue.

FARMERS' LEADERS EXPRESS VIEWS ON ROOSEVELT SPEECH

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Bits of comment by agricultural leaders of the country on President Roosevelt's Sunday night address to the people:

Gov. William Langer, North Dakota—I can see nothing but the most bitter disappointment on the part of the farmers of this state in President Roosevelt's speech.

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska—Very well pleased. A man who is thus willing to admit his mistakes when they occur and who claims nothing superhuman is a man we can all trust. I still believe the President will find it necessary to expand the currency.

John Bosch, Atwater, Minn., vice president National Farmers' Holiday association—Sounded just like Hoover.

Gov. Charles Bryan, Nebraska—Fine resumé of his plans for bringing better economic conditions. . . . It is not increased credit we need but an increase in the amount of basic currency.

Gov. Henry Horner, Illinois—A simple, direct, and forceful statement of progress. . . . Illinois farmers realize the way to higher prices for their products is through the program outlined by the President.

MRS. LEITER'S CLAIM FOR TAX REFUND DENIED

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday disallowed a claim for an income tax refund of $8,160 made by Mrs. Juliette Leiter of Washington, D. C., widow of Joseph Leiter. Mr. Leiter paid a tax of $113,883 for 1921. The refund was sought on the ground that money received by him as a trustee of the estate of his father, Levi Z. Leiter, was an expense account and should not have been considered as income.

BANDIT GETS $200 IN FIRST ROBBERY ON FAIR GROUNDS

The first robbery on the World's Fair grounds took place shortly before midnight last night. Irwin Sass of Downers Grove, a money changer in the lavatory near 31st street and the Indian village, was the victim. He was sitting in an anteroom when the robber threw red pepper into his eyes. "Don't move; I've got you covered," the robber warned. Then he took Sass' money box, containing $200 in small change. Sass notified the exposition office and within five minutes Lieut. Ernest Schondorf had all gates guarded. It was impossible to find the thief, however, because Sass did not get a good view of him.

PEEK FORECASTS GOLD PLAN WILL RESCUE FARMER

Tells Strikers Not to Fight Friends.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A new economic era in which money shall cease to dominate commodity prices and sink to its proper level as a means of exchange is forecast by the President's new monetary policy, in the opinion of George N. Peek, head of the agricultural adjustment administration.

The radio speech in which President Roosevelt last night outlined his plan for a managed currency and promised renewed efforts to raise agricultural prices should be "very reassuring" to the farmer, Mr. Peek declared today.

"If the farmer wants to fight, let him fight his enemies and not his friends," was the message sent to the clamorous, striking farmers of the grain and live stock belt by the man in charge of the agricultural side of the recovery program.

Mr. Peek believes that the farmer got what he was demanding—an answer to his complaint that industrial prices have gone up with the help of the NRA, while farm prices have yet to rise to a parity level because of the necessarily slower progress of the AAA.

Expects Early Rise in Prices.

He predicted that since farm commodities respond more quickly to manipulation of the monetary system than industrial commodities, the expected general rise of all prices will see the prices of farm products move the faster and approach nearer to the level of equality with the prices of the goods the farmer has to buy.

"By the time the industrial prices begin to catch up," said Mr. Peek, "the AAA program will have progressed to a point where its leverage will work forcefully to complete the work of attaining parity.

"That's what some of us have been talking about for the past dozen years," said the farm administrator in discussing the plan to build up commodity prices through gradual enhancement of the price of gold, and then peg the value of the dollar in terms of commodities.

"Money," he said, "should represent the fair exchange value of commodities and not determine the price of commodities."

"We have also felt," said Mr. Peek, "that with only slightly more than 7 per cent of our commerce going abroad, the remaining 93 per cent should not be tied up with an international dollar. If we can control the domestic value of the dollar we could have a pretty good time in this country on our 93 per cent, almost without regard to the rest of the world."

In the President's speech, Mr. Peek said, the validity of a fair exchange value between industry and agriculture was again recognized.

4 McCOOEY AIDS DESERT, BUT HE REMAINS BOSS

Bolters Control Largest Districts in Brooklyn.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—John H. McCooey, Democratic boss of Brooklyn, faced his executive committee today after several postponements and had it out with the insurgents who started a revolt against him when Joseph V. McKee entered the mayoralty contest as an independent.

The revolt practically collapsed today, although four leaders of big districts were absent and a fifth, Jerome Ambro of the Nineteenth, spoke out in meeting against McCooey. But nineteen of the 24 district leaders in the borough stood with McCooey, and he remains county boss with his prestige somewhat but not dangerously impaired. He predicted Mayor John P. O'Brien would carry Brooklyn and be reelected with the Tammany ticket.

Secret Meeting Lasts an Hour.

The meeting lasted an hour. Mr. McCooey had been unable to attend two previous gatherings because of illness, and the sessions had been adjourned because of his wish to preside if any one wanted to start something.

Ambro was the only one of the revolters to attend. He has been against McCooey and Tammany for two years and ran independently for mayor in the September primary. He went after McCooey, but the meeting was closed and what he said was not made public.

The absentee leaders were Frank Quayle of the First, regular nominee for sheriff; Kenneth Sutherland of the Sixteenth, dismissed recently from his position in the board of aldermen; Postmaster Frank Sinnott of the Twenty-second, and Hyman Shornstein of the Twenty-third, the largest Jewish district in the city. All four came out for McKee two or three weeks ago.

Big Hole in McCooey Figures.

Those four leaders with Ambro represent nearly one-quarter of the voting strength of the borough, as their's are the largest districts. If they are successful in holding their districts for McKee their vote will make a big hole in the McCooey figures on election night.

Mr. McKee made known today that he was promised Republican party support for mayor as a fusionist this year if he would not take part in the national campaign last year on behalf of President Roosevelt.

The definite proposition was put up to him by W. Kingsland Macy, state chairman, Mr. McKee said.

Again bringing the name of the President into the municipal campaign, Mr. McKee stressed the importance of the national political issue in this contest. He asserted that the only reason Ogden L. Mills and the old guard Republican leaders have come into the contest is to build up the Republican machine for their future purposes.

Charges Fight on Lehman.

Mr. McKee made the specific charge that the Republicans are backing La Guardia to bring about the defeat of Gov. Herbert Lehman next year and put the state in line for the party in 1936.

"Mr. Kingsland Macy has so far stood in the background, but we know he is actively supporting La Guardia," Mr. McKee said. "Why? With the same motive that actuates the others of his reactionary group. What he is interested in is not the welfare of New York City, but the defeat of Gov. Lehman, and anything he can do to weaken and lower the prestige of President Roosevelt, and I know what I am talking about when I say that, because last fall, when the question of my nomination was being considered, I received a direct message from Mr. Macy that he would support me as a candidate for mayor provided I took no active part in the campaign for the election of President Roosevelt.

"What actuated Mr. Macy then actuates him now, and is the reason for the rally of Republican leaders to the support of a candidate they do not believe in," Mr. McKee said.

La Guardia Drops Personalities.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, the fusion candidate for mayor, abandoned personalities in his campaign speeches and devoted himself to specific promises of constructive effort in the administration of city affairs in the event of his election. Apparently he was heedful of the widespread protest of Jewish leaders, including Gov. Lehman, Felix M. Warburg, Henry Morgenthau, and Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, against the introduction of the religious issue in the campaign. A condemnatory note over the introduction of the religious issue was also sounded in many city synagogues during the services on Saturday.

Mr. La Guardia spoke before the Women's National Republican club. He devoted himself to a discussion of the various departments of the city government and told what he would do with them if elected.

Abolish Duplicate Offices.

First, he said, he would seek to abolish the unnecessary and duplicate duties of county officers. Eventually, he said, such offices will be discontinued, but meanwhile they can be trimmed down in personnel to a mere skeleton of what they are today. He then went into a discussion of the city government, department by department, emphasizing that, if elected, he would choose as head of each department a specialist, if necessary, irrespective of party.

EXONERATED

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Hilda Perse, 26 years old, 4926 Sheridan road, who fatally stabbed Emmanuel Buxbaum, 42 years old, 5054 Winthrop avenue, a taxicab driver, was exonerated yesterday by a coroner's jury which returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. Witnesses said that Buxbaum was drunk and made insulting remarks to Mrs. Perse as she sat at a table in a café at 1007 Argyle street. Mrs. Perse testified that the cab driver struck her several times before she seized a knife and stabbed him.

ASK IMMEDIATE LINKING OF SAG, CALUMET RIVERS

Others Join Chicago in Plea for Ship Channel.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Taking exception to war department engineers' report, representatives of Chicago and central states' organizations today proposed immediate construction of the connecting waterway between great lakes and Illinois waterway via Calumet-Sag route.

The hearing was predicated on a report by the engineers which declares they were favorable to adoption of a plan looking untimately toward such connection, but declaring that the transportation savings would not be justified until substantial support is forthcoming from local interests.

A 35 Foot Clearance.

Alderman A. G. Lindell, Chicago, proposed that the government not only build a 300 foot channel from Lake Calumet, now the harbor on Lake Michigan, to Lockport, Ill., on the Illinois waterway, but also adjust all bridges to a 35 foot minimum clearance.

Locklan Macceley, St. Louis, executive vice president of the Mississippi Valley association, told the engineers that inasmuch as Chicago has spent $93,000,000 on the maintenance and improvement of the present Chicago river waterway and the sanitary district $83,000,000, he believed this was sufficient indication of considerable local sentiment.

Wants to Make Thorough Job.

Representative Moynahan insisted that Chicago previously had opposed any waterway which would reduce use of the Chicago river, but now is in favor of diverting river traffic from Lockport to the Calumet outlet. He said:

"While we are about it let us make a thorough job of this. Let us make the waterway a good 300 feet wide with a 35 foot minimum clearance at each bridge.

"The Calumet, Gary, Indiana Harbor, lake ports, handle more tonnage than goes through the Panama canal in any year."

British Baronet 95 Yrs. Old; Spurns Congratulations

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Sir Benjamin Parnell, believed to be Great Britain's oldest baronet, refused to be congratulated on his 95th birthday yesterday. "I don't like to be reminded of birthdays," he said; "they make me feel too old." Sir Benjamin, a veteran of the Punjab who lost both arms in the Sikkim expedition in 1889, is in good health.

THREATEN SUITS OVER INDIVIDUAL TAX REDUCTIONS

Jacobs, Appeals Board Again in Conflict.

It was indicated from two sources yesterday that the Supreme court did not settle all of the governmental confusion arising out of the board of tax appeals' order reducing 1931 assessments on homes and small flat buildings when, on Saturday, it ordered the board to expunge the order.

The Supreme court's ruling, given on a rehearing, applied only to the blanket cut which affected more than 400,000 properties in the county. In addition to ordering this blanket cut, held illegal by the court, the board of tax appeals also granted individual 15 per cent reductions to some 72,000 home owners who, through distrust of the legality of the blanket order or for other reasons, filed complaints with the board.

Refuse to Enter Reductions.

Assessor Jacobs has said that he will not enter the reductions ordered for these property owners. Hayden N. Bell, head of the civil law department of the state's attorney's office, has backed him with an opinion in the matter, holding that the appeals board cannot do by indirection, in individual cases, what the Supreme court forbade it to do directly, through its blanket order.

Fred W. Brummel, member of the appeals board, said yesterday, however, that his attorneys have advised him that the individual reductions, far from being an indirect act, were a direct exercise of the legal powers of the board. If the assessor persists in his refusal to enter the reductions, the board will probably seek to force such action through a writ of mandamus or other court proceeding.

A second threat of legal action in case Assessor Jacobs does not enter the reduction orders came from William F. Stelzer, president of the Cook County Civic council, an organization of neighborhood taxpayers' associations.

Threatens Suit for Taxpayers.

Before the executive committee of the Chicago recovery administration, of which he and Assessor Jacobs are both members, Stelzer appealed for such action, and added:

"I believe that the assessor, the board of tax appeals and other public officials can get together and put this reduction into effect for those who filed objections to their assessments. Unless it is given to them I intend to apply to the courts for reconsideration of the whole matter."

One suggestion made yesterday by a member of the appeals board staff was that if the assessor refuses to enter the appeal board's orders, the taxpayers affected might file objections in the County court. Under a law effective this year they must pay 75 per cent of their tax bills before they can file such objections.

WARN OF DANGER OF BOOTLEG IN HIGH LICENSES

Professors Are Heard by Liquor Commission.

Two university professors warned the Illinois liquor control commission yesterday against proposing regulations that would perpetuate bootlegging and the political corruption of both the prohibition and preprohibition days. The professors, A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university and Marshall E. Dimock of the University of Chicago, spoke before the commission at its final public hearing, held in the county board meeting room.

State Senator Harold G. Ward, chairman, announced at the close of the hearing that definite plans of liquor control would be considered in an executive session on Saturday and that agreement upon a plan would be reached in time for submission to a special session of the legislature next month. Prohibition repeal is expected to become effective on Dec. 6.

Favors State Monopoly.

Prof. Dimock said his studies and those of the Rockefeller commission both in this country and abroad demonstrated that no plan of liquor control will prevent the political evils of the traffic except a state monopoly, which he outlined along the lines of the Quebec system, with liquor commission stores and drinking allowed on premises only where the sale of liquor is not the primary object of business.

"Without a monopoly the problems of enforcement are almost insuperable," said Prof. Dimock. "The political evils of the liquor traffic cannot be eradicated so long as there is an incentive to profit. Neither can bootlegging be defeated without a strong, unified organization with complete control over the liquor traffic."

The professor said that the Americans demanded conviviality with their drinking and this demand would have to be satisfied by permitting the sale of liquor in hotels, restaurants, clubs, and similar establishments under strict regulations.

Danger of High License Fees.

Prof. Hatton expressed the opinion that the greatest danger of liquor regulations is a high license, which, he said, would force the retailer to push sales to make a living, thereby promoting intemperance. He also warned of the bootlegging evil arising from excessive licenses.

"The legislature should not make the mistake," said Prof. Hatton, "of attempting to use regulations primarily for revenue rather than control of the traffic in the social interest."

Prof. Hatton was asked by Commissioner Ralph M. Shaw whether the legislature should adopt regulations that would permit the re-establishment of the old time saloons.

"No, but I'm afraid that's what the legislature is going to do," he replied.

"It would be a good idea," the professor continued, "if the commission could stand the pressure, to limit the sale of liquor for consumption on the premises to hotels, clubs, and restaurants, but the bar is an American institution. In Europe people sit down to do their drinking, but in America, probably because of great rush and desire for an immediate effect, we like to step up to a bar and put our foot on the rail."

Presents Control Plan.

A plan, adopted by both the Chicago and Illinois hotel associations after an extensive study and conferences with professors, clergymen, labor officials, business men and American Legion leaders, was presented by Ernest Byfield of the Hotel Sherman.

It calls for state and local commissions. The power of the latter would be limited to recommending the granting of licenses. Beer, wine and spirits would be sold [1] by the drink exclusively for consumption on the premises in full view of the public and [2] in package form exclusively for consumption off the premises. There would be both beer and wine-spirits licenses, to be used separately or in conjunction, and manufacturers could not engage in retail business except the selling of packages by breweries.

A conference of representatives of middle west states on interstate problems of liquor control, called by Gov. Herring of Iowa, will be held in Des Moines on Thursday. Chairman Ward said five of the Illinois commissioners —himself, Mr. Shaw, A. L. Smith, Conrad Poppenhusen, and John P. Harding—and William Biesel, secretary, would attend.

HER HIGH HEELS OWN RISK, SAYS COURT IN SUIT

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—If a woman wearing high heels falls in descending a stairway on a fishing boat, she has only herself to blame, Judge Grover M. Moscowitz ruled today in United States District court, Brooklyn. He dismissed a $75,000 suit brought by Mrs. Agnes Hudson who sought compensation for injuries received on June 1, 1932.

"This woman wore shoes with heels that were between three and four inches high," Judge Moscowitz observed in his decision. "She is a woman of 5 feet 5¾ inches, weighing 160 pounds, and 54 years of age. I am sure that a woman on occasion may wear such heels but certainly it is negligence for a heavy-set woman unaccustomed to boats to descend a stairway on a fishing boat when she is wearing heels of such a height. The accident was her own fault."

HERE'S HAPPINESS!

The happiness of knowing your teeth and gums have every protection a dentifrice can give, with Squibb's on guard at The Danger Line ★!

DON'T let scare-lines throw you into a panic. Pyorrhea, bleeding gums and other perils need not worry you if your mouth has complete, balanced protection. With regular care by your dentist—and Squibb's Dental Cream guarding The Danger Line—you can laugh at threats.

Squibb's cleans effectively and polishes safely, with absolute freedom from grit. It prevents bleeding of the gums by safe cleansing —not by the use of dangerous astringents. It combats the germ acids that cause tooth-decay. And its use is true economy.

It's a pleasure, not a task, to brush your teeth twice a day with Squibb Dental Cream. You'll like its delightfully clean, refreshing taste. And because it is a Squibb Product you can rely on its sure effectiveness and safety.

★The Danger Line is the area where the thin edge of the gum encircles each tooth, forming tiny ledges, difficult to reach by brushing. Here food particles collect and bacteria multiply, generating acids. Not one, but all your teeth are endangered by unhealthy gums. When you use Squibb's Dental Cream, you force into the sheltered areas countless antacid particles which combat the germ acids and protect the gums.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE PRESIDENT ON THE FUTURE.

President Roosevelt's quality of infectious optimism and confidence goes out over the air without any impairment traceable to the medium of communication. No one else in his administration can use the radio with such advantage and the difference is not measured by the fact that one speaker is the President and another may be his appointee. It is not in the dignity of the office but in the character of the speaker.

Mr. Roosevelt's addresses to the nation by radio convey to the people the impression that the President has no doubt of the success of the plan of government and society as it is made and executed under his orders, and it is his intent in his talks to inspire the people with the same belief.

Sunday evening's address was timed to deal with some disturbing symptoms. Mr. Wallace has a farm revolt on his hands. Gen. Johnson's codes have started more labor troubles apparently than they have allayed. The government has pledged itself to give work and better wages to all. Agitators know that they are dealing now with public officials and not with private employers—in other words, with politics which soon faces a congressional campaign in which the new policies will be at stake.

The public works program is not yet satisfactory to people who believe in its theory and have expected everything from its results. They are disappointed and critical. It is becoming clear that private enterprise is marking time, uncertain of the future, and, being largely under government control, submitting to it for direction and limitation. The government can borrow money and finds satisfaction in this, as an indorsement of purpose, but private enterprise does not want credit, retrenches rather than expands, and the investor gives his money to the government because he does not trust anything else.

No man knows what his money will be worth and the President's announcement that when the desired price level has been reached the dollar will be controlled by a managed gold market does not indicate anything for the present. A managed currency following prices with precision for all time and never giving an advantage to debtor or creditor is in the theorists' blue print for civilized man's escape forever from the terrors of uncontrolled prices and the ruin of values, but such a currency is vague magic to the average man trying to figure his future in the terms of profit and loss.

Mr. Roosevelt is confident. The directions taken will be pursued. If the progress meets with obstacles more force will be thrown into the advance. The government embraces everything in its plans. It assumes full responsibility for the individual welfare of the American citizens. Such responsibility requires full authority. The government makes itself answerable to every person in the land. It can do so only upon the assumption that every person is equally answerable to the government. The minutia of American life is swept into the operation of a government which concerns itself with the working of every detail important to the results it undertakes to produce.

Mr. Roosevelt asks for hope and help. No administration before this has ever voluntarily put itself in the position of trustee for the future of all the people of the country. The adventure is momentous. The stakes are beyond speculation or calculation.

BEFUDDLED NEW YORK.

When Tammany built a tax fire under the stock exchange and threatened to drive the business over to Jersey City it was apparent that a state of mind existed and that thereafter anything could be expected. It is not wholly clear who were bluffing the most, the brokers with their exodus or Tammany with its taxes, but Tammany took the call and backed down. Distraction in finances often precedes distraction in politics, and that New York now has. Tammany is divided against itself, and La Guardia, fusion candidate, has the support of distinguished Republicans who a year ago regarded him as utter confusion.

When Ogden Mills was secretary of the treasury and Mr. La Guardia was a radical in congress, no two men were less often on the same side of the street. They represented two extremes of political and social idea, but such a hodge podge is New York politics now that Mr. Mills is a devoted supporter of Mr. La Guardia, and so also are Mr. Mills' associates in the Republican party.

Mr. Mills has not explained what has reconciled the old line to the new idea. The observer must guess. One guess might be that there has been such a sweep of idea since March 4 that the radical Republican is now considered a solid conservative by the outflanked old line. Another is that Tammany has become so hopeless, with New York a half step ahead of bankruptcy, that any escape from it will be sought at any price. Then again the old liners may think it a good stroke of business to give the radical a city job to occupy him in the hope that responsibilities and burdens will tame wild horses. It's oftener than not a hope that knocks itself out in the first round.

PURCHASE OF THE CANAL.

The proposal that the federal government shall purchase the drainage canal has found in Sanitary Trustee Howard Elmore, Republican, its most vigorous champion. But we suggest that the leaders of local Democracy owe it to the community to give it much more effective support than has yet appeared in their party. The Democratic sanitary trustees did in fact indorse Mr. Elmore's resolution, but no citizen who has considered the merits of the proposal will be satisfied with merely lip service. The Democratic party has both senators and a majority of the Illinois delegation in the house of representatives. It has the governor and the mayor of Chicago, and its party leaders can exercise, presumably, a considerable influence upon the federal policy and action now in the control of their party. In this situation responsibility lies heavy upon them for any failure to procure the consideration which so important, just and beneficial a project deserves. The honors are now with the Republican trustee, Mr. Elmore, and we are sure that when the public realizes as it will the merit of the proposal he has put into official form and admirably urged, Democratic indifference, if it continues, will be resented. The proposal in fact should have the most vigorous and insistent support of the community leadership, press, and public, regardless of party.

In view of the program of recovery launched by the administration the case for federal purchase of the canal is, it seems to us, unanswerable. Over three billion dollars has been voted for public works and if the sum suggested, a hundred million, were applied to this purchase it would be immediately available in pressing the development of the sewage treatment works decreed by the federal court. From the viewpoint of the public works plan this purchase has at least as much merit as any project we know of and much more in our opinion than some more costly and ambitious enterprises for which millions have been spent and are to be spent.

But the proposal needs no support from these emergency program considerations, however strongly it is fortified by them. It can stand upon its own claims as an act of justice to Illinois and of sound, permanent national policy. As an act of public justice it is supported by the fact that under the decree of the federal Supreme court in the diversion case the canal has been deprived of its local character and usefulness in disposing of the city's waste, for which the city must now provide in another way. The function of the canal is henceforth to be that of transportation. It has taken its place as a part of the national system of inland waterways which have always been regarded as federal responsibility. The federal government has spent millions upon millions from its own coffers in the construction and maintenance of this system and without local contribution. The canal is the only important channel to which the federal treasury has contributed nothing. The federal government built the Panama canal at the charge of the taxpayers of the whole nation. It bought the Cape Cod canal and has taken other channels into its system. There is neither equity nor public policy in excluding the Illinois project from the federal system now that by federal policy and federal decree its local function has been canceled and it has become not only a federal waterway but one of the most important in the federal system.

The disposition of Democratic trustees to surrender this strong ground and fall back upon an appeal for a federal loan, of which under the federal works administration ruling seventy per cent must be repaid, is weak and inexcusable. As Mr. Elmore has forcefully protested, that would add an unconscionable burden to the taxpayers whereas the purchase would relieve them and is fully justified by the facts. The community has a right to a vigorous presentment of its just claims to the inclusion of this waterway in the federal system. It should not be penalized for its vision and sacrifice in establishing it at its own expense. The local benefit which provided only one of the motives for its initiative has now been abolished by federal decree, but the larger use remains and it is by policy and precedent a federal concern. The canal should be purchased by the national government and maintained by it for what it is, one of the great links of the federal system of inland waterways.

Editorial of the Day

PROFESSOR'S GREAT MOMENT.

[The Baltimore Sun.]

It is the fate of most professors of history to go on for years casting their pearls before half backs who would much rather be out tackling a dummy than in a classroom tackling the theories of Gibbon, Plato, De Tocqueville and Henry George. But Prof. William E. Dodd, now the American ambassador at Berlin, has survived some years of labor in the academic vineyard and on Thursday he indulged that secret ambition of every scholar and told a "practical man of affairs" what was the matter with his régime. Inasmuch as the practical man of affairs is Herr Hitler and inasmuch as thousands, including several Americans, have been beaten up for saying less, Prof. Dodd must be conceded a coup.

There is small probability that Herren Hitler, Göring and Göbbels will send out immediately for sets of Thomas Jefferson's works as a preliminary to restoring freedom of the press, the right to free speech and toleration of Jews. Nevertheless, the lecture will do them no harm, for if there is one thing that dictators and authoritarians need more than anything else it is an occasional reminder that their racket has been tried and has flopped years and years before Mussolini, Hitler, and Primo Rivera [if you recall the name] were ever heard of. In every age a small body of men with a vested interest have sought to torture, persecute and harry the best of humanity into protecting their threatened position. Sometimes they have succeeded for a time, at the expense of everybody else, in maintaining a precarious hold to their advantage, but their eventual surrender has usually been more painful and ruinous than it would have been in the first place.

Academic historians are perhaps the only individuals who remember important facts like these. Most other people rush to join some new phase of the ancient dictatorship racket as if they had come upon a new elixir of life. And the dictator himself is seldom in a mood for lessons from history. If one of the court astrologers makes an inconvenient stellar reading the dictator sends for another "tricker." Which is one of the reasons why it is particularly gratifying that Herr Hitler has been lectured by an old fashioned American Democrat who cannot be thrown into a concentration camp or beaten in a "brown house."

HOW TO KNOW THE WILD RUSKIES.

Now that it seems a fact that we are going to recognize the Soviets the question arises, How are we to do it? It would be very awkward if we failed to know one when we met him and might lead to international complications. The Reds are mighty touchy and it wouldn't do to meet 'em without being able to recognize 'em at a glance. The following simple rules furnished us by our Moscow correspondent, Gimmeski Vodkavitch, should be carefully studied and then memorized. Paste these rules in your hat and consult them whenever you have reason to believe there is a Ruskie in sight. If you know your rules you will recognize him immediately.

RULE 1. Look for thick ample whiskers resembling heavy underbrush in a Virginia swamp. Whiskers do not always mean a Russian; it may be James Hamilton Lewis, the Smith Brothers, or the House of David baseball team. But generally speaking, whiskers mean Russians.

RULE 2. SHIRT TAILS. The Ruskies let 'em flop instead of tucking 'em in. This rule is infallible. The only exceptions are when he hasn't got a shirt.

RULE 3. CAVIAR. The Ruskies are immensely fond of caviar, which is fish eggs and which the Ruskies eat as eagerly as you do hens' eggs. Just as an American can sometimes be told by small bits of hens' egg around his mouth so you can tell a Ruskie by the fish eggs on his chin or sprinkled in his whiskers.

RULE 4. NEECHEVO. A Russian never talks very long without saying "neechevo," which means "never mind," or "what's the use?" or "why worry?" If in doubt lest the person you suspect is a Ruskie talk a while and the minute he says "neechevo" give him a hug and yell "brahtski"! which means "brotherovitch"!

RULE 5. THE RUSSIAN SPEECH. Quite different from German, Spanish, French, Sioux, Chinese, or Oxford English. Listen carefully and if the speech hurled at you by a stranger sounds like a cookstove going through a plate glass window and exploding in a tinware store, it's Russian.

RULE 6. THEIR COLLARS BUTTON IN THE BACK. A clever stratagem invented by Ivan the Terrible, one of the greatest of the czars, who by this simple device fooled the armies who opposed him. They couldn't tell whether his soldiers were advancing or retreating.

CREED.

What can my way of living be, you ask:
It's made up, dear, of inconsistencies.
Loving the truth, I hide behind a mask;
Loving the wines of life, I drink the lees.
Believing not in miracles divine,
Idolatrous altars inspire me.
Longing for independence to be mine,
I seek the shelter of arms about me.
I put my trust in those whose souls are small.
For some small bit of beauty they may give
Knowing before they'll hurt me when they fall,
Taking the food of love by which I live.
No middle path, but ecstasy or pain,
I fall and rise and fall to rise again.

THE HAND IN CLASSICAL ART.

It has been said that few artists paint the human hand satisfactorily to themselves, the subjects of the portraits, the critics, the general public, or the anatomists. However, they seem to be improving and there is hope that the shortcoming may be mastered. Portraits painted within the last 100 years are far better than those of 400 years ago, so far as depicting the hand goes.

In A Century of Progress collection in the Art Institute of Chicago the pictures painted 500 years ago had hands that, in the main, were caricatures. The fingers were exceedingly long, without the proper shape, and all out of proportion. Many of the artists appear to have had a stock hand in shape, size, and position, and this apparently was attached to the figure merely to fill in a certain section of the canvas. In some of the paintings the fingernails are very peculiar in length and breadth.

There is no evidence of disease of either the hands or the nails shown in these pictures. The peculiarities are partly the result of poor drawing. Doubtless the artist was thinking particularly of the scene, the story, or the facial expression, and regarded the hands as of no importance. They are partly the result of the choice of models.

The great bulk of the people of these countries in that day had to do hard manual labor and their hands must have shown it. Doubtless the ordinary hand had short, broad, stubby, and often crooked fingers and the joints were enlarged. Long, tapering fingers are evidence that the owner does not do manual labor. They often mean that he is of a family whose members have led lives of physical ease for a few generations. The subjects chosen for the painting and the models selected by the artists are unquestionably in part responsible for the slender hands portrayed.

Modern artists are much more given to painting the proletariat. They are or were realists. The people they painted often had gnarled and twisted hands. The bones of the fingers were enlarged. Particularly were the finger joints made up of knobbed and enlarged heads of bones. In some of the modern portraits it can be surmised that the gnarling of the fingers is the result of arthritis and not the product of manual labor.

Some of these finger deformities are due to gouty tophi placed near the joints. Most of them are the result of the mild deforming arthritis that is prevalent in the fingers and hands of old ladies. One portrait of an elderly, well fed matron, probably a woman of position whose family had risen in the world since her youth, shows arthritis of this type rather than the hand deformities which result from hard labor. The deformity consists principally of enlargement of the heads of the bones of her fingers, causing the region to be large and knobby.

FLAT BINDER IS BETTER.

E. M. B. writes: My 1 year old baby has a congenital umbilical hernia and wears a truss. I have been careful with her and the hernia has not come out since the truss was put on. I think it would if it had the opportunity. Occasionally the navel becomes red and there is a slight exudate from it.

1. Do you suppose that this is caused by friction? The baby is active.
2. What are the chances of an infection setting in? I can't see any broken skin or the cause for the exudate.
3. What should the treatment be?
4. If the hernia has not healed by now what are the chances that it will heal?

REPLY.

1. Among possible contributing causes are friction, decomposing secretions, infection. It is unimportant. Cure is not difficult.
2. No chance of any serious infection.
3. Cleanliness and use of dusting powder.
4. Umbilical hernias in babies generally heal. The truss pad should not bore in much. As a rule a flat binder is better than a truss.

CARBUNCLES.

W. G. G. writes: Some time ago you had an article about carbuncles. My recollection is that you said this trouble was caused by a deficiency or an overindulgence of some parts of the diet.

REPLY.

You have in mind diabetes, too much sugar in the blood, a diet too rich in carbohydrates. This lack of balance is a favorite foundation for the infection which is the immediate cause.

PUFFS UNDER EYES.

V. S. M. writes: 1. What causes puffs under the eyes, especially in the morning?

2. What is the difference between hyperthyroidism and hypothyroidism?

REPLY.

1. Nephritis is often the cause. Heart disease is a possibility. Local acidosis is the cause in most cases.
2. In hyperthyroidism too much secretion is absorbed; in hypothyroidism, too little.

F. N. K. asks: "How can I keep celery for winter use? I have never raised celery before, but this year I have about 400 nice bunches and I am anxious to store them for winter."

Answer: Celery storage is far easier in large quantities, for commercial growers find that a temperature kept almost constantly at 32 degrees Fahrenheit is necessary. The celery is dug but not trimmed up as it would be for immediate use or sale. In large quantities the growers bunch the stalks and put them in crates. The humidity of the air in this storage space should be controlled so that shrinking and spoilage are at a minimum from either too low or too high humidity respectively. It might be more economical for a small grower to sell his crop at harvest and purchase enough for the household as it is needed.

H. R. asks: "Has Wisconsin lost its crown as the leading cheese producing state or does it still lead New York and other states in cheese manufacture?"

Answer: The latest figures available on the nation's cheese production indicate that Wisconsin produced 61 per cent of the domestic cheese in 1932, leading the production of New York by more than six times in quantity. The total Wisconsin cheese production last year was 295,911,000 pounds, principally of five varieties.

LINCOLN'S NATION OF FREEMEN.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The conditions that existed in this country in the year 1838 and those that exist now—today—are quite similar. Ninety-five years ago, in an address before the Young Men's Lyceum of Springfield, Ill., Abraham Lincoln, a young man who then said of himself, "I was born and have ever remained in the most humble walks of life," feared not to call attention to "a something of ill omen" and dared to utter a solemn warning. It does not seem inappropriate to quote, this day, from that address.

Lincoln began his address by saying: "At what point shall we expect the approach of danger? Shall we expect some trans-Atlantic military giant to step across the ocean and crush us at a blow? Never. All the armies of Europe, Asia, and Africa could not, by force, take a drink from the Ohio or make a track on the Blue Ridge in a trial of a thousand years.

"At what point, then, is the approach of danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reaches us it must spring up among us. It cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of freemen we must live through all time or die by suicide." ELEANOR GRIDLEY.

UNCLE SAM'S SCRUPLES.

Mundelein, Ill., Oct. 19.—Your editorial on the Senator Davis case prompts me to say that if an English paper, the London Spectator, for example, should contain a cross word puzzle and the announcement was made that the one whose solution drew the lucky number among the first half-dozen answers received was to have a prize, then both the announcement and the name of the fortunate individual are carefully "blacked" out before the paper is sent to a subscriber in this country. Some one on this side of the water attends to that. Of course, there is only a "Chinaman's chance" that any one here could receive the paper and send back a solution in time to profit by the offer.

Our Uncle Samuel has no scruples about repudiating his promise to redeem his bonds in gold, but the morals of his people must be preserved at all hazards!

CHARLES SHERRILL.

FROM A VISITOR TO THE FAIR.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 2.—The greatest satisfaction I had in a trip to Chicago a week ago was the indication that the world's greatest newspaper is diligent in opposing paternalism. While in the Hall of Science I casually read your well edited paper and was more thrilled with the cartoon in last Tuesday's edition than I was over anything connected with the Exposition.

Some great student declared some years ago, "The best governed nation is the least governed." It is somewhat surprising that all these social experiments are being undertaken by the party which presumably was opposed to all governmental activity in business except that which is most essential.

This was my third trip to Chicago, and it was a revelation in respect to finding the police and citizens uniformly courteous, and an absence of lawlessness which has been associated with Chicago life. T. GRAHAM SCHIMPFF.

THE CONSTITUTIONALISTS.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Your editorial on "Our Neglected Civil Liberties" is of the utmost importance, for our future as a democracy is threatened by the people's ignorance of the constitution and our rights under the constitution and of our obligations to the government.

I feel certain of my observation that the fault lies where you put it, with the teachers in our schools. They are also densely ignorant of political science subjects, and their pupils gain no adequate knowledge of this important relation in life between the citizens and their government. It is very important that the thinking people should awaken to the danger which you point out and should take steps to see that the teachers in our schools are competent and do teach political science in a clear manner.

There is now being organized throughout the whole United States a society to be known as the Constitutionalists, the object of which is to teach constitutional law and political science, to influence school boards to employ competent teachers, and to promote debates in all schools and colleges on this subject.

Those people who are interested in this society by paying a small membership fee will receive two excellent textbooks on the subject, at the same time contributing to the support of this movement. To many persons this will be a very interesting study and also a great pleasure to advance the cause of sound education.

B. V. HUBBARD.

MR. MALOY'S RACKET.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—"An Operator" in today's TRIBUNE certainly makes things clear enough as to the cause of some of the vile conditions existing today in Chicago. Each and every voter should be up in arms, but are we? Is our asinine complacency to be our ruination? Obviously, the man Oser was removed because he dared to object openly to brazen racketeer methods in the union to which he belonged. He was a martyr to justice. How much longer are we going to let these things continue? MRS. J. C.

TREE REMOVED.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—We have a large willow tree in front of our home which is split and cracked in such a way that it is very likely to fall over at any time. If that occurs considerable damage will result. I will appreciate it if you will have this taken care of. F. E. W.

This was a live twenty-four inch willow which had been struck by lightning and left in a rather dangerous condition. The tree has already been removed by our tree crew. WALTER WRIGHT,

Supt., Parks, Recreation, and Aviation.

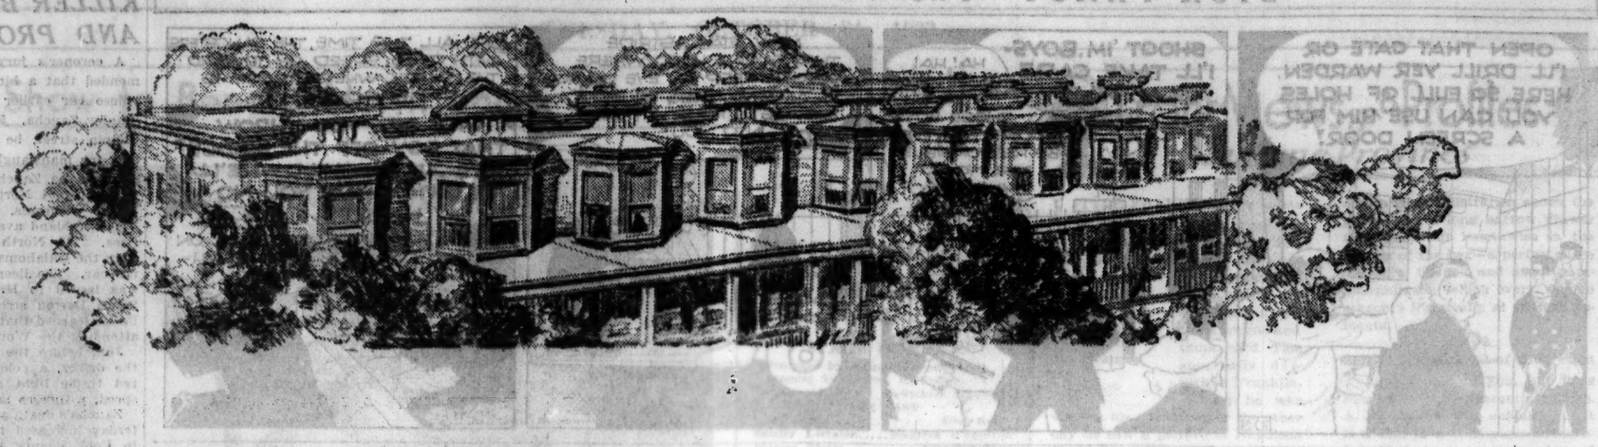
TRUST DEED.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father has a $2,000 first mortgage and did not receive a deed or any legal papers, just the installment notes which are paid every six months with interest. Upon asking party for the deed she said I did not need any (real estate agent). My father lives out of town and I am taking care of his property. Please advise me what I can do to obtain the legal papers. H. P.

The mortgage holder should have the trust deed in his possession in the ordinary case, but if there are several notes in different hands then obviously it is not possible for each noteholder to have the trust deed.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE



If you have something to sell the HOME

Start in PHILADELPHIA where there are thousands more single family dwellings than in any other market in AMERICA

Single family dwellings in America's three largest markets—From 1930 U. S. Census reports

	Single family dwellings
PHILADELPHIA	364,457
NEW YORK CITY	294,037
CHICAGO	209,685

IF you have a product that will add to the comfort and convenience of home living, look into the figures on "single family dwellings" in American markets.

Those are your prime customers .... the single family dwellings–the families with individual homes.

They have a roof to keep in repair; bedrooms and hallways to furnish; bathrooms to modernize; living rooms and dining rooms to renovate; kitchens to equip; porches to furnish, paint and repair; dozens of windows to curtain and screen; painting to do, inside and out.

They have their own basement laundries; their own individual heating plants; and often a garage and a car or two, and a stretch of lawn.

Home is their center of interest. The accumulated needs of the home will be provided for first out of any increased purchasing power.

Philadelphia has more single family dwellings than any other market in America. Seventy thousand more than New York City! One hundred fifty-five thousand more than Chicago!

America's Third Market becomes America's First Market when you have something to sell the home.

Start in Philadelphia!

It is not only the First Market in number of homes, but in advertising economy and effectiveness as well.

The Philadelphia Bulletin is the newspaper of nearly every Philadelphia home. It has been a member of their family group for more than a generation .... A member of their own choosing, for premiums or contests have never been used to obtain readers.

In hundreds of ways The Bulletin touches the daily lives of nearly half a million families. It informs and instructs, entertains and advises, helps them decide where to go and what to do, what to buy and where to buy it.

Today's 499,219 (September average) circulation is two and one-half times that of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, more than any Sunday newspaper, more than all morning newspapers combined.

Start in Philadelphia, where there are more individual homes than in any other city; where you can reach nearly every home with one newspaper....

And where the advertising cost, because of widespread reading interest, is one of the lowest among all newspapers in America.

RAILWAY LABOR CHIEFS PLEDGE AID TO FARMERS

Milo Reno Asserts Rural Strike Is Succeeding.

Milo Reno, militant farm organizer from Des Moines, Ia., president of the National Farm Holiday association, which opened a campaign of "peaceful persuasion" last Saturday in an effort to help distressed farmers, declared last night in Chicago that his plans for withholding farm produce from market had made marked progress in midwestern states.

Reno conferred with A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, and a committee of other railway labor leaders at the Great Northern hotel. He declared that in spite of promises of the federal administration that farmers would be aided this fall farm foreclosures and evictions were still going on. He asked the support of organized labor for a moratorium "until the prices of farm commodities are restored to cost of production levels."

Rail Labor Pledges Aid.

Whitney and his associates announced after a session apart from Reno and other farm holiday leaders that if the farmers were unable to get relief through the farm credit administration or other relief agencies of the government to protect their homes, railway employés would come to their aid.

He characterized railway labor as a "conservative organization." But, he added, when it had exhausted other efforts to protect its rights, railway labor "did not hesitate to resort to more drastic means of enforcing its demands." Whitney's committee issued a statement of sympathy for the farmers in which it was declared that the farmers "had a God given right to strike as a last resort."

One development that drew especial attention was the action of Gov. Olson of Minnesota in telegraphing to Gov. Herring of Iowa asking that a conference of governors of agricultural states be called at once.

Gov. Herring announced at Des Moines that he had written to 15 central western governors to ascertain their attitude toward such a conference. Five governors, he said, already have accepted but no date for the meeting has been set. Those accepting were Governors Olson, Ferguson of Texas, Langer of North Dakota, Schmedeman of Wisconsin, and McNutt of Indiana.

Picketing Begins in Iowa.

Feeble attempts at voluntary picketing of roads to persuade farmers to withhold produce from markets started near Sioux City and at Council Bluffs, Ia., yesterday. Thus far, according to Reno, only six of the 21 state holiday associations covered by the national association have called strikes. The six states involved are Iowa, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Minnesota, and Oklahoma.

Opposition to the holiday has developed in Colorado and Michigan, while many organizations of farmers have voted to oppose strike efforts that interfere with produce marketing.

A survey of the progress of the strike revealed few untoward happenings last night. A slight reduction in shipping was noted in some parts of Iowa. In Wisconsin, in addition to reports of picketing and milk spilling, several dozen small cheese factories were closed. Nebraska reported a decrease in the trucking of live stock to Omaha and a curtailment in grain receipts at the Omaha exchange. A wheat embargo remained in effect in North Dakota.

Reno Addresses Farmers.

Bourbonnais, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Some 2,000 farmers of Kankakee county and surrounding regions tonight listened to a talk by Milo Reno, national farm organizer, and shortly afterward voted to join the farm strike, starting tomorrow.

The farmers met in the gymnasium of St. Viator's college. The main meeting was closely guarded, members requiring two passwords to be admitted. The meeting was held under auspices of the Illinois division of the National Farmers' Union of Kankakee, affiliated with the National Farm Holiday association. Fred Winteroth of Chebansa presided.

MILK WAGON DRIVER HELD TO GRAND JURY AS AN ACID THROWER

Max Meier, a milk wagon driver employed by the Bowman Dairy company, who gave his address as 2435 Winona avenue, was held over to the grand jury yesterday on charges of malicious mischief. His bond was fixed at $5,000 by Judge Thomas Green in the Felony court after Meier had been identified as the man who threw milk bottles containing acid through the windows of the bakery owned by Philip Canesth, 2252 Foster avenue.

Meier denied the charge after Miss Lillian Peterson, clerk in the bakery, had identified him in court.

Canesth testified that the only reason he could assign for such an attack was that he sold milk, bought from the Crescent Dairy company, for 8 cents a quart. He said the acid throwing last week was the sixth attempt since last July to use force to make him stop selling milk at less that the price set by large dealers, and that he had been visited frequently by union milk drivers who told him "it would be better for you if you stop cutting prices."

CUT RATE MILK DEALERS GO "ON TRIAL" THURSDAY

115 Independents to Fight U. S. Case.

BY PAUL POTTER.

An attack upon the alleged unfairness of the federal government's action in establishing a minimum retail price of 10 cents a quart for milk, regardless of whether the milk is delivered to or called for by the customer, is to be made in Washington on Thursday by attorneys for 115 cut rate milk stand operators of Chicago and suburbs.

The cut rate stands, most of which are now charging 8 cents a quart for "cash and carry" milk in defiance of a trade agreement put into force in the Chicago area by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace on Aug. 1, have been ordered to appear Thursday for a "trial" before the agricultural adjustment administration.

Independents Get Notices.

Notices of the public hearing by the AAA, in which this government agency will be prosecutor, judge and jury, were received in Chicago by the cited dairymen yesterday.

"We are taking witnesses and an accumulation of evidence to show the justification for differentials in retail prices of milk," said Joseph Green, attorney for the independents, yesterday.

Most of the 115 milk depots cited by the government are members of the Independent Milk Distributors' Association of Northern Illinois, for which Green is counsel. This organization also has filed in the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington a suit questioning the constitutionality of the farm adjustment act and the powers it has given the secretary of agriculture to supersede regular courts.

Will Hear Entire Group.

The entire group of dairies will be heard at the session on Thursday. According to the terms of the AAA call to the "trial," the revocation of licenses of the dairies violating the milk code is not to be considered, and the defendants expect that the issue will be the right of the government to fix retail prices and the reasonableness of the milk agreement which Secretary Wallace already has put into effect.

FLIPS PENNY 40,000 TIMES, FINDS HEAD AND TAIL ODDS EVEN

Athens, Ga., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Penny flipping odds are about even on heads and tails after 40,000 scientific flips, says Prof. Pope R. Hill of the mathematics department of the University of Georgia, but his experiments have progressed only half way.

Months ago the professor began his flipping. He assembled 200 pennies, a hundred of one date and a hundred of another date. He balanced each penny against the other down to one-thousandth of a gram.

Since they were weighed on chemical balances, Prof. Hill said that, in addition to the heads and tails falls, he would get information on the probability of runs of certain numbers as well as to test the general law of probability.

Prof. Hill expects to flip the pennies for the 100,000th time next July and then his experiment will be completed.

SUPREME COURT TO DECIDE MILK CONTROL APPEAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Supreme court today announced it would decide on its merits the first case to reach it challenging features of industrial recovery legislation. It accepted an appeal by Leo Nebbia challenging the validity of the New York milk control act, and advanced the case for hearing on Dec. 4.

Leo Nebbia, in the City court at Rochester, attacked the New York milk control law, under which the minimum price on milk was fixed at 9 cents a quart. He sold milk at less than that price. The law was sustained by the trial court and Nebbia was fined.

The constitutional questions raised by Nebbia are similar to those involved in cases now pending in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals attacking the validity of the agricultural adjustment act, under which the price of milk has been fixed by the secretary of agriculture in several milk sheds. The cases now pending were brought by milk dealers in Illinois.

DISCORD IN ARMY ALARMS CUBA; 2 SLAIN IN CLASH

New Rebel Activities Are Reported.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 23.—Following on the heels of the departure of two large contingents of Cuban soldiers for Oriente province and renewed reports of rebel groups becoming active, information is received here of serious dissension among the military forces in the central and eastern provinces. It has been confirmed that two soldiers were killed and one seriously wounded in an altercation in the army barracks at Cruces, Santa Clara province, today.

The political situation is quiet, at least on the surface, but student and labor problems continue to plague the government. The situation is believed to be nearing a crisis. If President Grau San Martin's government manages to weather the storm within the next few days, political leaders are of the opinion it will have given a fairly convincing demonstration of its strength.

Cubans Are Alarmed.

Students and laborers are frank in expressing their dissatisfaction with the progress made by the government. They have the support of the A. B. C. radicals, Marianistas, and others groups. A strike among workers and the failure of merchants and manufacturers to pay taxes have not helped the government any, while rumors of preparations for a general strike have created a state of alarm that is demoralizing.

The railroad workers' strike, which has crippled transportation in three provinces, has not changed. Bakers and distributors of bread throughout the island still are refusing to return to work. Workers in the cigar industry, second largest source of government income, this noon decided to strike tomorrow. They are demanding that President Grau resign and give way to a government capable of winning the recognition of the United States and financial assistance.

Students Threaten Revolt.

The students' commission representing the Havana High school today warned President Grau they would "demand through a revolutionary struggle free matriculation for middle and poor class students."

They also demand the "purification" of the faculty and night courses for working students. They warned that they will open the high school Nov. 20 by an uprising in case the government does not take steps to open the school before then.

The students also demanded the release of five arrested students, including two girls of 16 and 19.

Indict Youth on Charge of Setting Factory Afire

Adolph Christel, 20 years old, 4557 Princeton avenue, was indicted yesterday on a charge of arson as a result of his confession that he started a fire on Oct. 16 which did damage estimated between $10,000 and $15,000 to the plant of Wizard, Inc., 5253 65th street, Summit. Christel started the fire, he said, for revenge against officials of the company who had discharged him from his job as a riveter in the plant.

JURY ASKS AUTO KILLER BE FOUND AND PROSECUTED

A coroner's jury yesterday recommended that a hit and run motorist whose car earlier in the day killed Stanley Zaucha, 54 years old, 1301 Chapin street, be apprehended and held for manslaughter. The accident occurred as Zaucha was crossing in front of 1061 North Ashland avenue.

Two witnesses, George Kane, 1051 North Ashland avenue, and Benjamin Bass, 2743 North Richmond street, gave the Oklahoma license number of the car. The license, it was learned, was issued to H. J. Sherman, 2331 South Barton street, Oklahoma City. Police learned that Sherman has been attending the World's Fair.

Just before the car struck Zaucha the driver, a colored man, passed a red traffic light at a high rate of speed, witnesses said.

Zaucha's death and three others yesterday increased the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 853. The other victims:

Benjamin Seig, 43 years old, 1257 South Washtenaw avenue. Died in Illinois Masonic hospital of injuries incurred Oct. 3 when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Roosevelt road at Washtenaw avenue. Jack Rudnick, 22 years old, 1520 South Kedzie avenue, driver of the car, has been notified to appear at an inquest today.

Viola Monaco, 2 years old, 1906 Cicero avenue, Cicero. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Sunday night when the automobile in which she was riding collided with that of Wesley Morton, 1233 South Karlov avenue, at Cermak road and Cicero avenue in Cicero.

Julius McCurry, 14 years old, 6748 Rhodes avenue, colored. Killed when he fell from the rear of a truck on which he had been stealing a ride at 63d street and South Park way.

Dr. Earl Luther, a dentist, 1109 East 65th street, and his wife were in the Morris hospital at Morris, Ill., yesterday suffering from injuries incurred late Sunday in an autombile crash near Seneca. Alvin McIntyre of Joliet whose car collided head on with that driven by Dr. Luther was also in the hospital.

Mrs. Coleman Will Be Guest at Tea Party

Honor Retiring President of Passavant Board.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MEMBERS of both the men's and the women's boards of Passavant hospital received telephoned invitations yesterday to a tea party Friday that none of them would think of missing unless illness or absence from the city interferes, for the party is for beloved Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, president for twenty-five years of the women's board.

Mrs. Coleman retired from the active presidency last week and was elected honorary president, with Mrs. Francis Johnson taking her place as active head of the board. It is Mrs. Johnson who is to be the hostess at Friday's party in the stunning apartment at 1430 Lake Shore drive she is occupying this winter.

The other new officers of the woman's board are: First vice president, Mrs. James R. Offield; second vice president, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson; treasurer, Mrs. Gardiner B. Van Ness; recording secretary, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm. Russell Tyson is president of the men's board, Henry P. Isham is secretary and Lawrence Williams is treasurer.

Mrs. Coleman gave up her arduous duties as president of the Passavant board because of ill health, but she doesn't intend to give up the intense interest she has in everything the board does. During her many busy years as one of Chicago's social leaders she has had many charitable interests, but none has superseded the Passavant, and every woman who has served on the board with her testifies that she was the main inspiration as well as the hardest worker in the stupendous job the woman's board undertook in 1926, helping to raise $1,500,000 for the new hospital on Superior street near the lake.

The woman's board decorated the handsome new edifice which was dedicated in 1929. Last spring a stunning portrait of Mrs. Coleman, painted by Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, was hung in the woman's board room at the hospital, the unveiling being the occasion of a delightful tea for Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. McCormick.

Luncheon Guests Visit Art Institute.

The Chauncey McCormicks were host and hostess at a small but very interesting luncheon party yesterday at the Arts club, later taking their guests to the Art Institute to see the Century of Progress exhibit. In the party were the earl and countess of Portsmouth, who are in town for a day or so seeing the Fair and their relatives [Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. James A. Field, Mrs. Helen Walker Szukalska, and Samuel J. Walker], and the McCormicks' house guests, Talton T. Francis and his charming debutante daughter, Miss Miriam Francis of St. Louis.

Mr. Francis, who was Mr. McCormick's roommate at Yale, is a son of David R. Francis, who was president of the St. Louis exposition, so he is particularly interested in our Exposition, but he, like the Portsmouths, pronounced the exhibition at the Art Institute the most remarkable and stunning thing connected with A Century of Progress. This delighted Mr. McCormick, of course, for he is chairman of the committee that assembled the exhibit.

Miss Francis is a strikingly lovely young woman, tall and golden haired with dark eyes. Her beautiful coloring was brought out to good advantage by the tweed suit she was wearing, a sort of mustardy gold in color, and the brown slouch hat. We predict there'll be a steady stream of young men callers at the McCormicks if she is here long enough to meet any of the local beaux!

The Portsmouths, who are on their way from their ranch in Wyoming to their home in England, are leaving today. They have been staying with the Samuel J. Walkers, better known as the "Jack" Walkers, in Lake Forest during their short visit.

Mrs. Moore Torlonia, who has been visiting the Chauncey McCormicks in Wheaton, came into town yesterday to spend several days with Mrs. Francis Johnson. Mrs. Torlonia's daughter, Donna Christina Torlonia, and Miss Sally Woodward, who have been visiting Mrs. Johnson, have left.

Leander McCormicks Back in England

The Leander McCormicks passed through town so quietly early in the month on their way from California to New York that no news of their arrival or departure was published in any of the society columns which made such a point of their week's visit here earlier when they were on their way west.

The first we knew of their departure for their home in England was the receipt yesterday of a note from some one who went abroad on the Bremen when it sailed on Oct. 4 and she mentioned that Leander McCormick and "his lovely wife" were aboard. The McCormicks visited the Leslie Wheelers in Lake Forest when they were here in the late summer and they were the guests of the Alister H. McCormicks in Santa Barbara.

Rothwell Sheriff has just returned to his home in New York after a gala visit to A Century of Progress. Mr. Sheriff was here with a party of 20 young men and women "Fair-ing" and enjoying a round of cocktail and dinner parties. All of them made the Drake hotel their headquarters.

Good Morning!

This is one of those movies with a buildup. It improves as it progresses.

The story is on a line with Edna Ferber's "Mother Knows Best." The plot is concerned with a vaudeville trouper mother, who, unsuccessful herself, determines that her daughter's name shall be in electric lights.

And so Kitty Lorraine plots and bosses and interferes and, yes—even blackmails that things may break for Shirley as Kitty wants 'em to.

Kitty's hard boiled, vulgar, and mercenary meddling with Shirley's first real romance bequeaths to the picture its first glow of genuine interest and heart pull and leads up to a tremendous scene between mother and daughter. This dramatic and effective episode contributes to a thoroughly satisfactory finale.

How Alice Brady can act when she once gets the "feel" of a part! She's stiff and unconvincing as Kitty Lorraine, the young wife and mother, but when the rôle permits her to look and act her age she's great.

Maureen O'Sullivan plays the daughter neatly but unremarkably, save in the sequence mentioned above and a couple of ensuing scenes. Franchot Tone, Russell Hardie, Phillips Holmes, Ted Healy, and others perform capably.

There's something rather blurred and clumsy about the way the story's worked out—and the characters aren't cleanly etched; but backgrounds and atmosphere are always what they should be, whether relating to the puritanical surroundings and folk of Fred Lorraine's Boston birthplace or the stage where Kitty Lorraine has, all her life, like Topsy, "just growed."

"ARIZONA TO BROADWAY."
Produced by Fox.
Directed by James Tinling.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.
THE CAST.

Smiley	James Dunn
Lynn	Joan Bennett
Kingfish	Herbert Mundin
Morris	Sammy Cohen
Wayne	Theodore von Eltz
Flo	Merna Kennedy
Sandburg	Earle Foxe
Ambrose	David Wengren
Tommy	J. Carrol Naish
Pete	Max Wagner
"Ned Flynn"	Walter Catlett
"Jimmy Dante"	Jerry Lester

After an absence of some months Joan Bennett reappears on the screen as a littlenell, of sorts, in this merry, rowdy, medicine-man-gangster comedy which starts in a small Arizona town and gallops right into the thick of things on Broadway.

Lynn is a maiden in distress when that slick article, Smiley, spots her. Naughty mans have got her brother in wrong to the tune of $40,000.

Now $40,000 listens good to Smiley, who, with his pals, Kingfish, the medicine man, and Morris and Pete the whatever-it's-handy-for-them-to-be, have been doing small time racketeering at carnivals. He says:

"I will help you, Little Girl!" and she believes him.

For awhile he runs true to form—which is a zigzag course——, but enters True Love and then it's a different story . . .

"Arizona to Broadway" has considerable suspense and some hilarious and exciting sequences. It moves swiftly. All of the acting is creditable. Miss Bennett and Mr. Dunn team well, with the lady looking perfectly lovely in all her moods and tenses, and Herbert Mundin does a clever job as the fakir. A dependable actor, this English chap, whose presence enhances any cast.

See you tomorrow.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

LITTLE FRANKLIN, age 5, has a father who lost a good job with an advertising agency and now has an even better one, but in the interim, being pretty despondent, used to sit around and think hard. This apparently disturbed Franklin. When he was visiting his grandmother the other day he saw a picture of Napoleon at St. Helena—the one where the ex-emperor stands looking out to sea with arms folded.

Jobless—
Menu—
Patents—
Americana—
Woods.

"Who is that man, grandmother?" he asked.

"Why, that's Napoleon," she answered.

"Gee, he must be out of a job," observed Franklin.

PERHAPS no more terse summary of a certain phase of the times can be found than the notation on a menu card at a restaurant at which Princess Rostislav ate luncheon the other day. Research specialists, finding the notation aeons later, might easily construct the physical ideal of the inhabitants from just such a notation. It read:

"Silhouette salad. Diet dressing."

CHARLES L. HOWARD, Chicago patent attorney, has a highly amusing collection of patents applied for in Washington—gadgets and Goldbergian devices not carried further than the application for a patent. Not so amusing, but extremely practical, are the ideas set forth in a little book by Ray Gross called, "Can It Be Done?"—soon to make its appearance.

There is, for instance, the capless toothpaste tube, which we hope some person will seize upon and manufacture. Also the vacuum cup base for the dial telephone that prevents the instrument from slipping while you dial. The reel-back dog leash also seems to have merit, and the ice cube belt that releases dozens of small cubes by a turn of the crank is a pleasant idea. What really strikes our fancy, however, is the "ladies' purse with drawer." The accompanying illustration shows the purse with a long narrow drawer that pulls out lengthwise in the bottom of the bag—a perfect place for keys, lipstick and small paraphernalia for which every woman searches frantically at critical moments.

THE following bit of Americana may be old to you, but it is new to us and apparently to Mrs. A. D. Grogan, who submits it. It is a sign in a fruit store advertising that business is cash and reads:

"If we Rest we Rust,
If we Trust we Bust.
No Rest, No Rust,
No Trust, No Bust."

WELL, we got away to beautiful Brown county, Indiana, for the week-end, as we had hoped, but it wasn't quite the rustic retreat we had expected. It so happened that two state traffic officers were directing traffic at the corner outside the charming inn, and also that said charming inn was filled and there was no room for two weary wayfarers from Chicago—not to mention the two wire haired terriers, Sandy and Binge. We were parked, for the first night, at one of the houses of the town and were awakened at 7 o'clock in the morning by the lady of the house at the door. She was desirous of knowing whether we planned to stay a second night. The answer, naturally, was no, without further consideration of whether a bed was to be had in the vicinity. She was leaving the house for the day, she said, so money for the room was proffered through the crack in the door, and we retired again slightly hysterical with laughter and annoyance.

* *

THE day was warm and golden with sunshine, when we finally emerged, and the beauty of the countrysides, the hillsides, and valleys flaming with color was beyond expectation. Most beautiful of all, perhaps, were the Lilly woods, where leafy trails wind through virgin forest, with vistas across valleys of autumnal treetops a hazy blue distance. There was a key to the gate that led into the woods, which had been given us, and unlocking it we wandered down the paths, Sandy and Binge at heel, past the great beeches of the Poet's Beech trail, past the stately trees on the "Seven Linden Sisters" lane, through myriad sunlit paths, fallen yellow and scarlet leaves rustling underfoot.

* *

MOST famous of the Brown county natives is Grandma Barnes, aged 81. An "artist woman" from Chicago had called at her cottage the preceding day and asked if she might paint her portrait. Grandma had demurred. The artist visited with her for a time, anyhow, chatting about her "friendship" garden and helping her feed her ducks. And then suddenly Grandma gave her assent in typical fashion.

"Say, you could have had that picture done by now," she said.

Noted Boston Symphony Is Greeted Here

Program Shows 3 Phases of Excellence.

Boston Symphony orchestra, Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, conductor, in concert at Orchestra hall Monday, Oct. 23. The program:

Mozart—Eine Kleine Nachtmusik (Serenade for String Orchestra).

Stravinsky—Le Sacre du Printemps (The Rite of Spring).

Sibelius—Symphony No. 2, in D major, opus 43.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For the first time in some four years the Boston Symphony orchestra and its eminent conductor paid a visit to Chicago last night. It was a long time between trips, but they were welcome guests bringing something interesting with them.

Such playing was good to hear. This is an admirable organization, excellent in tone, alert in bearing, full of all the merits of a fine orchestra in suave melody, brilliant performance, smashing climax. Over them always was Dr. Koussevitzky, an energetic, dominating personality, directing a phrase with his baton, shaping it with his left hand,

Though the three compositions which made up the program have no particular connection with each other—Mozart to Stravinsky, for instance, is quite a musical and emotional jump—they are three works which take high rating in the annals of performances by this orchestra. They show three phases of virtuosity in performance.

The Mozart music was all golden glow of melody and string tone, gentle, persuasive, bright, delightful. What came next was none of these, but rather their reverse.

The music of the theater, which is Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps," super-music of a super-theater, if you like, has a peculiar effect. Hearing it again after an interval of some eight years, one realized that few themes are easier to forget than these. Yet as it went on, the same huge ballet picture began to be conjured up, a primitive landscape, primitive people with primitive emotions. Perhaps Stravinsky forgot to include a hint about some primitive animals as well, though the music could have well carried them, a few hairy mammoths, saber-toothed tigers, a couple of huge saurians and a diplodocus or two. Here was a performance both stirring and hypnotizing as well.

Schenck and Goldwyn Quit Hays Group in Dispute Over Code

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Joseph Schenck, president of 20th Century Pictures and of United Artists film distributing organization and Samuel Goldwyn, film producers, have tendered resignations of their organizations from the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc. [Will Hays organization].

Schenck said he would prepare a formal statement in behalf of himself and Goldwyn. Goldwyn was an original organizer of the association.

Dissatisfaction with asserted domination of the organization by distributors in New York and displeasure with some of the part assertedly played by the Hays organization officials in the film code hearings at Washington, led to the resignations.

Schenck expressed "disagreement" with any principles which will work a hardship on "creative talent in the industry," meaning salary maximums for the stars. He said that such players are, after all, the people who bring the money to the box office.

Harshe Warns That Art Exhibit Closes on Nov. 1

Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute, warned the public yesterday that it would be impossible to lengthen the official World's Fair art exhibition to Nov. 12, the new date for closing the Fair itself, and that the art exhibit must close Nov. 1. Whistler's portrait of his mother must be taken down to be sent to a Toledo museum on that day, and many of the other masterpieces borrowed from American and European museums and private collectors must be returned.

Put Mountain Folk in New Deal, Is Plea of Mrs. Breckinridge

Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, founder and director of the Frontier Nursing service, in a talk yesterday urged that the federal government, in its new deal policies, bring twentieth century advantages to the Kentucky mountain people.

She spoke before 150 north shore women in the chapel of Ferry hall, Lake Forest. The meeting was sponsored by the Lake Forest League of Women Voters and the Lake Forest Y. W. C. A.

"In some parts of the Kentucky mountain region the people are still living as if in the eighteenth century," said Mrs. Breckinridge. "The new deal should include a platform to help out these people. It is up to the government to do so. The government made the same people obey the liquor laws—a twentieth century measure—so why shouldn't the government give them twentieth century advantages?"

Mrs. Edward Arpee presided.

Walgreen Acquires Noted Collection of Firearms

Freeport, Ill., Oct. 23.—Charles R. Walgreen, Chicago, head of a chain of drug stores, has purchased the valuable collection of firearms that was the property of Frank and Henry Wamsley, aged brothers, who died within a year. The Wamsleys, who lived near the village of Brookville, had collected the guns and other weapons and curios over a period of 40 years, and their "arsenal," as it generally was referred to, was a show place of northwestern Illinois. The brothers charged a small admission fee and the receipts were shared by the charity groups. The collection includes more than 500 small arms, 350 rifles, shotguns, muskets, and other shoulder arms, upon which the Wamsleys had placed a valuation of $30,000. Some of the firearms are more than 300 years old.

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow country men out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, a Paris newspaper man, is her friend and counselor. Bun agrees to help James B. Finlay, an elderly, wealthy American, to find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. He had installed her family, the Bohsmolls, in a villa on the Riviera at Grasse. Her brother, Ferenz, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Craxmer, and her ominous appearing butler. A recent newspaper picture showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clue Bun has to go on. That same night Finlay is murdered. Bun's apartment is broken into by a masked man and woman; her maid, Liberte, bound, and the money Finlay had given her as advance payment stolen. Bun meets Finlay's son, Robert, when he arrives from America. His unlikeness to his father and his desire for secrecy puzzle her. She feels under obligation to continue the search. In Biarritz the photographer who took the group picture identifies the tall woman as the Countess Vernadon, who has a villa at Grasse. Bun motors to Cannes. There she meets the real Robert Finlay and learns that the other was an imposter. Bun is attracted to him, but believes he's in love with Helene. He urges her to continue the quest with him. Mrs. Craxmer appears at the hotel. That night Bun and Robert motor to the dreary villa of Countess Vernadon.

INSTALLMENT XX.

A GHOSTLY BUILDING.

The driveway was clear in the bright moonlight, and it seemed to lead to nothing but an abandoned building. If Bun had not seen the car enter there a few minutes before them she would have said there was not a living soul on the premises.

"We'd better decide upon a mode of procedure," she said, hating to let Finlay see her hesitation and yet impelled to state it. "What are you going to do?"

"Ring the bell—if there is one, ask for the Countess and send in my card."

"That will be giving the whole thing away."

"Exactly what I want to do—to her. If she's a friend of Helene's there's no reason for subterfuge. Surely she will be glad enough to tell us what she knows about her!"

"But if she isn't her friend?"

"Then why should they have been photographed together? I thought all this was your idea?"

"It was. Somehow—now—I'm not sure. There's something not what I should call exactly frank about this place. It looks spooky to me. And I didn't like the way that man in Grasse acted. Don't think I'm backing out—but, you see, we're not in America. Suppose we wait until tomorrow morning."

"Go all the way back to Cannes and waste this opportunity!"

"It's not much more than an hour away. We could return early in the morning. I like moonlight under certain conditions—which are not exactly these."

"And only a little while ago I said you were a good sport."

Bun released the clutch. "All right. Go ahead."

The car rolled quietly along the driveway until they reached what looked like an entrance door. It was a massive affair sunk deep in stone walls. Uncared for vines hung about it and gave it an unused look. A huge iron knocker appeared the only means of communicating with the interior. Finlay lifted it and let it fall. The report reverberated through what sounded like empty corridors.

Even in the long motor coat that swathed her, her figure was slim and smart.

"You'll have to do the talking for me," he said, while waiting for an answer to his knock.

Bun nodded. "All right. But I'll sit here until someone comes—which I'm inclined to think won't happen."

Finlay lifted the knocker and let it fall a second time. Finally a creaking sound came from a window on the second floor. A shaft of light shot out and fell upon the closely surrounding trees. A black silhouette appeared outlined against the light from within. Then a voice, a man's, spoke in French asking who it was.

"We are looking for the villa of the Countess Vernadon," Bun answered promptly. "Is this it?"

"Who is it wishes to see Madame la Comtesse?"

"Shall I tell him?" Bun asked Finlay.

"Yes."

"Mr. Robert Finlay—of New York. If it is possible he would like to speak with Madame a few minutes. It is most important."

The window was closed and the shaft of light shut out. Again they waited, now almost in complete darkness as the grove of trees shut out all radiance from the moon. In a few minutes the sound of footsteps reverberating through empty corridors reached them and the great door swung open. A man in the striped waistcoat and black trousers of a French valet de chambre stood before them. Behind him a glaring electric light showed a long, vast hall in which stone walls and no furniture accentuated the abandoned impression created by the exterior of the building.

"Madame la Comtesse has just returned. She arrived a few minutes ago. Will Monsieur—and Madame," he added as he saw Bun descending from the car, "be good enough to wait a few minutes. In here, please."

He preceded them to a door and threw it open, at the same time switching on the lights in a huge chandelier. The room was long, with a high ceiling, and very meagerly furnished. There were several stiff chairs and sofas covered with much frayed damask. No carpets softened the black and white marble floor. No curtains were at the tall windows. Indeed, there was no evidence of the room having been used for many years.

"Reception room of a prison," Bun commented as she stared about. She chose one of the stiff chairs and sat in it rigidly.

"I hope she speaks English," Finlay said.

"I have a conviction she does. Almost every one does today. If she doesn't——"

She stopped as she heard the sound of light footsteps in the corridor. The next moment a woman was standing in the door looking first at Finlay, then at her. She was a rather extraordinary looking woman—tall, very dark, almost swarthy, with very penetrating—and also quite lovely—smudged in gray eyes. Her pale face—it was absolutely white and beautifully smooth—and her very red lips accentuated the effect of her brilliant eyes. She held herself with that distinguished carriage of head and shoulders that invariably denotes race; and even in the long motor coat that swathed her, her figure was slim and smart. Forty, Bun quickly calculated, looking thirty; and very much of the world—at least the Continental world.

"Mr. Finlay?" she said with a rising inflection, her perfect English only slightly accented.

Finlay had risen and bowed. "And Miss O'Reilly," he indicated Bun.

The woman's glance shifted and her head inclined slightly but graciously. She made no motion to sit down as she turned back to Finlay. "You wished to see me?"

"I do not know that my name is familiar to you. My father's name was James Finlay."

Her eyes met his steadily. "I'm sorry. The name means nothing to me. I may have met him. There are so many Americans in Cannes during the season that it is difficult to remember them all. Has he spoken to you of me?"

"No. But his wife—I thought perhaps——" His words ended abruptly and he turned to Bun. "Did you bring the photograph with you?"

Bun expressed regret that she had left it at the hotel.

The woman's eyes showed bewilderment. "A photograph?"

"Of you—taken on the beach at Biarritz."

"Yes?" The word was a polite but casual question.

"You spent the Easter holidays there, didn't you?"

"I always do."

"The photograph I speak of was taken there at that time. In the group was my father's wife—my step-mother. She was seated beside you."

The woman smiled easily. "Then of course I must know her. Mrs. Finlay," she repeated the name. "But it is strange that I do not recall such a person. Is it possible that she is known by another name in France?"

Finlay frowned. "There was no reason why my father's wife should assume a name. She was Helene Bobianoff before her marriage."

Again the woman's placid "yes" conveyed nothing.

"Her father and mother had a villa in Grasse. Perhaps you met her there?"

"I'm so sorry. I really know hardly any one in Grasse. You see, I am rarely here. This is hardly an alluring place to spend much time in. I only come here occasionally to overlook the property. It is for sale at the present moment."

Doris Blake Answers

When 20 Acts 15.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 20 and in love with a boy of 21. He says that he likes me but does not love me because I act the age of 15. He's right about this. How can I grow up to be my own age? RUTH."

Get in with a group of girls of your own age and observe their actions and behavior.

Attentions Will Tell.

"Dear Miss Blake: I've known a boy for about a year. He keeps my pictures but goes with other girls. Do you think he cares for me.

"CONNIE."

Maybe he's a picture collector, Connie. How is he with attentions? That would tell more about whether or not he cares.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE BIG SHOT

THANKS, FELLAS FOR HELPING ME GET HIM TETHERED OUT. HE'S GOT A BAD REPUTATION.
HE WON'T GET AWAY FROM THERE IN A HURRY.
DON'T GET ANY NEARER HIM THAN THIS, BOYS. HE LAID 'EM LOW RIGHT AND LEFT—FARMER, FARM HANDS, WOMEN FOLKS, EVERYBODY, WHERE HE WAS.
HAS HE GOT A NAME?
NO, NOT YET. WE MIGHT CALL HIM ASSAULT AND BATTERY.
HOW'S TOUGH NUT TOMMY?
THAT'S IT—T.N.T. FOR SHORT!

Juvenile Books Have Pep, Wit, Literary Grace

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Two books of utterly different character I want to describe to you today.

"The Shawl with the Silver Bells" is first. It is written by Helen Coale Crew and published by Macmillan.

This lovely story of a gypsy clan is laid in Elizabethan England. It is rich in content, fascinating in its picture of the life of the common folk of that period, and embroidered with really beautiful details. The incident of the baby and the butterfly is told with rare charm. It would make very happy reading aloud, particularly for the mother who looks for literary value in her children's books but doesn't always find it.

As to reading age I'm not sure. It would depend on the child—from 10 to 14, I should say. I—being a little over 14!—read on with unabated interest.

The second book, as I have said, is quite different. It is "Scarum," by Marie de Nervaud, published by Duffield & Green. It is the story of a "harum scarum" girl on a western range, full of adventure and thrills, and—what we do not often find in books for juveniles—wit. Another recommendation for it is that it is not "written down." The age for this book is probably from 12 to 15.

If your children are younger you may be interested in our list of books for children under seven. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt tonight attended a performance of "Mary of Scotland," the Theater Guild offering, now appearing at the National theater here, preparatory to its New York opening. Mrs. Roosevelt was accompanied by Paul Garret and Charles Baird, who were dinner guests of herself and the President.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt had a large company at luncheon today, the guests being about forty-five members of the Query club, composed of women writers and artists.

The secretary of war and Mrs. Dern returned today from a week-end visit in Cleveland with former Secretary of War and Mrs. Newton D. Baker.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Robert Low Bacon has returned to Arlough, Westbury, after a brief sojourn abroad, where she went to place her second daughter, Miss Virginia Bacon, in school. Representative and Mrs. Bacon, and Miss Alexandra Bacon will go to their Washington residence in time for the opening of congress.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Salvage are arranging to pass the [illegible] part of the winter at Rynwood, their estate on Cedar Swamp road at Glen Head. Their debutante daughter, Miss Margaret Salvage, made her bow on Sept. 9 at one of the most brilliant autumn parties, a supper-dance at the Salvage estate.

Mrs. Coleman Will Be Guest at Tea Party

Honor Retiring President of Passavant Board.

mers, who were abroad also, returned last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Meeker Sr. are preparing to entertain for Miss E. M. Delafield, the distinguished young novelist, who will be their guest at the Fortnightly club while in Chicago. Miss Delafield, who is Mrs. Arthur P. Dashwood in private life, arrives tomorrow.

Of interest here because the young man's stepmother is a former Chicagoan, is the engagement announcement of Miss Alberta Prigge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Prigge of Riverside drive, New York, to Robert Zabriskie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lansing Zabriskie of Aurora-on-Cayuga, N. Y. No date for the wedding has been set.

Pre-Nuptial Parties for Virginia Chapman

Tonight marks the beginning of the pre-nuptial parties for Miss Virginia Chapman and J. Brooks Fenno Jr., which will last through noon of the day they are to be married—next Saturday. Mr. Fenno arrived Sunday and his parents and the best man and ushers all arrive tomorrow.

Tonight Miss Jane Brooks, one of the bridesmaids, is giving a dinner at the Casino and taking her guests to the horse show. Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Edgar Stanton Jr., the former Rosamond Baker, and her young husband have invited all the wedding party to their attractive apartment on Lincoln Park West for a tea, which will mark the introduction of the eastern ushers to the Chicago bridesmaids.

The bridesmaids are, in addition to Miss Brooks and Mrs. Stanton, Miss Elinor Chapman, a sister of the bride; Miss Patty McCormick, Miss Gerardine Thompson of St. Paul, Miss Jean Schweppe, and Miss Mary Senior. Miss Margaret Chapman, another of the bride's sisters, will be maid of honor.

James M. Robbins of Philadelphia will be Mr. Fenno's best man, and the ushers are Francis H. Cummings, Sargent Collier, and Laurence B. Damon of Boston; David H. Morris Jr., Edward T. Herndon, and John Sise of New York; Samuel E. Ewing Jr. of Philadelphia, and Lucien E. Williams of Chicago.

Young Bachelors Will Entertain.

Following the Stantons' tea tomorrow afternoon, Miss Patty McCormick is having the bridal party for dinner in the apartment of her mother, Mrs. Robert H. McCormick, on Astor street.

Thursday afternoon two very popular young bachelors, Fraser and Torrey Wilkins, are entertaining Miss Chapman and Mr. Brooks and their attendants before the dinner that Miss Schweppe is giving. She is taking her guests to the theater after dinner.

Friday Miss Betty Brown is having a luncheon at the Casino and that afternoon Mrs. Freeman Hinckley has invited the bridal party and all the out-of-town guests for tea in her apartment on Lake Shore drive. In the evening the same guests who were entertained by Mrs. Hinckley and several close friends of Harold F. McCormick will go to that genial gentleman's home for dinner and dancing.

Saturday noon Mrs. Leverett Thompson is giving a luncheon for the out-of-towners—the bridal party thinks it will be too much of a good thing to go to a luncheon and then to the wedding. The wedding will take place at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Fourth Presbyterian church and will be followed by a reception at the Casino.

Style Show Tonight at Lake Forest.

Many women in Lake Forest will have dinner guests tonight who will later be taken to the Fashion show and movie that the woman's board of the Church of the Holy Spirit is sponsoring. Mrs. H. Foster Straw is the head of the woman's board and Mrs. Phelps Kelley and Mrs. Dexter Cummings have arranged the fashion show which starts at 8:30, followed by the movie "Another Language."

The hostess committee and the committee on musical activities of the Illinois commission to A Century of Progress are holding a reception tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Illinois Host house for Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge and Dr. Frederick A. Stock. Mrs. Coolidge leaves tomorrow for her home at Pittsfield, Mass.

More fortunate than many a person who has gone away to shoot ducks, the Stuart Logans returned from southern Illinois Sunday with their bags full and prepared to fulfill a promise to their friends that they would give them a duck dinner this evening.

The date for one of the nicest parties of the winter season was set yesterday when the directors of Evanston's Cradle reserved the evening of Nov. 10 for their annual benefit ball. Due in part, perhaps, to the success of last year's party, the crystal ballroom of the Drake hotel has been chosen as the setting again this year.

Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, whose devotion to the work of the Cradle is well known, is the general chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clarke of 2819 Cambridge avenue will celebrate their golden wedding quietly today with their two sons and their only grandchild who are here from Kansas and Iowa for the celebration.

Present Eleanor Freer's Opera Tonight.

Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. Walter J. Jarrett, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. Royden J. Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Winston are a few of those who will hear Eleanor Everest Freer's opera "The Masque of Pandora," this evening in Kimball hall.

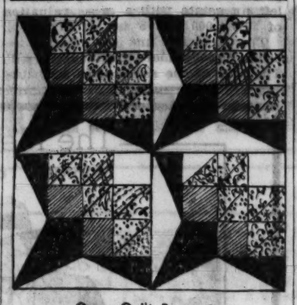
Thrifty Bouquet Pattern Utilizes Old Quilt Scraps



Crazy Quilt Bouquet.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This "Crazy Quilt Bouquet" is attractive in its own right but it has an added appeal to the thrifty quilter because in it she can utilize all her scraps from other quilts. The color problem ceases to be a problem if care is used in matching the scraps and striving for harmonious effects.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Catholic Men Urge Action to Improve Films

How motion pictures may be improved was one of the chief topics of discussion at the session of the National Council of Catholic Men, in the Congress hotel yesterday.

Protests by the bishops against the prevailing types of pictures, as well as previous action by the council, apparently have been without much effect, it was said by Prof. Charles Phillips of Notre Dame university. The time has come for new action, superimposed upon these protests, he said.

"From the inside," he said, "we must be insistent and continuous in our efforts to get at the producers, and make ourselves known at the headquarters of Gen. Johnson of the NRA. To get permanent results however, the Catholic public and individual must be educated. There are four essentials of a good movie. These are 1, beauty of conception; 2, sound dramatic construction; 3, good acting; 4, good photography.

"A good picture presents a philosophical interpretation of life and shows the moral unity of the universe. It must be of the live, vital stuff of life. We do not demand religious plays, but we do condemn those presentations which are subversive of good in youth. The greatest complication comes from those pictures which discount morality completely by implication or inference. The sinner doesn't repent. There is a convenient bridal veil and plenty of easy money."

Prof. Phillips spoke of the producer's point of view, that the public will not support clean pictures and gave reports from various cities.

"The public gets what the leaders want," he said. "We must invade the field of criticism."

Judge Joseph A. Moynihan of Detroit, who presided at this session, said that the time had come for Catholic laymen to speak out on policies which affect the life of the nation. Repeal of prohibition would bring great problems, he said, and the laymen must speak out for wise temperance legislation.

"And have we no right to speak on a dictatorship?" he asked, "and point out the results of past dictatorships?"

J. J. McEntee, assistant director of emergency conservation work at Washington, D. C., said that the most important fact about that work is that it is demonstrating to the American people that "the main business of government is not in building great industries and great buildings, but in the building of men."

"There are 314,000 men in camps now," he said, "and 1,214 camps are being built.

"The value of these camps to business has been great. The transportation item has been a heavy one. The army spends $100,000 a day for food. Millions are spent for clothing and equipment. Ten million dollars a month goes out of Washington in checks to the families of the enrolled men. The real benefit, however, is to the men themselves. One hundred and eighty thousand of the original quota have re-enrolled. Enough has been accomplished to justify the work done."

Canny Mothers Serve Muffins on Winter Days

Hot Breads "Hit the Spot" on Brisk Mornings.

BY MARY MEADE.

Are you sending members of the family off to work and school these mornings with that warm feeling in their tummies that comes from a nice hot wintry breakfast? Then likely you're a canny manager and have discovered by now what a hit muffins make on brisk mornings. Spanking hot and filled with surprises, they're made in a hustle and even more quickly consumed.

As a tip for their making remember mainly this—that muffins don't require energetic mixing. Merely quickly stir up the dry ingredients with the liquid, not even trying to beat out the lumps. Fill your muffin tins and the trick is turned.

So as a starter, now that cranberries are with us, surprise the breakfasters with cranberry muffins some morning.

CRANBERRY MUFFINS.

2½ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
1 cup cranberries, coarsely chopped
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift the flour with the baking powder, salt and sugar. Combine the berries with one-half cup of the flour mixture. Combine the eggs, milk, and shortening. Add to the flour mixture, stirring only enough to dampen all the flour. Fold in the berries. Bake in greased muffin pans in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) twenty-five minutes, or until done.

Bacon muffins served up with eggs are a dandy starter for the day:

BACON MUFFINS.

2½ cups flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup minced, crisply fried bacon
1 egg, well beaten
1¼ cups milk
3 tablespoons melted bacon fat

Mix and sift together the dry ingredients. Add the bacon. Beat the egg, add the milk and melted fat. Pour the liquid ingredients into the dry ingredients and stir only until the flour is well dampened. Pour into thoroughly greased muffin pans. Bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees F.).

Crunchy popcorn muffins are yet another breakfast delicacy.

POPCORN MUFFINS.

1½ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 egg, well beaten
¾ cup ground popcorn, not popped

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Add the milk, melted shortening, and egg which have been combined. Blend together with as few strokes as possible. Now stir in the ground popcorn and fill greased muffin tins two-thirds full. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for twenty to thirty minutes.

Film Council Told Chicago Audiences Prefer Gay Pictures

Patrons of Chicago moving picture theaters prefer gay and clever entertainment, Mrs. Richard M. McClure declared yesterday in a report to the Better Films council of Chicago, of which she is president. The council met at the Hotel Sherman.

Chicago audiences, Mrs. McClure asserted, frown on propaganda films, and "are beginning to laugh at love scenes." Certain scenes intended to picture melodramatic pathos are also beginning to cause snickers, she added. Mystery and cartoon films are growing in popularity, she observed.

Discussing the taste in present day films, Mrs. McClure said that bad pictures result from being built upon news stories, best selling books and Broadway successes. Henry Herbel, president of the Chicago Film Board of Trade, said that few so-called "clean" pictures are money maka—

Two Piece Dress Utilizes Modish Squared Collar on Sailor Lines

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This plaided rust hairy woolen two piece frock depends on its becoming new neckline and peplum treatment for its individuality. The belt is black patent leather and the sailor collar is white bengaline silk with narrow rust braid trim. Black woolen for the skirt with a vivid shade of green for the blouse is a pleasing suggestion.

The pattern, No. 2921, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure.

Lanvin's Sports Frocks Have a Military Bearing

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—There is more than a little military feeling about Paris styles. It is subdued to such things as frog fastenings, standing collars, and jumpers and jackets that look like officers' coats. Plenty of brass buttons go with such jumpers and jackets, however.

Jeanne Lanvin is one of the most insistent on the military effect. She particularly likes it for two piece sport dresses, like the one shown. Worn with Lanvin's hip length fur capes they are about as smart and swanky as anything Paris has brought out this season.

This model is made of dark gray flannel like woolen, having a hairy angora surface. The jumper blouse is exquisitely simple, and fitted, with long tight sleeves, and a small military standing collar. Bias bands of the material set down the front of the hip length blouse give it a more martial air, as do the gold ball buttons that are placed in a soldierly row right down the center to the waistline. The sleeves have these buttons in rows to the elbows. The belt is of the material and buckled in the back. The skirt is easy and is cut on the bias to look slim. The beaver cape is lined with the material of the frock.

New Watches Have Designs That Surprise

The Oblong Come-Aparts Prove Popular Models.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's something endlessly fascinating about watches . . . from the time you listened completely entranced, with the shiny bauble that ticked in your infant ear, held by some indulgent and eager to please male relative, till the present, when you hang over a showcase filled with the newest enamel, modernistic affairs, they never fail to charm.

There are some new affairs that will make you gasp with green envy . . . swanky little flat numbers called come-aparts . . . they slide open in an oblong shape. You can flaunt the colored enamels with your smartest French handbag. Eye-filling brilliant red enamed covers one model and an inky black scottie decorates one side that slides back to show the time. Another similar doggy cocks his ears on the egg-shell tinted enamel model much smaller in size.

But the hit of the showing is the combination watch and lighter in a long enameled tube.

The tiny watch is stowed in the upper end, where, with a flip of the finger the covering enamel slides out of sight to expose the easy to read dial, and the lower half is the tricky new lighter. This new combination is slender and trim and as decorative as it is new and unusual . . . the price tag will surprise you.

And all the watch collecting males have been remembered . . . ask to see the knockout looking "elevator watches" . . . there is one covered in stunning black lizard, trimmed with slender bands of frosty silver . . . looking just like a simple black cigaret lighter, thin swanky, and flat . . . press the small silver button and, abracadabra, the square dial slowly and majestically rises in sight . . . just a push of the finger and it returns.

Screen Stars of Today Need More than Beauty of Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.]—It's interesting to one who has not been to Hollywood for a few years to note the change in type. Comparing today's actresses with the earlier brood, many of whom have perished in the talkie storm, they reflect a change that has taken place in women generally the world over. Beauty, so to speak, measured by a different standard entirely!

Said one of the casting directors to me, "Katherine Hepburn, for one, wouldn't have reached first base in the old days. And what a loss to today's screen to be denied that rich, vivid and rare personality!"

The baby doll face and figure, too, have been definitely exterminated from the casting scene. Applicants today must come bearing something else. Brains, they call it. Or, personality. Cleverness! Something different!

As an observer, except for an occasional row of similarly platinumized heads, you see a far greater variety of type here than formerly. In the old days, I recall commissary scenes where girl after girl entered, took her place at table, registering little difference either in size or type from the girl who preceded or followed her. Five foot one or two was the usual height. Today they can be five three, four and five, or more. Kay Francis is five seven without shoes!

Faces are of an infinite variety! Sometimes you say to yourself as you look on, "But, how did she get in? No beauty to speak of!" You see countless other girls in private life seemingly better fitted for the screen, but the questioned one has something. You may depend on that. Or she wouldn't be here.

Fred Datig, with a long experience as casting director, says formerly they looked for beauty, now they look for brains, dramatic ability, a voice, and looks, of course, but most of all the ability to deliver lines.

Perhaps the advance made in make-up expertness lets down the beauty test in favor of other things. For these make-up geniuses can do amazing things with a fairly ordinary face.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LIGHT ON THE CASE.

"And why didn't you go to the rescue of your wife?" demanded Prof. Fordney of William Brown.

"How the hell could I when a bullet hit me in the collar-bone?" indignantly replied Brown, owner of a small, prosperous farm.

Fordney was investigating the murder of Brown's wife. "Go on," he said, "tell me what happened."

"Well," replied the farmer, "the missus and I went to bed at 9:30 last night as usual. I guess I fell asleep immediately. The next thing I knew Irma was shaking me and tellin' me she heard noises in the barn. I listened, didn't hear nothin', but she insisted I go out and see if anything was wrong. I put on my shoes, slipped my pants over my nightshirt and went to the barn. As I opened the door a flashlight hit me in the eyes and a voice said, 'Listen, Buddy, I want that dough you've got. Show me where it is or . . .' Then I turned around and ran toward the house but he shot me and I dropped to the ground. When I came to I rushed to the bedroom and found my wife murdered and the money, which I kept under the mattress, gone. Then . . ."

"Did you put on your socks?" Fordney inquired.

"No, I . . . I . . ."

The professor next asked, "Did you carry a light?"

"No—I know this farm—I don't need no light."

"When did you last turn that mattress?"

"About a month ago. What's that . . ."

"Never mind, Brown, you're under arrest."

WHY DID FORDNEY ARREST THE FARMER?

Palace Fans Being Amused by Phil Baker

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Phil Baker, the comedian who has transplanted his accordion from the Broadway revues to the radio programs, and who is now a resident of Chicago, is the chief entertainer on the vaudeville portion of this week's bill at the Palace theater. He is one of the best of the casual wise crackers; he has a healthy sense of humor, a normal point of view and a jovial personality that easily pervades the great enclosed spaces of a cinema house.

So all goes well at the Palace; laughter fills the place while Baker and his staff are at work. The comedian is using a pair of foils who figure in his current radio sketches—"Bottle," the faithful British butler, otherwise Harry McNaughton; and the mocking and sinister character named "Beetle," who perches in a box to hurl scornful remarks at his employer.

Other performers on the bill, merrily introduced by Baker as master of ceremonies of the so-called revue, are: Harry and Frank Seaman, the knock-about acrobats who figured in Ed Wynn's "The Laugh Parade" a year ago; Rose Marie, a child singer with a crisp vaudeville style; and Mabel Albertson, a good looker who is useful in Baker's burlesque sketches and who finally appears in an impersonation of Mae West.

Messrs. Olsen and Johnson have withdrawn their promise to keep "Take a Chance" in Chicago after this show is crowded out of the Erlanger theater by "Biography" at the end of next week. Their musical comedy will then go on tour, with eighteen weeks of the World's Fair period on its record. Changes in the cast for the journey involve Joan Abbott, the "Rise and Shine" singer, and Jack Whiting, the dancing "juvenile." Miss Abbott will leave the company to appear in vaudeville at the State-Lake next week. She will be replaced by Francita Malloy. Mr. Whiting will return to New York in search of Broadway engagements.

Mme. Jeritza, star prima donna of the Metropolitan opera company for the last eight years, will appear in operetta under Broadway auspices this season. Her vehicle will be Johann Strauss' "A Night in Venice." The first performance will be given in New Haven, Conn., Nov. 13.

Judith Anderson, whose acting in "As You Desire Me" and "Mourning Becomes Electra" gave her commanding rank on the American stage, will be starred this season in a play called "The Drums Begin," written by Howard Irving Young.

RELIEF WORKERS FLOCK TO STUDY NEW PROFESSION

It Will Be Enduring Job, Institute Told.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

More than 500 social service workers attended the institute which opened the Illinois and Wisconsin conference on Social Service in the Knickerbocker hotel yesterday. The enrollment was four times greater than ever before. The institute will close this afternoon preliminary to the opening tonight of the general session of the conference which will continue through Thursday.

The welfare workers jammed eight classrooms to hear the leaders discuss such subjects as publicity in social work, problems of public relief administration, case work, health problems, children's institutions, the new leisure, industrial problems and child life.

A Permanent Activity.

"The word 'emergency' or 'temporary' should be dropped from relief organization names," one social worker declared in the class on public relief administration. "We've got to understand that relief is a long time job."

Another voiced a few words of pity on "people who will never be fit to be employed again because of their experience during the depression." This brought a reply from Joanna C. Colcord, director of the charity organization department of the Russell Sage foundation of New York.

"I don't agree with people that the needy have been rendered unemployable," Miss Colcord broke in. "Where their health or mentality is broken down, yes; but the way people snap out of it when given jobs indicates that they will come back. We're doing our clients an injustice when we treat them as a thoroughly demoralized group."

There was complaint that public works jobs are not doing what was expected in ameliorating unemployment. "If we pin our faith to public works we pin it to a very thin need," said Miss Colcord.

A Choice of Foods.

One question which the section decided to discuss today is whether relief clients should be forced to eat just what the relief lists provide, or whether they should be allowed to spend relief money on the food they like.

"We require the unemployed to eat what we think they should eat, rather than what they like," was Miss Colcord's criticism.

"Aren't they uneducated?" she was asked.

"Aren't we all?" she retorted.

This evening the opening general session will be held in the hotel with Dr. John L. Gillin, past president of the Wisconsin conference, presiding. Mayor Kelly is scheduled to welcome the body. Rodney H. Brandon, president of the Illinois conference, will speak on "The New Century in Welfare," and Dr. Adolf Meyer of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, will discuss "spirituality."

MRS. MARY PARKER GUMP.

Her husband, Charles, insisted that she sound the horn of her automobile every time she drove home from work, Mrs. Mary Barker Gump, 8029 Winchester avenue, a radio entertainer, charged yesterday in a bill for separate maintenance filed in the Superior court yesterday by Attorney Norman Becker. On Oct. 15, 1932, he told her that he was going duck hunting, so she omitted the usual salute when she got home, she said. When she entered the house, she found Gump in the company of another woman, she charges.

Russia Sends Good Will Delegation to Turkey

LAUNCH ILLINOIS ROADWORK UNDER RECOVERY PLAN

1,225 Given Jobs in Last Three Weeks.

The beginning of work yesterday on the first federal road project to be started in Illinois under President Roosevelt's recovery program was expected to give impetus to the reëmployment of men in Illinois an authorized federal public works projects. Under the recovery program more than $17,000,000 has been allocated by the federal government for highway construction in this state.

R. C. Jacobson, director of the Illinois reëmployment service, disclosed that 1,225 men had been put to work in the last three weeks on projects of various kinds in 13 counties. Of these, 80 men will be employed for some time on the first highway work under the recovery act, the construction of a three and a half mile gravel road in Franklin county, which was started yesterday.

Other Men Given Jobs.

The other men given work through the state reëmployment service were placed on jobs in the following counties:

Alexander, 699 men; Pulaski, 23; Union, 59; Jackson, 48; Randolph, 180; Monroe, 23, and a total of 113 men distributed throughout the counties of Hancock, Kankakee, Lake, La Salle, Marshall, McHenry, and Rock Island.

The latter group of 113 are working on barberry bush eradication. The others, totaling 1,032, are employed on river projects in connection with the flood control program, such as building levees.

A total of 4,887 men have registered for federal work, Mr. Jacobson said. It is expected that these and others will be put to work in a few weeks on the construction of viaducts, bridges, and road beds as the highway program progresses. There also will be construction of locks and dams in the upper Mississippi valley.

Work for 1,800 in Illinois.

Of the allotment of 22 million dollars to the war department for this upper Mississippi valley work, about two-thirds will be spent on that part of the river which forms the Illinois boundary line, but the work will be shared with unemployed men in adjoining states, Mr. Jacobson said. However, this will mean the employment of about 1,800 men a year in Illinois.

"Some preliminary work on the lock and dam projects is already under way," said Mr. Jacobson. "Men have been drilling and sounding out various areas to determine the exact spot where construction should begin, but the work proper has not yet started."

Work on the lock near Muscatine will begin in a few weeks, Mr. Jacobson announced, while at the lock a few miles below Quincy construction will start in about a month. Work on the remaining six lock and dam projects will be started at intervals throughout the winter and spring.

450 Men on Each Project.

The cost of these projects will average about $900,000 each. Approximately 450 men a year will be employed on each job, but because workers are hired from the locality in which the project is situated half of the men will be employed in Missouri and Iowa counties.

"Migration from one county to another is prohibited unless there are insufficient workers in the county where the project is located to do the work," Mr. Jacobson explained. "Only unemployed workers are to be hired, and changing from one job to a better one is not to be permitted."

NEW WILLS FILED IN PROBATE COURT

Six wills were filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin in the Probate court yesterday and were approved by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge, as follows:

SOPHIE BEST, died Sept. 29. Estate, $21,500, to son, Albert Best, who is executor.

CHARLES WIESE, died April 11. Estate, $400, to the Chicago Cooks' and Pastry Cooks' union. John A. Bizzolara is executor.

ABRAHAM ABELMANN, died Sept. 13. Estate, $10,000, to daughter, Anna Abelmann, who is executrix.

MACIEJ FRONTCZAK, died Oct. 8. Estate, $6,000, to three sons and two daughters. Bernice Banas, daughter, and William Frontczak, son, are co-executors.

CHARLES S. LAWRENCE, died July 31. Estate, $5,000, to widow and two nieces. Carolyn W. Short, a niece, is executrix.

CHARLES ROESCH, died July 18. Estate, $4,000, to friend, Henry J. Hutcheon, who is executor.

Bandits Leave Victim Clad Only in Underwear

Three bandits forced Charles Meyers, 21 years old, 1317 West 72d place, into their automobile at Ada street and 72d place early yesterday and drove him to 79th street and the Southwest highway. There Meyers was robbed of $15 and his clothing and left to walk home attired only in his underwear.

DAVID BELASCO LEAVES ESTATE OF $1,249,144 NET

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—David Belasco, the veteran theatrical producer, who died on May 14, 1931, left an estate with a gross valuation of $1,598,000 and a net of $1,249,144, The Actors' Fund of America receives $5,000 under the producer's will. The bulk of the estate is in securities with a total value of $1,177,509. Mrs. Reina B. Gest, a daughter, who is the wife of Morris Gest, producer, is the principal beneficiary.

The principal securities were 500 shares of Stuyvesant Theater corporation, appraised at $700,135. Among the bonds were $110,659 in New York City corporate stock, $43,050 in New York state bonds, $41,340 in New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company bonds, and $33,050 in bonds of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

1933 FOOTBALL DRINKERS LACK THAT OL' PEPPER

Where Are Souses of Yesteryear?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—The gents and ladies who go to the football games on Saturday afternoons will have to do some pretty heavy guzzling during the remaining games of the season if they expect to catch up on their fall drinking and maintain the high standard established by other classes of spectators during the era of prohibition.

I have noticed a distinct tendency on the part of the majority of the customers to slack off this year, probably in a belief that prohibition is done for, anyway, and that from now on until repeal it will be all right to stall and indulge in no more than some light, defensive drinking. It is true, of course, that the contest is now pretty well won and that the shrewd and cautious drinker will avoid the risk of unnecessary injury in protecting the lead until the contest closes, a few weeks hence. But I never have cared much for shrewd and cautious drinkers myself, being partial to those who drink with selfless abandon until the last white line has been crossed.

Alas! It's Disappointing.

So it is a bit of a disappointment to find the drinkers of the great victory season, the varsity souses of 1933, as you might call them, contenting themselves with mere slips, nips, and sniffs out of their flasks. That wasn't the way the grand, gallant all for victory lushes of seasons past ran up the lead which their unworthy successors of the present day seem content to rest upon. This great advantage was rolled up by crusading rum pots, who, when they hoisted a bottle, scorned the mere technical touches of this year's kind, and hit it a belt, jolt, or sock.

Moreover, they were putting down some very brutal nutriment in those old barbarian days and nights, including all the standard brands of gasoline, brass polish, and sheep dip, to say nothing of Georgia corn, which is a blend of all three, and a gent, or lady, in raising up the vessel to hit it one gosh almighty belt, sock, or jolt never knew whether he, or she, would live to tell about it, and often hoped not.

There's No Sport in It.

The drinkers of the present football season are dealing in material which is almost entirely drug store, and, so far as risk and sporting thrill is concerned, almost too wholesome for official football drinking purposes. In fact, I have been told that some of the Georgia corn drinkers of the varsity of 1924, who used to carry theirs in mason jars so that they could spill it in their ears while pouring it down the hatch, thus doubling the size of the standard jolt, have started an agitation to withhold varsity letters from the sissy drinkers of 1933.

It seems a fair proposal, at that, for I have distinctly observed quite a number of silver flasks in the stands this year, and all the veterans who drank with the varsities of the brave prohibition years will recall that the silver flask was conclusive evidence of flinching and cheating in those days.

"A Flask, Eh, You Cad!"

Georgia corn, Chicago bathtub, Kansas jake, Iowa sileage, and New York hootch dissolved a silver flask as water dissolves a paper bag and the fact that a man could fetch his drams as far as the football yard in a silver flask conclusively proved him to be a mucker and a cad and unfit to drink with respectable people.

I once saw an experiment tried by some boys from Atlanta who had confiscated a silver flask and filled it with corn. The young man in charge demonstrated that within two minutes the flask became limber like a gelatine capsule from the corrosive effects of the corn, and when it had softened up a little more he shoved it in his mouth before it should melt in his hands, and swallowed it. He said the metal left a bad after taste which spoiled the flavor of the corn, a statement which I do not doubt at all.

At the Yale game with Washington and Lee the drinking was not only way off in volume, but spiritless in character and there were only two lonely, conscientious souses rolling about the field when the crowd had left. It seemed disloyal of the others to have let them down so, and, after a long time finding nobody to fight, they had to choose up sides and fight one another.

It Was Practically Dry.

Last Saturday two unconscious gents lay on benches until darkness fell and two high-spirited defenders of the old standard engaged in a two-handed football game until both of them were knocked out, or passed out, face down in the cinders of the running track. That was all. It was practically a dry game.

It is just my idea that with repeal so close, anyway, and with so much drugstore in circulation, the least the gents and ladies of 1933 should do in honor of the memory of those who drank the good fight for 14 years is to drink their part up to the very end, closing out with one grand binge. After that will be the time to go up the pole.

THE GUMPS—IMAGINE MY EMBARRASSMENT

OH- IT'S SO GRAND TO HAVE YOU BACK AGAIN- I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE MY EYES- UNCLE BIM-
AND IT'S MIGHTY GOOD TO BE BACK WITH MY OWN ANDY AND MIN AGAIN- IN THIS COZY, CHEERFUL HOME, WITH A SHAVE, A HAIRCUT AND A CLEAN SUIT OF CLOTHES-
I'M JUST DYING TO HEAR ALL ABOUT WHAT HAPPENED TO YOU-
GOLLY- WASN'T THAT A PICKLE TO BE IN WHEN HE CAME HOME- RANSACKING HIS TRUNK, WITH ALL HIS THINGS OVER THE FLOOR- WHAT IF WE'D HAD THAT WILL PROBATED AND TAKEN OVER HIS ESTATE- AND HE'D WALKED IN ON US?
IT WAS JUST TERRIBLE, ANDY- I WONDER WHAT HE'LL THINK- WE MUST HAVE LOOKED LIKE TWO BURGLARS-
AND I'D JUST PICKED UP THAT ROLL OF HUNDRED DOLLAR BILLS OUT OF HIS TRUNK- WHEN HE SAW ME WITH THAT MONEY IN MY HAND, I THOUGHT I'D DIE-
AND DID MY FACE TURN RED WHEN HE STEPPED IN THAT DOOR, AND ME WITH HIS PLUG HAT ON- IN HIS DRESS SUIT- AND HIS GOLD WATCH IN MY HAND- BOY! OH, BOY!

RIDE 6 DAYS TO GET IN SHAPE FOR 6 DAY BIKE RACE

Letourner, Peden Put On Iron Man Act.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Al Letourner, tiny French red devil bike rider, and Torchy Peden, enormous Canadian cyclist, both well known to the six day bike nuts of this city, soon are to break an endurance record as is an endurance record.

You know, as well as we do, that the cycling sport, like other racing sports, is pretty well cluttered up with specialized records, to the point where about every one who races holds some record. The impending Letourner-Peden record, however, has no phoney aspects such as being made on a red bicycle with chromium handlebars or similar hocus pocus classification.

If and when they finish the Chicago six day bike race which begins at the Chicago Stadium next Sunday night and ends a week from Saturday night, they will have completed 12 days and 14 consecutive nights of endurance bike racing, something that never has been done before so far as can be ascertained by Prof. Harry Mendel, bicycle historian and researcher, who has looked up the matter.

Ride in Toronto This Week.

The original schedule had called for the starting of the Chicago race on Nov. 5, but the National Hockey league wanted to open the Chicago season at the Stadium Nov. 9. The ever agreeable John Chapman, the country's main bike impresario, who doesn't have to ride himself any more, consented to the switch.

Letourner and Peden, however, had contracted to ride the race now going on in Toronto, where Peden is something of a national hero and Letourner is a favorite.

So the pair started riding last Sunday night and will continue pedaling until late Saturday night. They will then rush to the airport, fly to Chicago, and be all set to start in the Chicago race Sunday evening. If there had been twenty-four additional hours gap between the two races the boys could have cycled to Chicago, but having only twenty hours on their hands they decided to make the jump by plane.

Whew! 500,000 Laps.

In the two weeks beginning last Sunday evening Letourner and Peden will have made upward of 500,000 laps of the Toronto and Chicago tracks. Of course, the chore is equally divided, so Al will have ridden a quarter of a million laps and Torchy a quarter of a million.

And don't think that it won't be a quarter million each, for bike riders of Letourner's and Peden's experience aren't the least altruistic, benevolent, or self-sacrificing. Most of the riding is done by agreed shifts and most of the riders ride with wrist watches to make sure each little pal does his stint. If it turned out that Letourner had ridden 250,001 laps and Peden had been on for only 249,999 laps, the Frenchman would quit speaking to the Canadian and they never would ride together again.

CEDAR RAPIDS FANS HONOR EARL WHITEHILL

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Cedar Rapids baseball fans honored Earl Whitehill, southpaw pitcher of the Washington Senators, here tonight at a homecoming banquet. More than five hundred friends presented him with a solid silver cocktail set. Others present were Bill Hofer, pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles in 1895; Bing Miller of the Philadelphia Athletics; Harold Trosky, Cleveland Indian rookie, and Emil Levsen, retired pitcher for Cleveland. Dr. Harry M. Gage of Coe college was toastmaster and Horace G. [Cap] Hedges, football official, wade presentations.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

LOOK WHAT HAPPENED!

LOOK what happened in one day! Here it is only the third Saturday of October with a majority of the more important gridiron contests to take place next month. Consider, then, some of Saturday's highlights.

Southern California, with a record of twenty-five consecutive victories, was held scoreless and tied by an Oregon State eleven which played without substitution.

Pittsburgh, chosen as the best team elsewhere to play those same Trojans in the Rose bowl affair last January—after the Big Ten hesitated to waive its rule against post-season games for Michigan—took it on the chin from Minnesota, which had been tied by Purdue and Indiana.

Notre Dame, whose partisans at one time talked of an undefeated season, lost to Carnegie Tech, having previously been tied by Kansas, which lost to Tulsa—yes, they have a university at Tulsa. It takes a long memory to recall when Notre Dame has been tied and beaten this early in the season.

Tennessee, whose record had not been marred by defeat in nearly thirty games until beaten by Duke, again was on the short end, this time against Alabama.

Those were only a few of the happenings, all on one day, which are making this an unusual and most interesting fall for football partisans. Right in our own Big Ten, for instance, only three elevens are unbeaten and untied. Champion Michigan's presence in this category, of course, is not surprising, although many, perhaps a majority, of critics thought Ohio State would end the Wolverine sequence Saturday.

Iowa and Illinois are the other two. Iowa, you may recall, had not won a conference game since 1929. It scored 12 points against 129 for its opponents last season. So far this year it has scored in two contests 33 points to 7 for its conference opponents, 71 to 7 against all opponents.

In several of these unusual happenings the losers, perhaps justly, assert they played better football and cite statistics to prove more first downs and more yards gained from scrimmage. There may be some consolation in that for the losers, but the number of points scored is what goes into the record books for future reference.

Far from decrying this overthrow of former invincibles, true well wishers of football welcome it. It gives new stimulus and interest to a great sport. May the good work continue, no matter what it does to percentages of us forecasters.

OFFICIALS HIT BY MISTAKE WAVE IN EASTERN GAMES

Army Robbed of Goal in Illinois Contest.

Officials of the Western conference so far have not become involved in disputed decisions, an epidemic of which seems to have swept eastern gridirons Saturday. That more mistakes are not made, considering the multitude of rules and the possibilities for error, is proof of the qualifications of all officials, but the splendid record in the Big Ten probably cannot be matched by any other section of the country.

One of the gravest mistakes Saturday occurred in the Illinois-Army game at Cleveland. Army was deprived of a field goal by Travis Brown from Illinois' 15 yard line in the second quarter which would have made the score Army, 9; Illinois, 0. Paul Johnson, who held the ball for the placement, touched both knees to the ground, so the officials ruled the ball was dead at that point. Since it was fourth down Illinois was given possession.

Rule Makes Exception.

However, the rule adopted in 1932 which declares the ball dead when the man in possession touches other than his hands or feet to the ground, does not apply in this case. An exception is made for holding place kicks, but it would be impossible for the holder to run or throw a pass.

Brown university should have been awarded two points for a safety in the game with Yale at New Haven, Conn., Saturday. Yale won, 14 to 7. Bob Johnson, a Brown tackle, blocked a Yale punt. The ball bounded in Yale's end zone and Clare Curtin of Yale picked it up and ran out to his 23 yard line. The blocked kick going into the end zone could result only in a touchdown [if recovered by Brown] or a safety if recovered by Yale [as happened] or a safety if the ball had left the end zone, passing beyond the extended side lines or the end line.

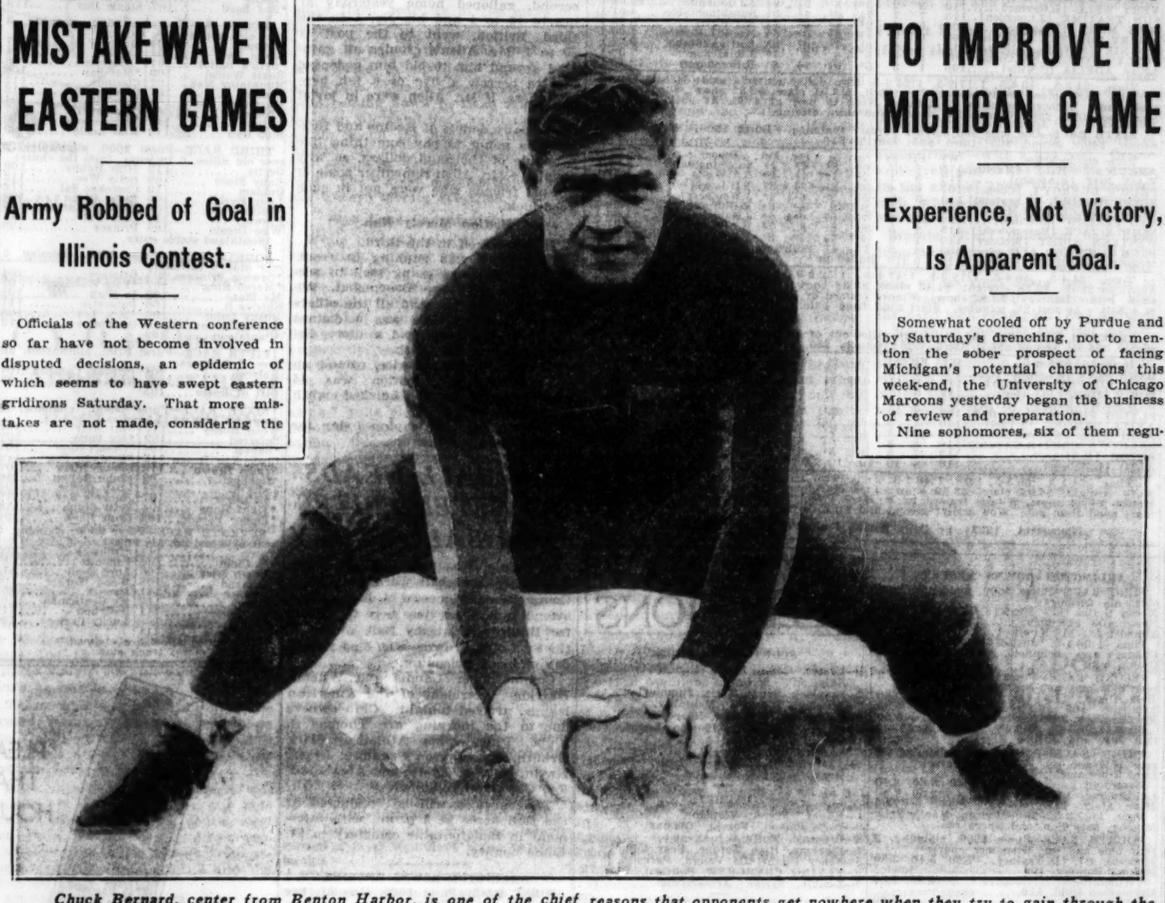
Players Convince Officials.

A serious mistake was averted in the Dartmouth-Pennsylvania game Saturday when Dartmouth players convinced the officials they had made an error. A Pennsylvania kick which bounded off the shoulder of a Dartmouth back was picked up by a Pennsylvania player and advanced to the goal, apparently for a touchdown. Reversal of the decision, which at first had permitted the run, brought the ball back to the point of recovery by Pennsylvania.

Most players do not have complete knowledge of the rules. The normal inclination is to grab the ball and run, for by so doing the player won't be wrong even if the play is called back. This perhaps accounts for the mistakes of the officials who become confused by the players' actions.

The most serious mistake in recent years also occurred in the east during a Yale-Georgia game and it wasn't discovered until the next day. Georgia [on the kickoff] recovered the ball on a Yale fumble and ran for a touchdown. The play should have been restricted to recovery only.

NOBODY GETS THROUGH



Chuck Bernard, center from Benton Harbor, is one of the chief reasons that opponents get nowhere when they try to gain through the Michigan line. Ohio State tried to push over Bernard last Saturday, but gave it up after the first few minutes of play. Now the Chicago Maroons will have a chance next Saturday on the Midway.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

BASED on its work to date, can you name the best football team in the country?

I suppose there's no sense wasting your time when I know the answer. It's the Chicago Bears.

Why? Well, to begin with, they are professionals and are supposed to be mechanically perfect. More important, they have what Bob Zuppke would call zest for the game.

I once heard Mr. Zuppke deliver a fiery oration on the comparative class of professional and college football. His climactic argument was that the salaried players lacked the enthusiasm of the college boys.

Having great respect for Zuppke's opinions on football, I was inclined to string along with him. But that was before the Bears of 1933 began to operate. No college eleven has displayed more dash and spirit than the 22 athletes who have been fighting their way from behind Sunday after Sunday to keep the Bears at the top of the National Professional league standings.

Knute Rockne often said the greatest eight minutes of football he ever saw was in 1925 when a relatively weak Notre Dame team came back at the start of the second half to overcome Northwestern's 10 point lead and win by 13 to 10. If he had been among the 21,000 at Wrigley field Sunday afternoon I believe he would have agreed that the greatest four minutes of football he had ever observed was played by the Bears against the Green Bay Packers.

For fans who attend football games because they enjoy the sport, regardless of collegiate or civic affiliations, that battle between the Packers and Bears had everything. There were brilliant individuals in Hewitt, Manders, Miller, and Nagurski of Chicago, and Herber, Hinkle, Monnett, and Hubbard of Green Bay. Hewitt alone was almost a team on defense. There were daring and deceptive formations, thrilling situations, and above all, a will to win that could not be denied.

Those who want personal violence with their football had their fill, too. Corbett, half back of the Bears, was the victim. He made the mistake in the second quarter of trying to run over Hubbard, the Packers' 265 pound tackle. The impact produced a sickening thud, and I doubt if Corbett regained his senses for several minutes after he was taken out.

Professional football has developed rapidly the last few years. There are growing indications it will become one of the nation's major sports. It never will displace college football in popularity, because the college game is not dependent upon mechanical perfection for appeal. Sentimental ties will keep the rah rah brand alive.

Modern football is a complex, intricate sport demanding perfect coördination of mind and muscle. About the time a college player gets the hang of it, he is through. That is the basic advantage of the pro game. They keep on playing and they get better as they go along up to a certain age. A back field man is capable of high pressure football until he is 28 or 30. A linesman usually lasts a year or two longer, because the strain on the legs is not quite so severe.

Each of the major leagues has lost an outstanding personality since the close of the season. The death of William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, robbed the National of its most enterprising figure. The passing of Phil Ball, president of the Browns, took from the American its gamest loser.

Mr. Ball had been in declining health for some time. His condition would not permit his attendance at the all star inter-league game last July. A few days later we received the following letter from him:

"Unfortunately, my fancy doctors would not let me go to Chicago to see the game. Said the excitement would be bad for me. When a baseball game excites me to that extent, I shall have to be a lot older and the Browns will have to play a lot better ball."

SEEK TO LIGHTEN PENALTY IN PREP AMATEUR CODE

The legislative commission of the Illinois State High School Athletic association yesterday recommended that present penalty of permanent disqualification for amateur violation be lessened to one year's banishment.

While the commission's move was only a recommendation it was believed that it would be adopted so that an athlete's prep career would not be ended for an infraction of amateur rules.

It was also recommended to include archery as a recognized competitive sport for girls.

MAROONS EXPECT TO IMPROVE IN MICHIGAN GAME

Experience, Not Victory, Is Apparent Goal.

Somewhat cooled off by Purdue and by Saturday's drenching, not to mention the sober prospect of facing Michigan's potential champions this week-end, the University of Chicago Maroons yesterday began the business of review and preparation.

Nine sophomores, six of them regulars and three reserves, have experienced their first Big Ten competition, and while they are duly impressed, they are far from browbeaten. The joint reaction is "It's not as tough as I thought it would be."

Should Do Better Now.

Assistant coaches pointed out that Shaughnessy's defense for Purdue, which was similar in plan to that of Minnesota, would have been more successful if the new Maroon players had followed it consistently, and they are convinced that Chicago's fledglings will show far more poise and assurance henceforward. The defense was taught largely as a theory, and as that kind of pedagogy doesn't work, the Maroons are in for some long scrimmage sessions, injuries or no injuries.

See Experience, Not Victory.

Few around the Midway have suggested that Chicago could expect to play Michigan on even terms, even when the pre-Purdue optimism was at its height. Even with the Wolverines relaxed after their struggle with Ohio State, the prospect for Chicago is conceded to be experience rather than touchdowns.

A checkup of injuries revealed yesterday that John Rice, husky sophomore tackle, has a shoulder sprain which probably will keep him out of the Michigan encounter. Two other sophomores, Deem and Bush, with whom Rice has alternated, will have to bear the burden, and Bush is bothered with boils.

HESTON TO BE READY.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Coach Harry Kipke gave the Michigan football squad an easy workout today. All of the squad except men kept in by classes, reported for drill. Jack Heston, who received an injury to his side in the Ohio game, moved slowly, but it was said he would be fit to play against Chicago Saturday.

The first team ran signals at the far end of the field, and while Kipke did not announce the drill as secret practice, it appeared that he was trying to cover up. Meanwhile the second eleven was going through the same formations on the regular practice field.

Daniels Beats Simms in 10 Rounds; Mandell Loses

Cleveland, O., Oct. 23. — (AP) — Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight, won a 10-round decision over Eddie Simms of Cleveland tonight. There were no knockdowns.

Jackie Davis, Cleveland welterweight, beat Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., in a 10-round semi-final.

GOPHER POWER IS MENACE TO HAWKEYE HOPES

It's Up to Chicago to Halt Wolverines.

The jigsaw puzzle of Western conference football, thus far more complex than in many a bygone season, will undergo considerable attention Saturday, with the promise that at least a couple of pieces in the problem will be joined together.

The first portion of the puzzle naturally involves the surprising University of Iowa team, which, after a desolate four years, finds itself in the strange position of heading the conference with two victories and no defeats. The Hawkeyes, under the guidance of Ossie Solem, have seen their lineup shifted hither and yon, tackles becoming guards and fullbacks becoming ends, with amazing results to date.

Meet Gophers Saturday.

Not only is Iowa's position at the head of the Big Ten peculiar, but also precarious, for Saturday they will face their hardest test thus far when they invade Minneapolis to help Minnesota's Gophers mark their homecoming. Minnesota, which began its season with ties with Indiana and Purdue, is now looked upon as one of the most powerful teams in the conference on the basis of last week's victory over what was presumably a stronger Pittsburgh eleven.

Michigan, with another team similar to those which have either won or tied for the championship within the last three years, will come to Chicago for a game which before the season appeared to be a soft spot on the Wolverine schedule. Despite Purdue's 14 to 0 win over Chicago last week and Michigan's triumph over Ohio State, followers of the Ann Arbor team still regard the Maroons as a real threat, one which may produce the upset it has been suspected of being capable of producing.

Purdue Plays Wisconsin.

In one of the other two conference games of the day, Purdue, which has tied Minnesota and defeated Chicago, will attempt to improve its standing with a decision over Wisconsin at Madison. The Badgers, despite defeats by Illinois and Iowa, are still rated short of their full strength and may turn on the Boilermakers.

Two other Big Ten elevens, Northwestern and Ohio State, both reckoned contenders in the early season guessing, will come together at Columbus. Both have been defeated. Northwestern having been taken off its feet in its game by Iowa, and Ohio State, after running up huge point totals against Vanderbilt and Virginia, by Michigan. The Wildcats figure their chances excellent, particularly after their victory over Indiana last week.

Illinois and Indiana, the other two members of the conference, will be idle Saturday.

IOWA GETS NEW PLAYS.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—University of Iowa football players spent the practice period today digesting the report of scouts on Minnesota's attack, and learning new plays for use against the Gophers Saturday. Freshmen were drilled on the Minnesota offense which will be tried against the varsity in scrimmage later this week.

After the skull session Coach Ossie Solem had the Hawkeye first string run through the new plays, but all contact work was withheld until tomorrow.

Solem told the Iowa squad "Minnesota is by far the toughest team we have met so far, and it will be a lot too tough for us if we play like we did against Wisconsin." He pointed out that the blocking and tackling in Saturday's game here was ragged.

DAY OFF FOR GOPHERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—With the entire squad drawing a day off because of their work in upsetting Pittsburgh, 7 to 3, Saturday, attention turned to preparations for Iowa in the homecoming contest at Memorial stadium Saturday. The game pits two former teammates against each other in Coaches Bernie Bierman and Ossie Solem. Both played at Minnesota under the late Dr. H. L. Williams.

Manager Les Schroeder received a hurry up request from Iowa City for 1,000 more tickets for the Iowa section in the Gopher stadium. The Hawkeyes previously had ordered 2,500 tickets, making the migration to Minneapolis the largest in four years and one of the largest in history. A crowd of 40,000 to 45,000 is predicted.

The Gophers emerged from the Pittsburgh game with only minor injuries and indicated that they will be in fine shape for Iowa.

PURDUE RESPECTS BADGERS.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—While the players who earned a 14 to 0 victory over Chicago Saturday, were given a rest today, the remainder of Purdue's squad was sent through an intensive drill as Coach Noble Kizer launched preparations for the third successive Big Ten encounter away from home against Wisconsin's Badgers Saturday.

Despite the fact that the Badgers dropped their first two conference encounters, the past history of the Purdue-Wisconsin series, coupled with the potential strength reported by Purdue scouts, has kept any feeling of over-confidence from creeping in. Without exception, the last six games between the teams have been spectacular affairs. On Purdue's last visit to Madison the Badgers produced a stunning 21 to 14 upset. In the last six games, Purdue has scored 66 points against 64 points by Wisconsin.

KING GENIUS IS SURPRISE VICTOR AT HORSE SHOW

Totokonoolah Defeated in Fine Harness Class.

First stake competition in the World's Fair horse show at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night saw defeat of Totokonoolah, five year old chestnut which won the fine harness class event for stallions at Louisville, Ky., last month. King Genius, a nine year old chestnut owned by Roger A. Selby of Portsmouth, O., was the winner.

Totokonoolah, one of the outstanding sons of Chief of Longview, had been a consistent winner, starting as a yearling at the Kentucky state fair. King Genius is one of the more famous offspring of the great sire, Bourbon King, out of Princess Eugenia. He gave a fine exhibition to defeat Totokonoolah for the championship in the five galted stallion division.

Lives Up to Name.

Winning Ways, six year old chestnut mare, owned by Louis Kayser of New York, won the other stake on the night's program, defeating the Lexington Saddle farm's Lutie Dare in the three galted saddle horse event for any sex over 14.2 hands and not exceeding 15 hands.

Sir King, a four year old chestnut gelding owned by the Mills Brothers of Chicago, entered into the four cornered fight for the blue ribbon in this event and was awarded third over Miss Frances Dodge's Pendennis, seven year old bay gelding from Rochester, Mich.

Field Adjutant Best.

One of the outstanding victors on last night's program was Field Adjutant, a leading money earner from the Heyl Pony Farm of Washington, Ill. Field Adjutant, winner of five $1,000 stakes this year, is an English bred bay gelding imported by George A. Heyl & Son several years ago after sweeping championships in the British Isles.

By his victory in the heavy harness horse class last night the eight year old son of the famous English hackney sire, Danum Grand Fashion, qualified for the $1,000 heavy harness stake Saturday night. He gave a stylish exhibition and was a favorite with the 4,000 spectators.

Irish Take Lead.

The Irish Free State jumping team celebrated Irish night by taking the lead from the United States army horse show team from Fort Riley, Kas., in the international military trophy event. The Irish team had only 12 faults scored against it, principally because of the perfect performance of Gallow Glass, ridden by Capt. E. Ahearn. The Swedish team finished second and the United States third.

Last night's competition, the second in a series of four jumps for the international trophy, gave the Irish a total of 6¾ faults for first place, the United States second with 68½ faults, Sweden third with 75¾ faults, and the Czecko Slovakian army team fourth with 146¾ faults.

OFFENSIVE PUNCH N. U. OBJECTIVE IN DRILLS FOR OHIO

Continued Improvement Is Sought by Coaches.

Continued improvement will be the objective of Northwestern's football team as preparations proceed this week for the Ohio State game at Columbus Saturday. The rapid strides made since the Iowa defeat three weeks ago, while pleasing to the coaching staff, still leaves room for further progress.

The fact that the Wildcats were able to push over three touchdowns against the heavy Indiana team despite unfavorable weather conditions is a strong indication that the squad actually does possess an offensive punch.

Against Ohio the Wildcat line will again be outweighed. The Buckeye line packs more poundage than any team in the conference.

"We've come a long way in three weeks," Coach Dick Hanley said yesterday. "Our defense continues to give a good account of itself. Our problem is to continue the improvement on offense we have shown in the last two games. Our backs are running better and the team is beginning to block as a unit."

HOOSIERS GET HOLIDAY.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Following their defeat at the hands of Northwestern Saturday, Indiana university football regulars started a period of rest today. With no game on the schedule this week end, the Indiana first string men, believed to have gone stale from batterings in the first four games, will not be required to report for practice until the middle of the week, Coach E. C. Hayes announced.

Meanwhile Hoosier coaches started working on reserves in an effort to develop material. Indiana's next game is against Ohio State at Columbus, Nov. 4.

WILLAMAN GOES GOLFING.

Columbus, O., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Coach Sam Willaman took to the golf course this afternoon in an effort to forget Ohio State's defeat at the hands of Michigan, Saturday.

The Buckeye team, from the scrubs to the varsity, were granted a holiday in which to recuperate from bumps and bruises. None of the Buckeye players was seriously hurt, although Vuchinich, center, was bruised rather severely but not enough to keep him from practice long. Jack Smith received a sprained ankle and John McAfee received a shoulder injury.

Willaman plans no scrimmage during the week other than the tag scrimmage against freshmen who will demonstrate Northwestern plays.

It was indicated that Pincura would be shifted to the first team at quarterback in coming games. Willaman has indicated that he has at least three other shifts in mind.

BADGERS STUDY FAULTS.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Coach Clarence W. Spears today began training the Wisconsin Badgers with an objective of making them perform throughout the game with Purdue next Saturday as they did in the third quarter against Iowa when they marched to a touchdown. If this can be accomplished coaches are confident the Badgers will have a chance to win.

No serious injuries were suffered by the Badgers in the Iowa game.

ILLINI GIVEN REST.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Taking advantage of the fact that the Illini have no game this week, Coach Bob Zuppke called off practice for the squad today. It is probable that the regulars, at least, will rest tomorrow also resuming work Wednesday.

IRISH START EARLY.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Opening the week with the first Monday scrimmage in years, Coach Hunk Anderson today began mapping his plans to save Notre Dame's slipping football prestige in Saturday's game with Pittsburgh at Notre Dame stadium.

The varsity was too tired from Saturday's game with Carnegie Tech to skirmish today, but Anderson has promised it plenty of heavy work later in the week.

There were six sophomores in the shock troop lineup for today's scrimmage. They were Johnny Young and Mike Layden, half backs; Wayne Millner, left end; Ken Stilley and John Michuta, tackles, and Fred Solari, center. Jim Leonard, a senior, was at left guard, with Joe Pivarnik, also a senior, as his running mate. Irwin Davis, right end and Reyman, Bonar, quarter back, are juniors. Lowell Hagan, senior full back, worked in today's scrimmage.

The fact that this team plowed through the second best freshman team on the field was little consolation to Anderson. He said that the whole Notre Dame group, varsity, reserve, and freshmen, is weaker than in the past, basing his opinion on the fact that the varsity teams look good in scrimmage against the reserves and freshmen and then fail when they hit outside competition.

COLISEUM TO OPEN SATURDAY TO ICE SKATERS

The Coliseum will be opened to ice skating for the winter season Saturday morning.

Emil W. Iverson, former coach of the Blackhawk hockey team, supervised the formation of the Chicago Amateur Hockey association which will foster skating in all its variations.

Iverson and his associates contemplate a program of hockey games, winter sports carnivals, speed events, figure skating for both individuals and clubs, and sessions of public skating this winter.

Bill Hewitt Gives Away Bears' Secret

BY WILFRID SMITH.

How do you account for the Chicago Bears' last minute rallies which now have won four of their five victories in the pro league? This business of waiting until the last opportunity to defeat the other team has made the Bears a miracle team, but how do they do it?

The Bears don't know and neither does George Halas, their coach. But the fact remains that the Bears have something that pulls them through. Maybe it's luck. The Packers will agree, for Green Bay now has been defeated twice. Boston also will agree that it's luck, for the Redskins were whipped, 7 to 0. So will the Cardinals who were beaten, 12 to 9, in the fourth period.

Bill Hewitt has a theory. "We wait until the last minute so that when we get ahead the other team doesn't have time to catch up. Some day," Bill added, "the Bears will play the fourth quarter first and we'll run up an all time scoring record."

Luck Has a Part.

Luck has played a part. Boston might easily have scored one or two touchdowns in the first period of the game with the Bears at Soldiers' field, but the Redskins fumbled once and other plays misfired so that Sisk's touchdown dash in the last period won for the Bears. The Packers know that if Clark Hinkle hadn't fumbled on the Bears' one yard line in the third period Sunday they would have led, 14 to 0, going into the fourth quarter and the Bears' heroics would have been useless.

So much for luck. How about the Bears themselves? First, they have a team spirit which some colleges never acquire. They haven't eased up in the final minutes and now their rallies have fostered confidence. They have had excellent generalship from Keith Molesworth and Carl Brumbaugh, who have chosen the touchdown plays.

Heroes Take Turns.

The hero rôle has been passed around. Hewitt had his day at Green Bay, throwing the tieing touchdown and blocking the kick. Big George Musso blocked a Cardinal kick for a safety which tied that game. John Doehring threw a most vital pass Sunday. Grange tossed the tieing touchdown pass. And Jack Manders never misses on kicks after touchdowns or from the field. Manders' place kicking also involves perfect cooperation from Ookie Miller and Brumbaugh, not forgetting the blocking in the line.

This is how the Bears scored the tying touchdown against Green Bay Sunday (see diagram).

The Bears used a balanced line. Molesworth [No. 1], quarter back; Grange [No. 2], left half; Bronko Nagurski [No. 3], full back, and Doehring [No. 4] formed the back field. The Packers used a box defense with six men on the line and the center ready to plug for a plunge, cover the flanks or cover passes.

Grange In Motion.

Grange started in motion to his right before Miller passed the ball from center. He ran in front of Nagurski and Doehring and continued wide. Miller snapped the ball to Molesworth. Nagurski plunged at the Packers' left tackle and Molesworth faked as if to give him the ball. In the meantime Doehring ran at the defensive end, but swerved and continued at an angle into defensive territory. Karr, left end, and Johnsos, right end, also went out as eligible pass receivers.

Nagurski blocked the Bays' left tackle. A lineman blocked the left end. After faking to Nagurski, Molesworth passed laterally to Grange. Red had an option. He could run if the Packer defense covered the receivers and the lateral pass had placed him outside the Packer left end. Or, if a receiver was open, he could pass.

The first man [A] in the Packer secondary defense covered Doehring. Johnny Blood [B] made the mistake of coming up to stop a run by Grange. This left Johnsos uncovered in the Green Bay end zone and Grange's throw resulted in a touchdown.

Chicago Girls Leave to Play Champion Quintet

The John E. Ricketts Girls Basketball team of Chicago left yesterday for Edmonton, Canada, to play the world champion Edmonton Commercial Grads for the Underwood international trophy. Seven girls and Dr. R. H. Lawler, coach, are making the 2,300 mile trip. The team formerly was known as the Six Points. Members of the Chicago team include Madge Kline, Daisy Williams, Diana Wilson, Ruth Reidl, Ruth McCracken, Evelyn Krubaeck, and Julia Stluka.

Bears' Fun Is Over; Newman Comes Sunday

The New York Giants, who are casting a long, dark shadow across the championship trail of the Bears, invade Wrigley field Sunday, and the longest shadow of all is that of Harry Newman.

Like Benny Friedman, Newman left Michigan with an amazing record and stepped into the National league to become an immediate sensation. Newman is the passing ace of the league.

In addition he is up with the leaders in ground gained, in punting, in tackling and blocking. Many rate Newman even greater than Friedman was in his first season in the National league.

Supported by Veterans.

Without a doubt he is the outstanding individual menace the Bears have been face to face with this season. Even the final minutes rallies that have won four games this year, may not suffice to win Sunday if the Bears fail to this one man.

Newman's support comes from those veterans who have annoyed the Bears in the past. They are Ray Flaherty, Len Grant, Tiny Feather, Glenn Campbell, Jack McBride, Bo Molenda, Red Badgro, Dale Burnett, Mel Hein, Bill Owen and Ken Strong.

Line Averages 210 Pounds.

Coached by Steve Owens, who was a star giant linesman for several years, the easterners will present a line that averages 210 pounds. Tex Irvin is the heaviest man, weighing 232 pounds. The squad will arrive in Chicago Thursday and will be quartered at the Knickerbocker hotel.

C. Y. O. to Open Annual Boxing Meet Tomorrow

The Catholic Youth Organization's annual boxing tournament will open tomorrow night when the north section preliminary bouts are to be held at Loyola gymnasium. Judges sorted the north siders into novice and championship divisions after watching them box two one minute rounds last night.

The north section eliminations will continue Thursday and Friday by which time the field will be cut down to 32 boys—16 in the championship class and 16 in the novice division. Approximately 500 will compete in the bouts at Loyola.

Those who survive will enter the quarter finals which are to be held at the C. Y. O. center Nov. 20. The semi-finals are scheduled for Nov. 23 and the finals Dec. 1.

More than two thousand boys will compete in the tournament, the field being divided into north, south, west and Joliet sections. The Joliet preliminaries will begin a week from tonight, the south side Nov. 8 and the west side Nov. 15.

Among those who will fight this week at Loyola are Jimmy Christy, Central A. A. U. featherweight titleholder; Luke Ebel, middleweight champion of Wisconsin; Ernie Kulasik, winner of the C. Y. O. welterweight crown last season, and Jules Bracke, Lake county light heavyweight champion.

St. Alphonsus parish, represented by 21 boys, will send the greatest number of contestants into the north side preliminaries. Our Lady of Victory has entered 18, St. Viator 15 and St. Vincent 15.

SUTHERLAND TO LEAVE PITT FOR OHIO, IS RUMOR

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—There is a growing possibility that Jock Sutherland, head football coach, may leave Pitt at the end of this year and succeed Sam Willaman at Ohio State. It has been printed off and on in Pittsburgh papers that this will be Sutherland's last year at Pitt.

DAY IS VICTOR OVER ENGEL IN MARIGOLD BOUT

Davey Day beat George Engel of South Bend, Ind., in a six round windup last night at Marigold Garden for his 23d victory in 24 professional appearances. Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., heavyweight, whipped Frank Ketter in the five round semi-final. Other results:

John Mirabal and Frank Minerva, drew [4].
Frank White beat Bobby Millsapp [4].
Tommy Bruce knocked out Tommy Atkins [1].

Storm Sends Wild Geese to Illinois Lakes

BY BOB BECKER.

The wild geese have been coming down from the north. This is the flash which we received from Cairo, Ill., a few days ago. Since the big storm which hit the middle west last week-end thousands of both ducks and geese have taken to their flyways. It usually takes a severe weather disturbance to stir up the waterfowl and make them boarders in the state of Illinois.

We have had wandering flocks of wild geese in northern Illinois for some time. One or two bunches have been coming down to Lake Michigan between Highland Park and Lake Forest to spend the night on the open water. By day they poke around in the cornfields picking up plenty of food. Their noisy marches across the sky always attract attention.

Sees Lone Canadian Goose.

While hunting near the Sangamon river about a week ago we were surprised to see a lone wild Canadian goose from our duck blind. The bird was headed for Crane lake. This fellow looked rather pathetic. He was flying rather slowly across the wind, apparently very lonesome and doing his best to locate a traveling companion.

We could hear his "awnk—awnk—awnk" quite plainly. But there were no other geese to carry on a conversation. Geese are such sociable birds, so extremely talkative when on the wing that this single honker looked out of place as he picked his way over the lowlands.

Last week we saw another aristocrat of the waterfowl world when we were in the northern Illinois lake region. This was the highly prized canvasback, the duck that is considered by many waterfowlers as the finest game bird that can be shot over decoys or served with wild rice at the sportsman's table.

Bag Several Canvasbacks.

A good sized flock of canvasbacks swung past Clemenson's point in Long lake, where Robert and George McDermott of Waukegan, Ill., had their blind. Approximately 106 block decoys and a bunch of live callers in front of the point drew the canvasbacks within range. They flew past the blind at dazzling speed, but not too fast for some fine shooting, which netted a good bunch of those canvasbacks.

Besides the aristocratic canvasbacks a flight of birds into northern Illinois also brought a few ringnecks or blackjacks, a few scaups and some baldpates, without doubt one of the handsomest ducks in North America. The sleek little ringnecks [also known as fall ducks], scaups and canvasbacks belong to the group of birds known as open water or deep diving waterfowl which pass up shallow sloughs and potholes for the big water.

DON HAMILTON, HARRY HAMPTON WIN P. G. A. FINAL

The Illinois P. G. A., pro-amateur league, held its annual wind-up yesterday at Beverly, the home club of Secretary Don Hamilton. A large entry competed while several non-playing members attended the dinner and business session.

Harry Hampton, home club professional, and Secretary Hamilton captured first prize with 34—33—67, four under par. Hampton did most of the heavy work up to the greens, but when it came to putting, Hamilton was there. Don sank them from all corners of the green, which enabled the home club duo to win by two strokes.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW About FOOTBALL STARS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

HAROLD SMITH, captain of the University of Wisconsin football team, probably rates as the oldest gent in a Big Ten varsity lineup, but Mr. Smith can still get around without the aid of a ricksha when they send him out to play a little full back for the Badgers.

Smith, whose home is in Madison, admits to 27 years, and some folks figure that is a conservative estimate. Certain gray haired alumni are willing to wager Hal was on the Badgers' last championship team, back in 1912, but it only seems that long. He played full back at Wisconsin under Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite in 1928, then dropped out of school for a couple of seasons, returning last year to star in the back field as the Badgers went through the season with the loss of only one game.

Capt. Hal reported for duty this fall carrying with him a lot of surplus baggage around the waist line. His playing weight is between 184 and 188 pounds, but he was packing 207 when practice began, causing Doc Spears to ask "Who's that fellow with you, Smith?" every time Hal dropped into his office in the old armory gym. Latest reports are that Smith is melting rapidly, a couple of days with the third team hastening the process.

Pacetti Shrinks 16 Pounds, but He's Still Big Enough.

Mario Pacetti, the towering Badger tackle from Kenosha, has been worrying about weight, too, but in the other direction. Mario was the best tackle on the squad last season, when he weighed 221 pounds, but now he has shrunk to 205 and feels like a pushover for the opposition. The opposition begs to state, however, that Mario doesn't play as he feels. In the spring he throws the discus and puts the shot for the track team.

When members of the football squad want a little help with their lessons they call on Bobby Schiller, half back from Milwaukee, who has an average of 87-88 for three years in the civil engineering course. Bobby also remembers the answers to his football problems, and, although he weighs only 168 pounds, can smack into a line and keep going because of short, powerful legs. On the campus Schiller is also useful in the perpetual feud between law and engineering students.

Porrett Is the Loudest if Not the Best Singer.

For real singing, however, the Badgers recommend Leo Porrett, quarter back from Waukegan, Ill., whose efforts in the showers at Camp Randall are said to remind his listeners of Bing Crosby—with a bad cold. Crooner Porrett played the part of a woman in the annual show of the Haresfoot club, whose slogan is "All our girls are men, yet every one's a lady."

Marvin [Red] Peterson, half back from Manitowoc, Wis., whose 70 yard touchdown sprint enabled the Badgers to tie Ohio State last year, is the team's fastest runner and also the hard luck champion. Red suffered a dislocated shoulder late last season, got a beautiful black eye in the opener with Marquette this year, and then received another dislocated shoulder in the Illinois game. A special brace will permit Red to keep on trying.

FORMER STARS OF N. U. DEFEAT TULSA, 34 TO 30

Led by Bob Gruenig, lengthy center, a team of former Northwestern university basketball stars last night rallied to upset the Diamond Oilers of Tulsa, Okla., National A. A. U. and North American champions, 34 to 30, in the first of a two game series at the 132d regiment armory. The series, designed to be the basketball feature of A Century of Progress, will be concluded tomorrow night at the armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

The onetime Wildcats appeared to be outdistanced until the closing minutes of the game, lagging 21 to 14 at the half and 30 to 16 with eight minutes of the closing period remaining. Gruenig, who first gained fame at Crane Tech, then began the rally which led to victory.

Johnson finally tied the score for the ex-Wildcats with a long shot from beyond the middle of the floor. Gruenig then added another basket following a missed free throw, and came through with another on a tip-in shot. He led the victors with a total of 16 points. Chuck Hyatt, former Pittsburgh star, headed the losers with four baskets and two free throws.

It was the first defeat for the Oilers in the last two years.

In a preliminary game the Durant, Okla., girls scored their 73d consecutive victory by defeating the Spencer Coals team of Chicago, 24 to 18. The score was tied at halftime, 8 to 8.

SEEK CHICAGO GAMES.

The 20 Grand club basketball team is seeking games with Chicago quintets. The 20 Grands won the Detroit City Class A championship last season. Bob Uzzelle, 116 Elmhurst, Highland Park, Mich., is the manager.

WRESTLING SEEKS RETURN TO GRACE TOMORROW NIGHT

Stadium Card Brings Back Familiar Faces.

The bleat of the behemoth and the moan of the mammoth will echo once more at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night as the grand old sport of wrestling, a trifle diffident after its embarrassing exit of last spring following the Savoldi-Londos business, makes its return to what its sponsors trust is a waiting Chicago public.

Familiar names crowd the formal opening program of the 1933 season as conducted by the Stadium Operating corporation. Among these are Joe Stecher, a patriarch who goes back to the days before wrestling went vaudeville; Jim McMillen, Red Grange's old partner from the University of Illinois, and George Zaharias of Colorado. Bronko Nagurski, who has punished opponents' lines for Minnesota and the Chicago Bears, will also appear.

Documents on File, Anyway.

The Stadium corporation, true to the tradition of making each entertainment seem more crucial than its predecessors, has stressed the fact that it wishes to clear up the business of whether James Londos, the perpetual champion of the game, will defend his crown against any or all of the competitors on tomorrow's card.

The corporation filed documents with the Illinois Athletic commission of an agreement with James whereby he will meet anybody, not to mention Jim Browning and Joe Savoldi, both regarded as pretenders by James and his people.

McMillen Meets Stecher.

Tomorrow night at the Stadium, McMillen will meet Stecher, while other matches bring together Nagurski and Pat O'Shocker, Zaharias and Dominic De Vito, Ray Steele and Dr. Karl Sarpolis, Everett Marshall and Darna Ostepavitch.

Morgan Park Whips Phillips Eleven, 14 to 0

Four high school games postponed Saturday were played off yesterday in various sections of the city.

Morgan Park, city league champion turned in the most impressive victory by defeating Phillips, 14 to 0, in south section encounter at 110th street and Hermosa avenue. Christy, Morgan Park full back, was the offensive star scoring all fourteen points.

Held scoreless in the first half, Englewood rallied in the final period for an 18 to 0 victory over Tilden Tech in a central section game at Normal park. Metto scored two touchdowns one on an intercepted pass, and the other on a forty yard dash.

Lake View and Roosevelt gained ground in the race for the north section title by battling to a scoreless tie at Logan park. Lake View threatened twice, but was held on the 1 yard line in the second quarter and stopped on the three yard stripe in the third period.

In the West Suburban league, Glenbard triumphed, 6 to 0, over West Chicago on the latter's field. Andrew after tossing a pass to McCloud which was good for 25 yards, scored on a 12 yard end run.

WILLIAM N. DOAK, HOOVER'S LABOR SECRETARY, DIES

Heart Disease Is Fatal at Age of 51 Years.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Less than eight months after he left his post as secretary of labor in the Hoover cabinet, William N. Doak died today at his home on a Virginia bluff overlooking Washington.

WILLIAM N. DOAK.

Masonic funeral services will be held at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday, with temporory interment in a local mausoleum until arrangements are completed for burial at his old home at Rural Retreat, Va.

Doak, who was 51 years old, died of heart disease after suffering a severe attack several weeks ago.

The first American born secretary of labor, Doak took office in the middle of the last Republican administration, Nov. 28 , 1930.

Opposed by Organized Labor.

Before President Hoover's inauguration the name of the railroad brotherhood official was mentionedv widely for the labor post, but he was opposed by the American Federation of Labor, which insisted that it had obtained creation of the labor department and should have one of its members in the cabinet.

In a compromise move, Mr. Hoover reappointed the incumbent, James J. Davis, as labor secretary, and the latter served until he was elected senator from Pennsylvania.

Hoover Meets Challenge.

Again the opposition to Doak's appointment arose and William Green, president of the labor federation, went to the White House with a demand for the right to have a voice in the selection.

Shortly thereafter Mr. Hoover announced that in view of Green's attitude he had no alternative but to meet the challenge by naming Doak.

Before that Doak had been legislative representative of the railway brotherhoods in the capital and after March 4 of this year he returned to that job.

Doak is survived by his widow, the former Miss Emma Marie Cricher of Ironton, O.

Edwin H. Higgins, California Oil Man, Dies on Way Here

Edwin H. Higgins, 55 years old, secretary and manager of the California Oil and Gas association, died early yesterday of a heart attack on the Santa Fe railroad's Chief while the train was traveling between Joliet and Chicago. He was en route with a party of friends to the annual meeting of the American Petroleum institute, to be held here this week. Mr. Higgins was a resident of Los Angeles, a native of Florida and a graduate of Lehigh university.

J. LEWIS BROWNE, MUSIC DIRECTOR IN SCHOOLS, DIES

Composer of 60 Songs; Famous as Organist.

Dr. J. Lewis Browne, director of music in the Chicago public schools, died yesterday of heart disease in his home at 715 Rush street. He was 69 years old.

DR. J. LEWIS BROWNE.

Dr. Browne, known as composer, director, and organist, had composed more than 60 sacred and secular songs and the opera "La Corsicana." He was brought to the United States from London by his parents in 1872, was educated in the United States and Europe, and was granted a doctor's degree in music in 1902 by the University of the State of New York.

Dr. Browne came to Chicago to design the orchestra in the Medinah temple and to direct the symphony orchestra there. He had served as organ soloist at the Royal Academy of St. Cecilia at Rome and Wanamaker's Egyptian hall in Philadelphia. He had been organist and choir master of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church since 1912, and was head of the theory department of Fine Arts Conservatory of Music.

Dr. Browne entered the Chicago school system in 1928 and organized and directed the all-Chicago high school music festivals. He also planned with Dr. Frederick A. Stock the concerts of the children. He was a former dean of the Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists and a member of the Royal Philharmonic Academy of Rome.

He is survived by his widow, Jane; two sons, William A. Browne of Chicago and Lewis R. Browne of Sandwood, N. J., and four sisters.

J. F. Brown Rites Tomorrow; Veteran in Millinery Trade

James F. Brown, 65 years old, a pioneer in State street's millinery trade, who was connected with Stumer, Rosenthal & Eckstein and the Emporium World Millinery company for forty years, will be buried tomorrow morning from the home of his widow's parents at 2942 Wallace street. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery. Mr. Brown died Saturday at Canton, O., where he had lived in recent years. He is survived by his widow and six children.

John J. Lenihan Funeral Scheduled for Tomorrow

Funeral services for John J. Lenihan, 74 years old, a retired employe of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at St. Philip Neri Roman Catholic church, at 72d street and Merrill avenue. Burial will be in All Saints cemetery. Mr. Lenihan lived at 7407 Paxton avenue. He had been a resident of Chicago for more than fifty years. He is survived by four sons, three of whom served in the war, and a daughter.

L. V. Bright, Financier, Dies While Talking Business

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Louis Victor Bright, chairman of the board of the Lawyers' Title and Guaranty company and of the Lawyers' Title corporation, and an officer or director in many other corporations, died of a heart attack this afternoon in his office.

Mr. Bright was chatting with John Stoehr when he collapsed and died.

Dr. Donald J. Armour, British Brain Specialist, Drops Dead

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Dr. Donald John Armour, celebrated British brain and nerve specialist, died suddenly at a meeting of the Medical society of London tonight. Dr. Armour was surgeon to the National Hospital for Nervous Diseases, an honorary Lieut. Col. and consulting surgeon to many institutions.

HARROLD, OPERA TENOR, ILL TWO DAYS, DIES AT 55

Darien, Conn., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Orville Harrold, former tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, died suddenly today at his summer home at the age of 55 years.

ORVILLE HARROLD.

The singer, discovered by Oscar Hammerstein, retired from opera several years ago and since then had been doing concert work.

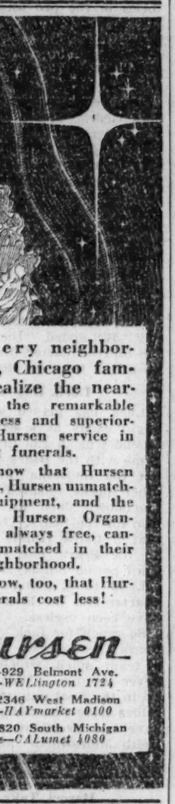
Funeral arrangements had not been completed, but his body will be sent to Muncie, Ind., his native city, for burial.

Harrold is survived by his widow; a daughter, Patti Harrold, musical comedy star of Hollywood, and a son, Paul.

Harrold first attracted public attention when he sang at the Chicago World Fair in 1893 as the "Boy Wonder of Muncie." Later he went to New York, where he appeared in vaudeville and light opera before joining the Metropolitan Opera company in 1919. He left the company seven years later.

WATCHMAN IS ASPHYXIATED.

Lafayette Spark, 52 years old, a watchman, was found asphyxiated early yesterday at 6042 South State street, where he was employed. He apparently had started a fire in an open fireplace during the night and had been overcome by the fumes.



IN every neighborhood, Chicago families realize the nearness, the remarkable promptness and superiority of Hursen service in directing funerals.
They know that Hursen elegance, Hursen unmatchable equipment, and the use of Hursen Organ-Chapels, always free, cannot be matched in their own neighborhood.
They know, too, that Hursen funerals cost less!

INDUSTRY PLANS GROUP TO MATCH POWER OF LABOR

Leaders Seek More Voice in NRA.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Plans for a new and more powerful organization of industrial and manufacturing leaders to meet what they consider labor's growing power are in the blue print stage and formal announcement is expected within two weeks.

Leaders in the new organization, to be centered in the present National Association of Manufacturers, were working to form a group that would be equal in strength to the American Federation of Labor and could deal with government's increasing interest in private business.

The primary initial effort will be directed at dealing with industrial and labor problems that spring up before the industrial administration and after that to establish a business planning group to coöperate with government planning agencies. Development of this second point is awaiting more direct evidence of what policies those agencies will pursue.

Plan to Concentrate Industry.

The persons concerned have had several meetings here and in New York and have about decided to build from within the National Association of Manufacturers, which already has organized many state councils of manufacturers which might form the foundation of the larger group.

The new organization would not attempt to encompass the United States Chamber of Commerce, the other principal organization of business men, but would attempt to concentrate manufacturing and heavy industry in one body that could speak more effectively to NRA. Distribution and smaller trade groups would retain their voice through the Chamber of Commerce.

Discussion started some weeks ago, when the leaders concerned decided the industrial advisory council was not getting the industrial support it needed. They argued that it was time to organize business and industry as coherently as the American Federation of Labor.

Confer with NRA Officials.

In line with this idea, trade association executives, apparently not connected with the plan to build up the Manufacturers' association, have met with NRA officials in an attempt to clarify the position of trade associations which, some of the executives felt, were slowly being eliminated in favor of more directly government controlled bodies.

Some business executives expressed belief that concentrated industrial organization would be impossible because there was too much individualism among business leaders to give way to the rule of a smaller group or council. These executives contended that such organization would receive an unfavorable public reception as being formed to direct NRA along more conservative lines.

DU PONT INCOME DOUBLE THAT OF 1932 QUARTER

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries report for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1933, a net income of $11,981,980, including income from investments and after provision for federal taxes and interest on bonds of subsidiaries, in comparison with net income of $5,531,096 in the like quarter of 1932.

Including the company's equity in undivided profits or losses of controlled companies not consolidated, the earnings applicable to common stock amounted to $10,447,092, or 95 cents per share, compared with earnings of $3,952,717 in the like quarter of 1932, or 36 cents per share.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1933, there was a consolidated net income of $26,437,238, against $19,733,517 in the comparable period of last year. Earnings applicable to common stock were reported as $21,724,642, or $1.98 a share, compared with $14,914,884, or $1.37 a share, in the corresponding months of 1932.

EASTERN ROADS FAIL TO ADOPT BASIC FARE CUT

The eastern railroads will not join the western roads in reducing the basic passenger fare of 3.6 cents a mile according to an announcement made in New York yesterday by the committee of eastern rail presidents which has been weighing the fare question.

It was explained by the committee that the roads would meet the situation by making special rates which would "tend to attract an increased rail travel."

The western roads several weeks ago made drastic cuts in passenger fares and eliminated the surcharge on Pullman accomodations.

SANTA FE SETS YEAR'S HIGH FOR WEEK'S LOADINGS

The Santa Fe railway yesterday reported that its car loadings in the week ended Oct. 21 reached the high mark for the year on a total of 28,345 compared with 27,929 in the preceding week. Loadings for the same week in 1932, however, totaled 30,348.

Loadings on the North Western totaled 23,428 cars compared with 25,408 a year ago and with 25,029 in the preceding week of this year.

Milwaukee loadings also receded, totaling 24,554 compared with 26,143 in the preceding week and 25,703 in the like week of 1932.

Group Chosen to Push Bank Stock Buying

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—President Roosevelt today announced the formation of a special division in the Reconstruction Finance corporation to foster government purchases of preferred stock from state banks as a means for expanding available credit.

Sales of stock by the state banks to the RFC are to be arranged as these institutions qualify for membership in the federal deposit insurance corporation which, beginning Jan. 1, is to insure all deposits in qualifying banks up to $2,500.

The President explained his move as another in his program to ease credit and thus speed recovery.

Urges Adequate Bank Capital.

"Everybody knows that you cannot have business and farming carried on without a banking system to serve business and farmers," he said. "Recently the Reconstruction Finance corporation has urged banks needing additional capital, in order that they might give credit to business men and farmers, to secure that capital by the sale to the Reconstruction Finance corporation of preferred stock.

"This is already being done in many cases. But we hope that all banks will take advantage of this opportunity to put themselves in an easy cash position to help in the work of recovery. This opportunity is along the lines of giving these banks adequate working capital.

"It is well known that the federal government has no supervisory relation with state banks not members of the federal reserve system. We are getting our first official and general contact with them since the bank holiday through the new federal deposit insurance corporation. We want to take advantage of this contact for the benefit of the banks and the communities they serve by taking up with them at this time the question of the adequacy of their working capital.

Provides Greater Service.

"We want them to be able to do their part and if they find use for more capital to do their part well and comfortably, we should do everything humanly possible to see that they get it. In other words, deposit insurance gives us the opportunity not only to protect depositors, but to make more serviceable our whole banking system. By doing that, we shall bring a powerful force, an indispensable force into action to speed recovery."

To direct the new stock buying program, the President selected Harvey Couch, director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The committee serving with him will consist of Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the corporation; Eugene Black, governor of the federal reserve board; Dean Acheson, undersecretary of the treasury; Lewis Douglas, director of the budget; J. F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency; Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation; Henry Bruere, coördinator of credit agencies, and Frank Walker, secretary of the super cabinet.

Gov. Black is to head a subcommittee on coöperation with member banks in this same effort.

President Explains Plan.

In a supplementary statement the President said:

"We began last week through the deposit liquidation board to distribute money to depositors in banks closed since January 1, 1933. There are about 3,500 of such banks.

"By making loans on the assets in liquidation up to an amount justified by liquidation we hope to distribute to depositors up to a billion dollars with the least possible delay. Where delays occur they will be due to lawsuits beyond our control and not to a lack of effort or readiness to help on the part of the federal government.

"The thawing out of frozen deposits will put money in the hands of thousands who desperately need that money to live on, and it will restore working capital and credit to business men and farmers all over the country. This drive to distribute frozen deposits is one of the major steps of the recovery program. I count on the coöperation of every one concerned to get this job done and done quickly. . . .

Banks' Response Wiedspread.

"There is widespread response already from the banks to our invitation to coöperate in this way in improving the nation's banking facilities. This response is coming from all types of banks—the greatest as well as the small banks—and is coming from all parts of the country.

"To accept the government's offer to purchase preferred stock does not mean that a bank is weak, but that it is eager to coöperate in the recovery effort to the fullest possible extent and thus undertake to put this additional capital to work. We are not thinking of idle capital. We are thinking of working capital—capital working for recovery.

"While this is going on we are getting ready to operate the new federal deposit insurance corporation. Automatically on Jan. 1 all the national banks and state banks which are members of the federal reserve system will have their deposits insured up to $2,500 for each depositor. The state banks, of which there are about 8,600 in the country which are not members of the federal reserve system, will have their deposits insured in the same way if they apply for admission to the fund and are accepted. I hope they will all apply. Under the law when they apply an examination must be made of their condition. That gives us the opportunity to do a very important thing in strengthening the banking structure, in which state nonmember banks play such an important part."

U. S. to Start Buying Butter Next Thursday

The government's farm adjustment administration will launch a nationwide purchase of surplus stocks of creamery butter Thursday morning, it was announced yesterday by H. C. Darger, dairy expert of the AAA, following the first meeting of the board of directors of the federally financed Dairy Marketing corporation.

Darger, general manager of the newly created butter buying agency with $30,000,000 of United States funds to draw upon, indicated that the buying would be carried on in all butter markets. The largest reserve stocks of butter on record are now in storage, fully two-thirds of them in Chicago warehouses.

No Figures on Purchases.

No indication could be given, Darger explained, of the amount of butter that would be purchased to strengthen all dairy products prices and to remove surplus stocks from the visible supply.

He said no figures would be given out in advance of purchases from month to month, but that the corporation has latest available statistics on the excess supplies and the needs of relief agencies for which the butter will be purchased.

The corporation will probably have headquarters at 506 South Wabash avenue, he said. Other regional officers of the AAA already are located there. The corporation has ten directors, selected to represent producers, processors and distributors of dairy products. Secretary Wallace is to purchase supplies acquired by the corporation and the federal emergency relief administration will distribute them to the needy.

Will Have Processing Tax.

Since the relief agencies will pay a lower price than that paid for the butter on the open market, the loss to the corporation is to be made up from a processing tax on all butterfat to be imposed in the near future. The amount of this tax is now under discussion in Washington.

In announcing the terms by which the corporation for dairy products was created, Secretary Wallace stated that "it is not to be taken as a precedent," and that other commodities purchased would be handled by the surplus relief corporation created by orders of President Roosevelt. Dairymen opposed the shelving of their plans for a butter buying compaign when the relief corporation was conceived.

NEW YORK GETS PAY ROLL LOAN OF 25 MILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—Arrangements by which New York City will receive $25,000,000 by Friday in order to meet its pay rolls will be completed at a general meeting of the citywide group of banks and banking houses to be held on Wednesday. The loan will be accomplished through the purchase by the bankers of revenue bills due in December and payable from collections for the last half of 1933.

Next month the city will formally schedule the sale of $70,000,000 of bonds, due from 1 to 10 years, for which the citywide banking group has agreed to enter a bid.

BUTLER OFFSETS SIX MONTH LOSS IN LAST QUARTER

Total net earnings of Butler Brothers for the third quarter were more than enough to wipe out the loss in the first six months of the year, so that a modest net profit is shown for the nine month period, Frank S. Cunningham, president, declared in a letter to stockholders.

"Business in the third quarter of the year was extraordinarily active," Mr. Cunningham said. "Merchants bought early and freely in anticipation of advancing prices.

"Our gain over 1932 in July, August, and September was 33 per cent, and for the nine months 19 per cent."

GAIN OF $147,000,000 IN DEPOSITS REPORTED BY RESERVE MEMBERS

A marked expansion in deposit of reserve member banks throughout the country occurred last week. There was also an expansion in commercial and collateral loans but this was due almost entirely to the New York City banks.

The report on member bank position in ninety leading cities, issued yesterday, showed an indicated expansion of 147 million dollars in gross deposits.

Total loans and discounts of all reporting members were up 56 million dollars. The New York member banks previously reported an expansion of 49 million dollars. Thus the gain for the balance of the country was only 7 million dollars. Chicago banks accounted for most of the remaining increase.

The expansion was about evenly divided between collateral loans and "all other loans" or commercial advances. Loans on securities were up 36 million dollars and commercial loans jumped 37 million dollars.

The figures indicate that the credit expansion policy of the administration is not yet producing definite results as far as the country as a whole is concerned. At the same time banks are piling up reserves. Another 61 million dollars was placed with the federal reserve banks last week. Reserve borrowings were cut 3 million to 20 million dollars.

GRIGSBY-GRUNOW QUARTERLY LOSS TOTALS $760,340

The Grigsby-Grunow company yesterday reported a net loss of $760,340 for the quarter ended Sept. 9 and a loss of $2,215,530 for nine months. Sales for the quarter were $2,591,727 and for the nine months, $6,408,898.

Comparable figures for the 1932 periods are not available. In the year ended Dec. 31, 1932, however, the company reported sales of $9,439,740 and net loss of $2,775,569. For the quarter ended June 30, this year, the company reported sales of $1,510,868 and net loss of $700,178.

The company's Sept. 30 balance sheet showed current assets of $3,503,605, including cash of $189,872 and notes and accounts receivable of $1,449,915. Current liabilities stood at $2,310,312. Included in the current liabilities are accrued accounts of $974,227, of which $372,623 is listed as taxes other than federal income taxes.

BROKER JOINS DAHL AS HEAD OF LIQUOR FIRM

Samuel Ungerleider, a partner of the brokerage firm of Fenner, Beane & Ungerleider, announces his withdrawal from the brokerage business as of Oct. 31. Mr. Ungerleider will become president and chairman of the board of the Distillers and Brewers' Corporation of America.

Associated with Mr. Ungerleider in the management of the company is Curtis Dall, son-in-law of President Roosevelt.

With the coming of repeal the parent company, through its subsidiaries, will market a complete line of domestic and imported whiskies, gins, wines, champagnes, cordials, liquors, brandies, ale, and beer.

Government Gets First Home Loan Bank Dividend

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today collected the first dividend on the government's investment in the home loan banks, receiving a check for $95,830 from H. S. Kissell, chairman of the board of the Federal Home Loan bank of Cincinnati.

National Life Rivals Told Not to 'Twist'

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Steps to prevent a raid on the business of the National Life Insurance Company of the U. S. A. by other firms were taken yesterday by Ernest Palmer, state superintendent of insurance.

PATRICK J. LUCEY.

A sharp warning was given to all insurance companies by Superintendent Palmer to observe the strict "anti-twisting" law which was passed at the last session of the legislature.

The move was seen as an attempt to forestall disintegration of the business of the company, which was placed in receivership last week. In previous receiverships there has been a drastic shrinkage in the volume of the business through policyholders allowing their policies to lapse. Such loss of business seriously hampers the receivers in obtaining a favorable reorganization or reinsurance contract.

Will Take Complete Inventory.

At the same time Patrick J. Lucey, receiver for the company, announced that a complete inventory of the company's assets will begin this morning. Securities, mortgages, real estate and other assets will be carefully gone over with a view of effecting an early reinsurance or reorganization.

The "anti-twisting" law invoked by Palmer is one of the most drastic of such laws among the states. Persons [illegible] revocation of license and a maximum fine of $1,000 for deliberate misrepresentation in attempting to get life insurance policy holders to switch companies. It is designed to eliminate misleading estimates by agents or others advising policy holders to give up their old policies. Incomplete comparisons of the benefits of two different policies by agents also come under the heading of "twisting" as defined by the statute.

National Life Shows Shrinkage.

There has been an indicated shrinkage of $31,000,000 since the end of 1932 in the business of the National Life. At the end of 1932 the company had $228,000,000 of insurance in force. When the receiver was named the total was estimated at $197,000,000.

A drastic shrinkage took place in the business of the Illinois Life Insurance company during the receivership. Definite figures were never made public, but the total was understood to have fallen from around $150,000,000 to about $50,000,000 at one time. Some of this business was reinstated.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL NET OPERATING INCOME LOWER

Net operating income of the Illinois Central system for September totaled $1,403,248, compared with $1,411,622 in August and $1,622,722 in September, 1932. September gross income totaled $7,778,220, compared with $7,709,752 in August and $7,914,981 a year ago.

For the first nine months net operating income totaled $11,321,596, compared with $8,048,604 in the like period of 1932, a gain of $3,272,992. This increase was made in the face of a decline of $1,789,717 in revenues. Gross revenues for the 1933 period stood at $64,329,423.

The September net operating income enabled the Illinois Central to meet its bond interest by a margin approximating $3,000.

Treasury Bills Sold on 17-100 Per Cent Basis

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Acheson announced today that subscriptions to the amount of $168,678,000 had been received for the issue of 91 day treasury bills to be dated Oct. 25, of which $80,034,000 was accepted. Average price of the bills to be issued is 99.957, with an average interest rate of .17 per cent on a discount basis.

STOCKS ROCKET ON BIG WAVE OF BUYING ORDERS

Movement Spreads to All Classes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—Wall street went on a pulse stirring speculative spree today in response to President Roosevelt's announcement last night of his new policy for controlled valuation of the dollar.

Led by the metal issues, prices rushed upward from the opening on a heavy accumulation of overnight buying orders. The market took time out around mid-morning to catch its breath, but the advance was resumed in lusty fashion and continued well into the fourth hour, when prices shaded somewhat from the best as traders indulged in a bit of profit taking.

The reaction worked off toward the close, however, and closing quotations left leading issues with gains ranging from 2 to 10 points for the general run of the list and with an extreme advance of 40 points for the faststepping Homestake Mining, speculative favorite among the gold shares.

Trading Outdistances Ticker.

The turnover for the day approximated 2,132,000 shares. At times transactions were at such a pace as to leave the high speed ticker several minutes behind actual floor dealings.

The President's announcement, spurring fresh hopes of indirect inflation with an indication that the government was definitely embarking upon a program of a permanently managed currency with purchases of gold at a flexible price, found the stage well set for an advance. All last week the street had labored under a pall of gloom. Stocks had declined steadily until they broke through the low levels of last March. Traders had flocked to the bear side, pressing the market on every upturn.

The market canceled all of the losses that had been recorded since last Tuesday. The combined averages of the Chicago Tribune showed a net gain of $3.36 and the average of 25 industrials $5.10. The advance was the widest for any day since Aug. 25.

Traders and Public Buy.

As the advance gained headway under the impetus of speculation, professional operators found themselves in hot competition with the public to buy. It was significant that long before the first trades were executed, offerings on specialists' books were hastily supplanted by buying orders.

Short covering played an important part in the rally. Caught unawares by the President's speech, the bear interest scrambled to cover at the opening bell.

An especially eager demand developed for stocks of companies with large commodity inventories, such as the coppers, sugars, rubbers and foods. It was not long before the advance had attained such speed as to embrace standard industrials and the market in general.

The outstanding feature of the day was Homestake Mining with its net appreciation of 40 points. The next best gold issue was McIntyre, with a gain of 7½ on the day. Dome and Alaska Juneau were two other strong spots here.

Silver issues were not far behind, gains of 5 to more than 13 points occurring in United States Smelting, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and International Silver.

Chemicals Among Strongest.

Another group to score above the average was the chemicals under the spectacular leadership of Allied Chemical.

While they registered top gains of as much as 6 points, the alcohol and liquor issues were the most vulnerable in the late reaction. National Distillers was so hard pressed by profit taking that it posted one of the rare losses on the day. Its recession was only a small fraction, however.

While the financial community at large found much food for encouragement in President Roosevelt's summary of the administration's accomplishments to date and his plans for the future, there was at the same time a tendency toward hesitation growing out of a disposition to interpret some parts of the address as indicative of the President's continued disapproval of unrestrained speculation.

Texas Gulf Sulphur's Net Higher in Third Quarter

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Texas Gulf Sulphur company reports for the quarter ended Sept. 30 net income of $2,611,362, equal to $1.03 a share compared with $1,437,861, or 57 cents a share in the preceding quarter and $1,434,853, or 56 cents a share in the third quarter of 1932. For nine months net income was $5,025,927, or $1.98 a share compared with $4,541,811 or $1.78 a share in the first nine months of 1932.

La Salle Street Seeks Answer to Money Plan

BY HOWARD WOOD.

La Salle street was all astir yesterday as the financial community sought to orient itself to the new order of things financial as pictured by President Roosevelt in his Sunday night radio speech.

Not since the momentous happenings of early March when the banks closed, a new President took office and congress revamped the money and banking laws had there been such intense interest in Washington developments.

Marketwise the first day's reaction to the President's speech was bullish enough to satisfy the most ardent sponsors of managed currency and the "commodity dollar."

* *

In conservative banking quarters the plan disclosed by the President was no surprise. Bankers interpreted the scheme as a middle course between the greenback type of outright inflation and the immediate dollar stabilization ideas of the sound money advocates.

There was a tendency to view the sudden and substantial spurt of commodity and stock prices with some distrust. Bankers expressed the opinion that although the gold purchase plan would probably gradually bring about higher levels for commodities and stocks there would be in the interim sharp fluctuations in day to day trading.

* *

A true picture of the results to be accomplished by the gold price pegging program probably will not be seen until the general public gets a good idea of what it means. Even professional traders yesterday weren't quite sure just what it was all about. They had a hunch that what the President had said was bullish and should stimulate Monday buying and they took positions accordingly, but they didn't fully understand all the ramifications of the program.

On paper the administration's plan is supposed to work something like this:

The Reconstruction Finance corporation is to peg the dollar price of gold by buying and selling the metal. For the immediate future the plan seems to involve more buying than selling.

Imagine a see-saw with gold on one side and a dollar on the other. As gold goes up the dollar is expected to go down.

* *

The brain trustees who figured out the scheme reason that if the RFC buys gold at gradually rising prices the dollar will gradually buy less gold. That, they say, means that the dollar will become less valuable, which, in turn, means that the dollar will also buy less beans, potatoes, taxicab mileage, French francs, baby shoes, and gin. And that, they continue, means that the prices of these and other things will gradually rise. All of which is what the administration seemingly wants to accomplish, for the administration has staked its all on a rise in the price level, particularly the price levels of the embattled farmers.

"I do not hesitate to say in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable," the President said in his speech, "that although the prices of many products of the farm have gone up, and although many farm families are better off than they were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the rise and to extend it to those products which have as yet felt no benefit. If we cannot do this one way we will do it another. Do it we will."

This should be an effective answer to those market letter writers who have been impressed by the rumblings of stabilization advocates. One

DOLLAR DROPS; DEVALUATION CONTEST SEEN

Based on Roosevelt Gold Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—President Roosevelt's announcement that he intends to take control of the dollar by establishing a market for gold in this country and, if necessary, buy and sell it abroad in order to raise commodity prices here, had its first reflection in a sudden and sharp slump in the gold value of the dollar in the world's exchange markets.

The price of the French franc, which represents the gold currencies, was jacked up from 5.52 to 5.64 cents before the New York market opened. It then fell to 5.60, rose to 5.65 later and finished at 5.59 cents. The pound sterling jumped 11½ cents, or from $4.52½ to $4.64, but eased to $4.61½ at the end of the day.

At the closing quotation for the franc the dollar had sagged to 70.03 per cent of parity, compared with 71.10 per cent on Saturday.

Devaluation Contest Seen.

One effect is expected to be a contest between the United States and Great Britain to devalue their respective currencies—unless an agreement has been reached between them. The goal in mind would be to put the dollar at a greater discount than the pound in terms of gold.

There was much conjecture whether France and the other gold countries would be able to stay on a gold basis if the pound and dollar start a race in depreciation. Many were inclined to believe France would soon have to abandon the gold standard.

The United States treasury today fixed the price of American newly mined gold at $29.59 per fine ounce; an advance of 58 cents over Saturday's price. This was based on the London price and represented no change in conformity with the President's new policy.

See British Control Ended.

The President's policy was acclaimed as a drive in the right direction at last by a school of economists who have been preaching that Great Britain has dictated the prices of commodities in the whole world, including the United States, by her control over world prices in terms of gold.

"The President has served notice on the world that the United States is going to control the gold value of the dollar," one of the econmists said today. "He has recognized that our prices have been controlled by external factors [the British government and the Bank of England], a fact that most bankers and government officials have hitherto failed to understand. Therefore, his new policy is constructive and to be highly commended.

"We have been led by the nose long enough; the President is evidently going to stop it."

Curtis Publishing Nets $1,306,372 in 9 Months

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Curtis Publishing company for the nine months ended Sept. 30 had net profit of $1,303,372, equal to $1.45 a share on the preferred stock, compared with $5,129,285, or 22 cents a common share in the same 1932 period. For the quarter ended Sept. 30 the company had net loss of $194,354 against profit of $543,286 in the preceding quarter and profit of $150,557 in the September quarter of last year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—Aside from sizable rallies in foreign loans, particularly those dollar issues on which the interest is being paid at the gold parity of exchange, the bond market on the stock exchange gave little response to the gold policy outlined by President Roosevelt. Domestic bonds, on the average, were slightly higher on the day, while United States government long term obligations were irregular.

The treasury issues closed 4-32ds up to 5-32ds down, with the exception of the treasury 4s, which jumped 13-32ds point.

Government Issues Active.

The government issues, however, were active, compared with the balance of the list, showing a turnover of $1,633,000. The entire listed bond market showed sales of $9,102,500.

In the foreign group the gold payment French government and municipal loans climbed 2 to 4½ points as the dollar weakened in the foreign exchange market. Dutch East Indies issues rallied 1¼ to 4 points. Swiss government 4½s jumped 5 points. In other sections of the foreign list, German bonds, notably the obligations of the city of Berlin and Berlin utility companies, pointed higher. United Kingdom 4s, due 1990, gained 4 points. Latin American issues closed generally higher.

Corporate Liens Strong.

Corporation issues were strong with the maximum gains amounting to a point or two in the utility group. International Telephone and Telegraph issues formed a strong spot, advancing 2 to 3 points. Industrial bonds lagged behind the utilities and rails.

Bonds on the curb exchange finished generally weaker as far as the domestic list was concerned. Trading was fairly active. Foreign loans averaged higher with Russian bonds the most active.

Columbia Gas and Electric.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me information regarding Columbia Gas?—3. H. S.

Answer: Columbia Gas and Electric corporation was formed in 1926 as a holding company. About two-thirds of gross is from sale of gas and not quite one-third from sale of electricity.

Operations are grouped in seven divisions, interconnected to form one unit. Six are grouped around the following cities: Cincinnati, Columbus and Dayton, O.; Charleston, W. Va.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Binghamton, N. Y. The seventh is a natural gas pipe line from Kentucky and West Virginia to seaboard states.

Gas sales dropped about 12 per cent from 1931 to 1932.

Gross in the first half of 1933 was $40,054,000 and net income was $7,861,000, equal to 39 cents per common share. For the corresponding 1932 period gross was $44,803,000 and net was $10,581,000, equal to 64 cents per common share.

Gross in 1932 was $79,155,000, against $89,404,000 for 1931 and $96,130,000 for 1930. Net income was $17,205,000, or 96 cents per common share in 1932, against $22,332,000, or $1.42 per common share, for 1931. Per share earnings on the common for 1930 were $1.76, against $2.49 for 1929.

Current assets on June 30, 1933, totaled $22,202,000, and current liabilities were $23,143,000. Subsidiary funded debt and preferred stock amounted to about $111,000,000, parent company funded debt $104,500,000 and preferred stock $116,304,000. There were outstanding 11,610,036 shares of no par common.

Dividends have been paid regularly on the preferred. In February, 1932, common dividends were paid in 5 per cent preferred stock in lieu of cash. Effective Nov. 15, 1933, the common will pay the equivalent of 12½ cents a share in preferred stock.

Although sales of both gas and electricity have showed an upturn, according to the company, the federal tax and compliance with the NRA have increased operating expenses.

Bank loans were $10,000,000 on June 30, 1933, against $30,000,000 on June 30, 1932.

The company's most important properties are in highly industrialized areas and earnings fluctuate with industrial activity. A future source of growth is the sale of natural gas from the company's pipeline.

American Smelting and Refining.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate your opinion of American Smelting and Refining 5s, due 1947.—I. C. P.

Answer: Copper is the principal output of this company, although it does produce some silver, lead and gold. The low price of its principal product has resulted in decidedly unsatisfactory earnings reports, but current position is exceptionally strong. The 5s, due 1947, are considered a business man's investment.

1933 ELECTRICAL REFRIGERATION SALES AT RECORD

H.W. Newell Predicts New High Mark in 1934.

The 1933 business of manufacturers of electrical refrigeration equipment has been the greatest in the history of the industry and sales during 1934 are expected to surpass those of the current year. This statement was made yesterday by H. W. Newell, vice president of the Frigidaire corporation, who is here to meet district managers, sales managers and supervisors of his company for this district. The meeting, held at the Knickerbocker hotel, will be concluded today.

Mr. Newell said that in his opinion, when business conditions now are compared with the situation at this time last year, the improvement to date is tremendous.

Says Business is Confident Now.

"The country is far better off than it was a year ago," Mr. Newell said. "Everywhere I go I note the improved morale of our people. Business is moving at a faster pace and the feeling generally is much better than it was last fall.

"A year ago people were blue and uncertain. Big corporations were making no plans for the future. Our own organization was no exception. We gave thought to cutting of expenses and contracting our activities.

"All that is changed now. We are looking ahead with confidence and we expect that 1934 will be the best year in our history. There are now around 7,000 persons employed at our Dayton works and we are going to keep them on the job throughout the winter piling up wares to be sold next year. Other big corporations are taking similar action to help restore this country to prosperity by keeping people at work."

Expect Greater Sales.

Mr. Newell said that sales of electrical ice boxes by the entire industry will run between 1,100,000 and 1,200,000 for 1933 and he looks to a not far distant time when sales will total 2,000,000 units in a year. Sales of household boxes by his company were 25 per cent ahead of last year when the record to date was made.

Mr. Newell estimated that the industry now has supplied about 25 per cent of the potential market for electrical ice boxes.

"When we reach 35 to 50 per cent of saturation sales should begin to expand rapidly, if the experience of other industries is of value," he said. "When we reach these figures public acceptance is general and sales are easy to make."

Business of his company recently has been making its best showing in some parts of the south, especially Texas, he said.

Discussing conditioning equipment, which his company also makes, Mr. Newell said that the greatest progress made recently has been in installations for restaurants, fur stores and all kinds of shops.

GRAINS SOAR ON ROOSEVELT TALK; TRADE BULLISH

Wheat Up 4 to 4⅞ Cents; Corn Also Higher.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain and commodity traders generally construed President Roosevelt's speech as sensationally bullish, and prices advanced vigorously yesterday with light offerings in evidence in all markets. Grain closed around the best figure for the day and the current movement.

Wheat gained 4 to 4⅜ cents; corn, 2¾ to 3 cents; oats, 2½ to 2⅞ cents; rye, 3 to 4 cents, and barley 3 cents. Other commodities, however, generally finished below the best figures, although retaining a fair part of the early bulge. Cotton was 1 to 10 points higher in Chicago, while sugar in New York was 6 to 9 points higher.

December wheat finished at 86¼ to 86½ cents, or 19 cents above the low of last Tuesday, while December corn was 45¾ to 45⅞ cents, or 8¾ cents above the recent low. The nearby future of oats was 35⅞ cents at the last; rye, 56¼ cents, and barley, 47 cents.

Winnipeg, Liverpool Prices Rise.

Winnipeg wheat gainted 2⅞ to 3⅝ cents, with October leading, while Liverpool was up 2⅜ to 3 cents. The President's speech had some effect in advancing prices abroad.

Taken as a whole, the grain markets yesterday were a distinct disappointment to the trade. The public response to the sensationally bullish overnight developments was surprisingly small. While prices were sharply higher, there was a lack of the speculative enthusiasm which featured the tremendous markets in July which carried December wheat up to $1.24 and December corn to 77 cents a bushel.

Failure of President Roosevelt to announce a plan to lend on wheat and corn to farmers, similar to that now being followed with cotton, attracted some attention. This failure, however, according to trade views, does not mean that such an idea has been dropped.

Import Duties Questioned.

Whether present import duties of 42 cents on wheat and 25 cents on corn are adequate to offset a price justified by a loan rate of 70 cents a bushel on wheat to the producer could not be determined. At the close yesterday December wheat in Chicago was 26¼ cents above the price on Winnipeg No. 2 Manitoba, a grade sufficiently high to permit deliveries on future contracts in the local market were it not for the duty.

Liberal imports of Canadian, Argentine and Danubian rye into the United States despite the duty of 15 cents a bushel have finally aroused Washington authorities to action after being prodded for a number of days by the grain trade. It was announced yesterday the tariff commission has called a hearing for Nov. 23 to investigate the difference in cost of rye production here and abroad with a view of changing the import duty.

The trade regards it as a foregone conclusion that the duty will be raised. However, it is expected the 637,000 bushels of Danubian rye which cleared for the United States in the past two weeks will have arrived at Atlantic ports before action can be taken.

COTTON CARRIED HIGHER AS COMMODITIES RISE

Buying of cotton by speculators and traders, while not heavy, was sufficient to absorb the offerings and carry prices higher. Advances at the extreme were around $1 to $1.25, which met profit-taking and moderate recessions. The close was fairly strong at net gains of 1 to 10 points on futures in Chicago, and 5 to 14 points in New York.

The spot market in New York was up 10 points to 9.50 cents; New Orleans gained only 5 points and finished at 9.20 cents. Other markets were stronger, Galveston being 9.15 cents and Houston 9.10 cents. Prices:

NEAR NORTH SIDE

A little 2 story bungalow; a fireplace, a winding stair; a quaint little slate paved, lamp lighted court. Quiet, far away as the suburbs and yet just ten blocks from the Loop. Or a studio with a real ceiling so high it reaches the sky; or a small cozy studio. Some of these are furnished, all with fireplaces. No time spent commuting; always walk to your office; always home quickly at night with full evening before you.

THAT WILL GIVE NEW CAR SATISFACTION AND THEY ARE OFFERED AT A PRICE!

These nine bargains are typical of the 97 outstanding buys available at the STUDEBAKER SALES CO. 5 days' driving trial with each sale.

'31 HUPMOBILE 5 PASS. VICTORIA. De luxe model, actually driven very little. Now every detail of the interior and exterior appears like new. And the engine will satisfy the most exacting motorist. Special ...$445

'31 ESSEX COACH. Here is a car that never left the Chicago blvds. The finish, upholstery, tires, and motor are A1 and there are many nice extras. Only.....$275

'29 PACKARD LIGHT 8 SEDAN. Here is a car that looks and runs better than many autos priced at $750. The finish is bright and shiny and the upholstery appears unused. Has a sweet running motor $375

'31 HUDSON 8 BROUGHAM. It's a real beauty and the motor performs smoothly and quietly. Extras galore. This car was priced recently at $450, but we just reduced it to $295

'31 STUDEBAKER SEDAN. Commander 8 that was owned by an official of this company who gave it the most scrupulous care. We can certainly recommend that this Studebaker will give new car satisfaction today. Free wheeling, with a wealth of extras $395

'29 LA SALLE SPORT COUPE. Rumble seat. If you want a car with nice, attractive appearance and real smooth quiet performance—this car will more than come up to you expectations, and the price will please the bargain seekers $345

'31 BUICK 8 COUPE. It was in the garage most of the time, as it was owned in conjunction with two expensive cars. The finish glistens like a new dollar, and the interior is immaculate. Has a sweet running motor. A super bargain at $395

'29 STUTZ 8 SEDAN. A de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. It was originally luxurious, and runs as though it were never driven a mile. Has many costly extras. Every detail is 100%. Only $595
